TESTIFY CARRANZA AND HIS GENERALS AIDED TEXAS RAIDS

Witnesses Before Fall Committee Offer Documentary Evidence of Mexican Plotting.

STATEMENT BY GO-BETWEEN

Carranza Represented to Him as Approving Efforts to Carry Out "the Texas Revolution."

GERMAN AND RED ACTIVITY.

Letter from Agitator in Mexico Asking Martens to Advance $10,000 for Propaganda Is Produced.

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 22.—President Carranza and a few of his principal lieutenants instigated and directed the long series of raids on American properties that began along the Rio Grande early in 1915, according to documentary evidence placed before the Senate subcommittee investigating the Mexican situation today. This was supported by testimony by John A. Walls, District Attorney at Brownsville, Texas; L. R. Barnes, in charge of the United States Army Intelligence work along the border during the war, and other witnesses.

The committee obtained from them and from documentary evidence information purporting to show that not only were the highest Mexican officials cognizant of the program of the raiding parties which was carried out under the provisions of the "Plan of San Diego," but that as late as June, 1915, they were still giving encouragement to and aiding those who participated in those raids in plans inimical to the United States.

Incidental to the taking of testimony regarding Mexican Government officials' connection with the "Plan of San Diego" further information was obtained as to the success encountered by Germans in bidding for the sympathy and support of Mexico during the war and the present alleged drift toward Bolshevism. T. B. Altendorf, a Pole, who was in the intelligence service of the American army during the war, was placed on the witness stand long enough to identify Mario Mendez, the Director of Telegraphs in Mexico, as one of those whom Minister von Eckhardt kept on his payroll during the war. Altendorf said Mendez's job was to see that copies of all messages from the United States bearing on military affairs were delivered to the German Legation.

Asks Funds of Martens.

A new note on the Bolshevist movement in Mexico came from a copy of a letter written by Linn Gale to L. C. A. K. Martens, the Bolshevist representative at New York.

"Knowing you are the financial agent of the Russian Society in New York," Gale wrote, "I take the liberty of asking you if you can give me financial aid in my propaganda in Mexico." He added the explanation that he was the editor of a magazine devoted to the furtherance of radicalism. He explained that he went to Mexico to evade the army draft, "and since then," he added, "I have established very close relations with the Mexican Government, which I have urged to Bolshevize the country, and which will, I believe, do so. I have been extended unusual help in various ways by President Carranza and his Prime Minister, Secretary Berlanga."

Summarized, the plan of San Diego, a copy of which was read into the record, follows:

"The States of Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona, and California are to be invaded simultaneously, with uprisings of Mexican and negro citizens on the American side. A separate government is to be established and re-annexation to Mexico requested. Six other States contiguous to this territory are to be carved out of the United States to be formed into a negro republic under the protection of Mexico. This is to be accomplished in a ruthless manner. All male Americans more than 16 years of age are to be killed."

The character of the testimony developed three phases of the program, the first, that which took the form of border raids, beginning in 1915; the second, that held out as a bait by the Germans in the Zimmermann note, when they dangled before the Mexicans the prospect of recovering the border States, with the possible assistance of Japan. The third is closely allied with the impetus that has been given the Bolshevist movement, and in support of that charge Chairman Fall announced there would be placed before the committee evidence showing Carranza was yet offering support to Augustin Garza, mentioned in the plan of San Diego as the military leader, and the minutes of a meeting of anarchistic organizations in Mexico said to indicate the existence of a conspiracy to foment labor uprisings in the United States.

Judge Walls was the attorney who prosecuted the cases of a few of the Mexicans captured in raids across the border near Brownsville. Four of these were convicted and sentenced to death, but their lives were saved by a decision of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which held that they could not be punished since the evidence showed Mexico and the United States were at that time "in a state of war." The men were turned over to the military authorities who in turn delivered them to Mexico.

Judge Walls placed before the committee documentary evidence indicating

Harmony in China Imminent Between the North and South

HONOLULU, Jan. 22 (Associated Press).—Unification of the northern and southern factions in China is imminent, according to cable advices received here today from Canton, via Shanghai, by the Hon Mon Bo, a Chinese language newspaper.

The Canton dispatch reported that the revolutionary Government at Nanking, South China, had indicated its readiness to establish peaceful relations with North China and was about to declare the cancellation of its independence and unite with the Peking Government.

1,000 NEW CASES OF INFLUENZA HERE

Health Chief Urges Druggists to Sell Whisky for Use in Fighting Diseases.

TO ASK FUND OF $80,000

Death Rate Lower Than in 1917, Last Normal Year—15,000 Hospital Beds Ready.

Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland announced last night that physicians reported 671 cases of influenza for twenty-four hours to 10 o'clock yesterday morning, an increase of 209 over the previous day. The reports accumulated rapidly during the day, and at 6 o'clock last night Dr. Copeland estimated the total number of influenza cases for the day at approximately 1,000, an increase of about 588 cases, and more than double the number reported on Wednesday. The exact figures will not be available until this morning.

In four days the number of cases of influenza reported daily have jumped from 41 last Monday to 1,000 yesterday.

Dr. Copeland will appear before the Board of Estimate today, pursuant to a request by the Board of Health at a meeting yesterday, and ask for an emergency appropriation of $80,000 to combat influenza and pneumonia. The money will be spent to engage additional physicians and nurses.

"The money is to be requested, not because we are in the midst of an epidemic, but in order to prevent a possible epidemic," he explained.

251 Deaths Since Monday.

The total number of deaths from influenza and pneumonia reported to the Health Department since Monday was 251. Of these 45 were from influenza and 206 from pneumonia. There were 1,643 influenza and 665 pneumonia cases reported since Monday.

Here are figures for the last four days:

NEW CASES.	Influenza.	Pneumonia.
Monday	41	116
Tuesday	140	129
Wednesday	462	230
Thursday	1,000	190
Total	1,643	665
DEATHS.
Monday	7	36
Tuesday	12	67
Wednesday	11	42
Thursday	15	55
Total	45	206

Speaking of the influenza situation, Dr. Copeland said that if the number of cases in New York equaled the number reported in Chicago, in proportion to the population, this city would have from 7,500 to 9,000 influenza cases. In the height of the epidemic last year New York's figures never went above 6,000 daily, he added.

Asks Druggists to Sell Whisky.

The Health Commissioner made an appeal yesterday to druggists to apply for permits to the Internal Revenue Commissioner for the handling of whisky on physicians' prescriptions in connection with the prevalency of influenza and pneumonia. He said he took this step because of the strong belief held by many reputable physicians that whisky is an important drug in certain cases and should be made available.

In response to his request, the Commissioner said, a representative of the Liggett drug stores notified him that although no whisky was sold in the stores, arrangements would be made to handle it in seven of the chain stores located at central points, at least for the period covering the prevalence of the influenza.

Dr. Copeland also communicated with J. J. Quigley, supervising prohibition enforcement agent in this district, and was advised of the details connected with the release of whisky to patients on prescription of a physician. Regarding reports that some druggists in Brooklyn were charging $5 and $8 a pint for whisky to be used for medicinal purposes, Mr. Quigley said there was no law to prevent a druggist from charging as much for the liquor as he saw fit, as long as customers were willing to pay the prices charged. He said the law made no reference to prices

SENATE CONFEREES NEAR COMPROMISE ON RESOLUTIONS

Both Republicans and Democrats Are Hopeful After Discussion of Article X.

LODGE LOOKS FOR RESULTS

Majority Senators Are Said to be Making Concessions on Language and Form of Article X.

MAY BE AGREEMENT TODAY

Revival of Hope Comes After Mild Reservationists Promise Action Unless Agreement Is Reached.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Republican members of the bi-partisan treaty conference tonight reversed the diagnosis of the compromise situation which they made yesterday, and announced that conditions are now more favorable for an agreement than at any time since the discussions began. Whereas yesterday they were predicting a break in the negotiations almost any moment, they are unanimous tonight in the declaration that "very important progress" was made at today's session, and that "things look bright, very bright, indeed."

The sudden change in the situation, they explained, occurred during discussion of Article X., and announcements made after the session in Senator Lodge's office, while confined to the progress made, indicated that tomorrow would probably bring an agreement on Article X. No information as to details of the proposal which provides ground for a compromise or whether Democrats or Republicans have made the concessions was forthcoming.

It seems fair to assume, however, that some proposal submitted by the Democratic conferees is the basis of the expected agreement because the Democrats at a meeting preceding the general conference drew up three proposals for a compromise on Article X, all of which they submitted. Senator Hitchcock drew one, Senator Owen another, and Senator Simmons a third. Senator Simmons, whom his friends describe as "a born compromise," previously submitted a draft of an article X reservation to Democratic and Republican Senators, which met with some favor.

Senator Lodge said so many proposals were submitted by both sides that he could not remember the number of them or their languages, but added that he believed "the thing is going to work out."

Senator New Is Optimistic.

Senator New, who yesterday gloomily forecast a complete rupture of negotiations said:

"This much can be said: At no time in the discussions has the possibility of agreement appeared so bright as it is tonight."

It was considered significant by some Senators that the revival of hope followed closely a futile effort by Senators Lodge and New to get Senator McNary to agree that the mild-reservationists will not throw the treaty back into the Senate and reopen debate by moving to take up the treaty again for discussion.

The two Senators invited Senator McNary to see for himself the progress made. They told him in detail of the work they have done and asked him to hold off so that the negotiations may not be spoiled at their most delicate stage. Senator McNary's reply was couched in graphic Western idiom, but did not constitute a promise to hold off. In effect it was that unless more than mere hope comes out of Senator Lodge's office ere long, things will begin to happen on the Senate floor.

The Democratic conferees hurried away tonight after the discussion for further revision of their proposals, and the Republicans remained with Mr. Lodge for a last-minute discussion of the situation. The nine Senators will meet again tomorrow afternoon.

A disagreement tomorrow need not break up the conference, Senators said, as both agreements and disagreements are being regarded as tentative and subject to change, hence failure to agree now might only mean, they said, that discussion of Article X would be dropped for a time and another reservation taken up.

While the conferees were meeting today, a report reached the Capitol that President Wilson had conveyed word indirectly to leading Democrats that if they are able to reach a reasonable settlement with the Lodge group, he will not stand in the way of its ratification by the Senate. Confirmation of this report was lacking, however.

At the same time the report leaked out of the conference room that an agreement was in sight, and when it reached the Senate floor, Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, a member

Senate Refuses To Censure Sims; Party Vote Sidetracks Resolution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—By a vote of 33 to 30, the Senate rejected today an effort by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, to call up his resolution to censure Rear Admiral William S. Sims for disclosing information of a "confidential character," in connection with his appearance before the sub-committee investigating naval awards.

There was no debate and the vote was strictly on party lines.

Previously, the Senate had refused 31 to 31, with Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, voting with the Democrats, to take up the request of the investigating committee for authority to employ counsel, offered by Chairman Hale.

Both resolutions now go to the calendar and a majority vote is required to bring either back to the Senate.

Demand for ex-Kaiser Refused; Dutch Send Reply to Allies

THE HAGUE, Jan. 22.—The reply of the Dutch Government to the demand of the Allies for the former German Emperor was sent this morning to the Dutch Minister at Paris. It probably will be delivered to M. Clemenceau tomorrow.

So far as can be learned, there is no doubt that the demand will be refused, with an explanation of the position of the Netherlands.

The argument that Holland cannot deliver the ex-Kaiser to the Entente because he is a German subject, it is believed, forms part of the answer. It is impossible to obtain any opinion on the case in official circles, where the question of the note is only talked of with the utmost caution. It is known, however, that the note has created some nervousness in Ministerial quarters, as it is feared that it may bring difficulties in its wake.

A Privy Council was held to decide the question.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—Neither Government officials nor the newspapers here are commenting on the present stage of the proceedings for the extradition from Holland of the former German Emperor.

I.R.T. HAS SURPLUS ABOUT $12,000,000

Auditor Testifies at Traction Inquiry That Only $8,000,000 of Reserve Was Spent.

MAYOR TALKS OF "VELVET"

Elevated Lines Got $95,000,000 in Sixteen Years and Paid 7 Per Cent. Dividends.

Despite the contention of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company that it is in financial straits, the railroad still has a surplus amounting to about $12,000,000. This was developed during the further examination of Edward J. F. Gaynor, auditor for the railroad, at the continuation yesterday of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment's traction inquiry. Gaynor, in reply to questions by Corporation Counsel Burr, said that approximately $8,000,000 of a $20,000,000 reserve which the I. R. T. had accumulated, had been spent during the war.

"Did that go into the third tracking of the 'L'?" he was asked.

"I wouldn't say that; I would say it was due to war conditions," he replied.

"Is it not a fact that two-thirds of that surplus which the railroad said it owned when it was floating an issue of notes and securities, was represented by advances to subsidiaries, chiefly the trolley lines in the Borough of Queens?"

"That is very true."

"Is not the recovery of any considerable portion of these advances, aggregating $6,606,715, problematical?" Corporation Counsel Burr wanted to know.

"It is contingent upon eventualities," the witness admitted.

The hearing yesterday was enlivened by a line of questioning in which Mayor Hylan, as interrogator, sought to show, with the use of the Interborough's figures, that the $35,000,000 in stock and $210,000,000 in issued bonds of the railroad was "pure velvet," as he phrased it. The Mayor tried unsuccessfully to get the Interborough auditor to admit that these stocks and bonds were based entirely upon leases with the Manhattan Elevated Railroad and the subway.

Mayor Irritated Frequently.

"The cost of operation and return, whatever it may be, and bonds of the Manhattan 'L' and the cost of construction has been paid for, hasn't it?" the Mayor asked. The witness replied affirmatively, whereupon the Mayor suggested that the stock might be watered.

"The bonds of the Interborough Rapid Transit represented cash and property," Gaynor retorted.

"— velvet; they call it that sometimes," interrupted the Mayor. "You won't admit, will you, that the $35,000,000 in stocks and $210,000,000 in bonds is, in the common parlance of the day, velvet?"

"It would be doing myself and yourself a gross injustice if I did admit it," Gaynor answered.

The Mayor took a leading part in the examination of Mr. Gaynor, but frequently displayed irritation when he was unable to break into the answers of the witness or the statements of the counsel. At one stage of the proceedings he said to James L. Quackenbush, head of the Interborough's legal forces:

"Well, now, is there a chance for me to have something to say?"

"Yes, always," the attorney replied. "You are the boss of this show."

Consolidated's Affairs Bared.

At the beginning of the session the Corporation Counsel queried Mr. Gaynor at length concerning the Interborough Consolidated Corporation, now in the hands of the receiver. This corporation, it was developed, has three companies' separate stock in its treasury, namely, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, operating the subway and elevated lines; the New York Railways Company, operating the "green" surface cars, and 48 per cent. of the stock of the New York Transportation, which owns the company which runs the Fifth Avenue buses. The Interborough Consolidated Corporation was a merger of the Finance and Holding Company and the old Interborough-Metropolitan Company, the witness testified.

"What has happened to the Interborough-Metropolitan?" broke in the Mayor.

"I made a long speech on that yesterday," said Mr. Quackenbush. "You see, that Interborough Consolidated is the child of the union between the Interborough-Metropolitan and the Finance

FRENCH CABINET SHAKEN BY ATTACK ON MINISTER STEEG

Refusal of 300 Deputies to Vote on Question of Confidence Moral Defeat for Millerand.

ECHO OF CAILLAUX CASE

Daudet Denounces Minister of Interior as an Accomplice of Malvy and Caillaux.

CHAMBER IN AN UPROAR

Speedy Fall of Cabinet Is Predicted —Millerand's Opening Speech Received with Indifference.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Amid tumultuous scenes in the Chamber of Deputies today the recently formed Cabinet of Premier Alexandre Millerand received a vote of confidence, 272 to 23. The vote was considered a moral defeat for the Government, however, as more than 300 Deputies abstained from voting. The reluctance of the Deputies to vote on the question of confidence recalled a scene in the Chamber in the 90's, when the Ministry of Alexandre Ribot was overthrown three hours after its formation.

The vote of confidence was taken on the demand of Premier Millerand, following a savage attack by Deputy Léon Daudet, editor of L'Action Française, on ulJes Steeg, Minister of the Interior. M. Daudet demanded the right to interpellate the Government on M. Steeg's appointment to the Ministry. He declared that Steeg was an accomplice of Louis J. Malvy, former Minister of the Interior, who was banished following his conviction on charges of communicating with the enemy, and of Joseph Caillaux, former Premier, who is soon to be brought to trial on the charge of attempting to promote a premature and dishonorable peace with Germany.

The significance of the vote was generally interpreted in the lobbies of the Chamber to mean that the Millerand Cabinet could not last as now constituted and that the Premier would have to replace M. Steeg at the Ministry of the Interior or the Cabinet would be overthrown on the first question involving the interior policy on a question of confidence.

Many of the Deputies who abstained from voting told the correspondent of The Associated Press that they had given the Premier fair warning that the next time they would vote against him, should M. Steeg remain.

The charges of M. Daudet against M. Steeg were specific and emphatic. He claimed that M. Steeg was in complicity with M. Malvy and continued the latter's policy while he (Steeg) was Minister of the Interior in the Painlevé Cabinet. M. Daudet refused to withdraw his charges and said he was willing to produce facts to prove his assertions.

M. Steeg was absent from the Senate while Daudet was speaking. Summoned in haste by telephone, he replied that he had always served France with all his heart and intelligence.

The opening speech of Premier Millerand was received with respectful indifference by the Deputies, but with M. Daudet's bitter attack on M. Steeg the Chamber became extremely noisy and unruly. The Cabinet's initial bow to the House was made amid conditions which caused many to predict that its life would be short. There even were moments when the question of the Cabinet's fall on the very day of its inauguration was seriously discussed.

Before the vote of confidence, Orders of the Day succeeded one another with such rapidity that at one time seven of them lay on the desk of the Speaker, Raoul Peret. Premier Millerand, adding the question of confidence in the Cabinet, finally accepted the Order of the Day submitted by Deputy Dumesnil, reading: "The Chamber, approving the Government's declarations relative to the choice of Minister of the Interior and rejecting any addition, reverts to the Order of the Day."

The Chamber was in an uproar, and Speaker Peret threatened to suspend the session. Prince Murat and M. Daudet exchanged caustic personal remarks across the floor of the Chamber with members of the Extreme Left amid pandemonium.

Maintaining "the alliances that have saved the world," will be one of the chief aims of the new Cabinet in France, Premier Millerand announced in his Ministerial declaration of policy today.

The declaration began with a graceful reference to Georges Clemenceau, the retiring Premier. M. Millerand pointed out that he had been called "to the formidable honor of succeeding a Ministry presided over by a great patriot, who, in the eyes of the world, is the incarnation of victory."

"The execution of all the clauses of the Treaty of Versailles will be law to us. We shall pursue it without violence or feebleness—with unshakable firmness. It includes the close and cordial maintenance of the alliances which have saved the world. Without our allies, those of the first as of the last hour, what trial would not have been in store for us? What would have been the fate of our allies, if France had not served four long years as the cover to civilization?"

Premier Millerand alluded to the League of Nations, saying that the Government had confidence in it and would do all it could to help strengthen the League's organization. To rely upon

EVIDENCE AGAINST SOCIALISTS ADMITTED IN FACE OF BITTER PROTESTS BY COUNSEL; RADICAL SPEECH BY CLAESSENS PUT IN

Chicago Grand Jury Will Indict More Reds; Two Sisters, Ordered Deported, Fight Officers

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Eleven Communists, arrested three weeks ago by State's Attorney Hoyne in a round-up of Reds, were surrendered to the Federal authorities for deportation, when arraigned in criminal court today.

Luba and Vera Dokrow, sisters, caused a great uproar when they battled the Federal officers sent to arrest them. The women were overpowered and with their nine associates were rushed to the Federal Building to be arraigned.

Mr. Hoyne is preparing papers for the extradition of some of the thirty-eight Communist laborites indicted yesterday by the Special Grand Jury. Among those sought in other States are John Reed of New York, Charles Baker of Cleveland, and Mrs. Margaret Prevey of Akron.

Several local residents, who were among the thirty-eight indicted, came to court and gave bonds of $10,000 to insure appearance when wanted. William Bross Lloyd was among them.

It develops that Mrs. Helen Pratt Judd, for fifteen years a teacher in Wycker Park School, was one of the three women indicted.

More indictments by the Grand Jury are expected.

HOOVER CONSULTS SUPPORTERS HERE

AS BUSINESS MEN'S CHOICE

His Platform, Soon to be Out, to Make Nomination by Either Party Possible.

Herbert C. Hoover, whose boom for the Presidency is being discussed all over the country, was in the city for several hours yesterday in connection with the affairs of the American Relief Administration, but he refused to talk politics.

At the headquarters of the Relief Administration, at 115 Broadway, Mr. Hoover conferred with a number of friends, some of whom admitted that the political situation was under discussion.

Among those who took part in the conference were Julius H. Barnes, Director of the United States Grain Corporation; Edgar Rickard, George Jackson of Baltimore, H. D. Irwin of Philadelphia, and Edwin P. Shattuck.

Mr. Barnes, more than any other individual in New York, is responsible for starting the Hoover boom. He launched it two weeks ago at a dinner of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association at the Waldorf, and it was said yesterday that Mr. Hoover has sanctioned everything Mr. Barnes has said about him politically up to the present time.

The advisability of opening Hoover headquarters in New York City was discussed at yesterday's conference, it was said. While some were in favor of beginning active work in behalf of the former Food Administrator at once, others counseled that the opening of such headquarters be deferred until the Presidential boom gets further under way.

Hoover Clubs to be Formed.

It was said that Mr. Hoover would be put in the race through the formation of a number of Hoover clubs all over the country. These clubs are to be nonpartisan, and the members, so far as possible, will be business men, who will urge Mr. Hoover's nomination on the sole ground that the country needs a business man for President, and that Mr. Hoover's war record shows he exactly fills the bill.

One of Mr. Hoover's friends was asked whether he would claim allegiance to either the Republican or the Democratic Party.

"Politics will have nothing to do with his campaign at the start," he replied. "Before long Mr. Hoover will make his declaration of principles. This will be in substance his platform. It will set forth just what Mr. Hoover believes to be the issues of the campaign and his own attitude toward these issues. The politicians will then have a chance to look them over, and if the demand of the people is strong enough for just this kind of a platform either one of the parties may consider Mr. Hoover is just the man to win with."

"How about Mr. Hoover being an independent candidate?" Mr. Hoover's friend was asked.

"The demand for him to run as the candidate of a third party will have to be tremendous if he hopes to stand any show of success," was the reply. "It is an entirely different matter to run on an independent ticket for a local office than to organize an entirely new party and run for President of the United States."

"Just what is Mr. Hoover's attitude toward the attempts being made to boom him for the Presidential nomination?"

Hoover "Not Displeased" with Boom.

"Well," was the reply, "Mr. Hoover is not at all displeased with the evidence that there is a spontaneous sentiment throughout the country for him."

An entirely new Presidential boom started yesterday when friends of Dar-

OUR SOLDIERS WIN ARMORED CAR DUEL

38 Take Siberian General, 6 Officers, 48 Men After Killing 5 and Wounding 1.

LOSE 2 DEAD, 1 HURT

Clashes Reported with Russian Factions by Other Withdrawing Troops.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—American soldiers attached to the expedition commanded by Major General William S. Graves, in Siberia, twelve days ago repulsed an attack by Semenoff troops along the Trans-Siberian Railway and captured one of Semenoff's generals, six officers and forty-eight men, in addition to killing five and wounding one.

The fight took place at Posopskaya, at 1 o'clock in the morning of Jan. 10 when a Semenoff armored car attacked the American detachment of thirty-eight men in their car at that point. The American casualties were one killed and two seriously wounded, one of the latter dying of his wounds.

A preliminary official report on the fight, during which the American troops also captured the armored car of the Semenoff contingent, was received by Secretary Baker today, who made public extracts from the cablegram and stated that General Graves had also reported that he believed the matter could be adjusted peacefuly with Semenoff," who could not have been responsible" for the attack.

General Graves's cablegram was sent from Vladivostok on Jan. 21 and the extracts from it made public by Secretary Baker read:

"Semenoff armored car attacked detachment of thirty-eight men (United States Army) in their car at Posopskaya at 1 A. M., Jan. 10. Detachment fought and captured armored car, including one general, six officers and forty-eight men, who are still held.

"American casualties, one killed, one died of wounds and one seriously wounded. Russian casualties, five killed and one wounded."

VLADIVOSTOK, Jan. 13 (Associated Press).—Factional fighting has broken out throughout Siberia. American forces are withdrawing from along the Suchan mine railway, and are reported to have engaged in skirmishes with Siberian partisans.

A detachment of Colonel Morrow's regiment, which was preparing to move out from the Baikal district, was forced to intervene in factional disturbances yesterday, according to a report from the Czech staff.

The only Americans now remaining in the danger zone, where disorders are prevalent, are those belonging to Colonel Morrow's regiment. Their arrival here depends upon railroad conditions, which daily are growing worse.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—A Peking dispatch of Jan. 17 announcing that General Semenoff has assumed full powers of government in Far Eastern Siberia adds that General Horvath has assumed similar powers in the territory served by the Chinese Eastern Railway.

TROUBLES OF LITVINOFF.

Copenhagen Hotels Refuse to Lodge Him and Spies Surround Him.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Negotiations between James O'Grady, British delegate, and Maxim Litvinoff, representative of the Russian Soviet Government, at Copenhagen, have reached a critical stage because of an alleged system of espionage practiced on the latter, according to the correspondent of the Herald at the Danish capital.

Virtually every hotel is said to have refused to accommodate M. Litvinoff, who has appealed to both Mr. O'Grady and M. Tchitcherin, Bolshevist Foreign Minister, asking that the negotiations be transferred to another country.

In his telegram to Mr. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist representative declares, it is said, that he is under semi-arrest and is being constantly watched. He says six detectives are staying at his hotel and accuses the Danish Government of not fulfilling the guarantees given when negotiations were proposed.

Opposing Counsel in Continual Clash at Hearing Over Admission of Evidence.

PREPARE FOR COURT TRIAL

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 22.—A speech delivered last November by August Claessens, one of the suspended Socialist Assemblymen, incendiary and full of invective against the Government and abuse of the American people, was read today into the record at the continuation of the hearing before the Assembly Judiciary Committee to determine whether the five Socialists shall be restored to membership.

At the close of the day, despite objections from the Socialists, the hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

The mass of evidence introduced included copies of the national and New York State constitutions of the Socialist Party of America, the by-laws of the New York Local with which two of the defendants, Assemblymen Claessens and Louis Waldman, are affiliated, a couple of radical pamphlets and the membership cards of Claessens of New York and Samuel Orr and Samuel E. Dewitt of the Bronx.

Seven witnesses were examined, including Secretary of State Hugo, Executive Secretaries Julius Gerber of the New York Local and Miss Anna Stern of the Bronx Local of the Socialist Party, Esra L. Kauffmann, a Rochester, special policeman; Charles M. Robinton, a special agent of the Department of Justice; William F. Smart, an official stenographer, and William Tallman, Deputy Clerk of the United States District Court.

While the Claessens speech was being read into the record Chairman Martin had occasion for the first time to rebuke sternly spectators for applauding some of the most incendiary utterances embodied in the address. He threatened to have the chamber cleared if the offense was repeated.

According to Claessens, an attempt had been made to count him out on Election Day. He was quoted from a stenographic record as saying he did not expect redress from the courts, for the Judges "held their seats by just the same frauds," and a "great many of them are receivers of stolen goods." A reference to the Government said that if it, as he sought to convey, "rests upon thievery and fraud, then you have no Government. You might just as well refer to this nation as the United States of Thieves."

One of the utterances attributed to him which the lawyers for the committee emphasized was:

"I warn you, comrades, that we are not going to lay down on the job. I have spoken around the street corners and I have told my constituents the same of such a condition. I have likewise told any person who still remains a Democrat or a Republican: I do not care how honest and clean you may be, you are an accomplice of a crook. You have absolutely no right to democracy. You have absolutely no right to speak of an American Republic; there is no American Republic. It is merely one huge institution based upon fraud—God Almighty, if men and women cannot cast their ballots, if they cannot get counted their own ideas, what is the sense of this whole thing?"

Expect Adverse Verdict.

The charge embodied in the suspension resolution that the Socialist State Constitution required every Socialist candidate to leave with the executive secretary of his organization a blank resignation before obtaining his nomination, was borne out by what was read into the record from one document. Morris Hillquit tried hard to get on the record testimony from Mr. Gerber, to show that this provision was a dead letter and had not been complied with by the five Socialist Assemblymen, but was blocked by an objection which Chairman Martin sustained.

Many objections were made by the Socialist lawyers to the evidence offered but invariably they were overruled by the Chairman, until both Mr. Hillquit and Seymour Stedman declared that the Supreme Court rules of procedure adopted by the committee and legal precedents in every instance were ruthlessly swept aside.

The conduct of the investigation brought the comment, not only from these lawyers but from others in the Assembly Chambers, that it established a new record for steam roller tactics and disregard for the precedent and practice usually followed in judicial proceedings. Mr. Hillquit, asserting that the rulings of Chairman Martin lacked every semblance of justification, made made threats that, with his clients and counsel associated with him, he would withdraw, unless more fairness was shown.

After sitting through the proceedings today, the five Socialist Assemblymen were a unit in declaring that they harbored no illusions regarding the outcome. Their counsel, according to a report tonight, are shaping their defense solely with an object of taking the proceedings into the courts in the belief that the Assembly, where Speaker Sweet is backed by a substantial and reliable majority, has pronounced an adverse verdict.

Counsel Clash on Issues.

When the morning session began Chairman Martin consented to having entered on the record a statement by Assemblyman William S. Evans of the Bronx dissenting from a ruling by the committee denying the motion of the Socialist lawyers to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that there was neither constitutional nor statutory warrant for it.

Mr. Evans is one of the Democratic members of the Judiciary Committee and one of the two Assemblymen who voted against suspension. The statement read in part:

"If these five Socialist Assemblymen are disloyal, traitors, spies or enemies, the responsibility for their presence here is the people's, not the Assembly's. The right and power to disqualify them on those grounds is the people's, and not ours. For the people never delegated such power to the Assembly.

"I deem these principles of the most vital importance to the existence and survival of representative government. The gravity of the charge against the five Socialist Assemblymen must not be allowed to overshadow these principles.

"The constituencies of the five men under investigation elected them with full knowledge of the present charges against them, in my belief. I know that to be the fact in at least two instances, that of Mr. Orr and Mr. Dewitt. I have personally charged them with this precise disloyalty before their constituencies during the last two years. Mr. Fertig and Mr. Mullen, former members of the House, likewise accused them before their constituencies. Yet they have been returned to us and we must, in law, seat them."

Before the taking of testimony began Mr. Hilliquit offered to read certain admissions on the record "to save time," but Mr. Stanchfield entered an objection and was sustained.

There was a further plea by Mr. Hilliquit that in accordance with the rules of evidence of the Supreme Court, which have been adopted by the committee, it was customary to follow this practice.

"I maintain my right to be tried on issues only and issues framed," he said. "If we are here for the purpose of trying the merits of the charges before you I can conceive of no possible objection to framing issues. If we are here for the purpose of making it appear that there is a formidable array of witnesses to testify to facts which are of common, every-day knowledge and which we are ready to admit."

He was overruled, and Julius Gerber, Executive Secretary of the Manhattan local of the Socialist Party, was called as the first witness. He had brought a mass of documents and printed matter, including a copy of the national constitution of the Socialist Party and the platform promulgated by it in 1917. Extracts from both and from the State constitution of the party also were read into the record by Mr. Stanchfield, who examined the witness.

Socialist Oaths Read.

The national and State constitutions were put in evidence to show that citizenship was not a necessary qualification for membership in the party council to dictate that only citizens can be a candidate in the primaries without the consent of the city, county or State organizations, according to the nature of the office; that in legislative bodies Socialists must vote as a unit on measures dictated by the stand taken by the party platform and that in making application for membership they must subscribe to the following pledge:

"In all my political actions while a member of the Socialist Party I agree to be guided by the constitution and platform of that party."

Another portion of the national constitution on which Mr. Stanchfield laid emphasis was Section 6, which reads:

"Any member of the Socialist Party elected to an office who shall in any way vote to appropriate moneys for military or naval purposes, or war, shall be expelled from the party."

Mr. Stanchfield read several extracts from the State constitution showing that under penalty of expulsion Socialists, while acting as delegates to an official party convention or when elected to public office must "abide and carry out such instructions as he may have received from the dues paying party organization, or as prescribed by the State or national constitutions," and that "all candidates for public office or appointees to public office selected by the dues paying membership shall sign the final resignation blank before nomination is made official or appointment is made final." The form of resignation he read as follows:

"Recognizing the Socialist Party as a purely democratic organization in which the source and seat of all powers lies in the dues-paying membership, as an elected (or appointed) official of the party it shall be my duty to ascertain and abide by the wish of the majority of the dues-paying members of my local or political subdivision.

"To the end that my official acts may at all times be under the direction and control of the party membership, I hereby sign and place in the hands of Local —— my resignation from the office to which I may be elected (or appointed), such resignation to become effective whenever a majority of the local shall so vote.

"I sign this resignation voluntarily as a condition of receiving said nomination (or appointment), and pledge my honor as a man, a Socialist, to abide by it."

Another section read by Mr. Stanchfield was:

"If said local or county organization shall disapprove of any proposed appointment, it may submit its choice of appointment to the said elected official," and in case of further disagreement the local or county organization and the elected officials have the right to appeal to the State Executive Committee."

A copy of the by-laws governing the New York local, produced by Mr. Gerber, showed that "any person 18 years or over who agrees to abide by the national platform and constitution and resolutions of the Socialist Party may become a member of the party, regardless of whether a citizen or not."

Rulings Against Hilliquit.

The membership cards of August Claessens, Samuel Orr and Samuel A. Dewitt, three of the suspended Assemblymen, were offered in evidence. The membership cards of Charles Solomon and Louis Waldman, Mr. Gerber said, he had not been able to find, but Mr. Hilliquit admitted for the record that they had signed cards similar to those in evidence.

Answering questions from Mr. Hilliquit Mr. Gerber said he had been a member of the Socialist Party since its organization in 1899 and had attended every National Convention of the party since he joined it as a delegate. He had attended all State Conventions as a delegate. He is and had been for years a member of the State Committee.

"As Executive Secretary of the Socialist organization in New York County, which I understand aggregates twelve years, have you ever received from any candidate nominated for office in the Socialist Party a resignation in advance?" asked Mr. Hilliquit.

"Never," said the witness.

Mr. Stanchfield objected and was sustained.

Mr. Hilliquit protested, but without avail, that the contention had been made that the five Socialist Assemblymen had filed such resignations and that this was part of the charges against them.

"What I propose to do," he said, "is to show by this witness, the most competent upon the subject, that this provision of the State Constitution has been a dead letter since its inception and that none of these five men has ever filed such a resignation."

Mr. Hilliquit sought to get testimony from Mr. Gerber to show that the Socialist State Constitution antedated the enactment of the direct primary law and that since this became a statute the Socialist Party had abided by its provisions when in conflict with their own constitution.

Mr. Stanchfield again objected and was sustained.

"Under the rulings of the chair," protested Mr. Hilliquit, "I do not know how we can proceed with anything like the semblance of the proceedings in the Supreme Court as the rules provide. Mr. Stanchfield has tried to prove by cross-examination that the Socialist Party is not a political but an invisible, secret organization, out of the mouth of this witness. I assert that it is my right to get his full testimony before he leaves the stand."

"You can introduce affirmative evidence to prove your contention. I am strictly within the rule—that is, the rule we use above the Bronx."

Secretary of State Hugo testified that the five Socialists took the oath of office before him without objection or hesitancy.

Socialists Object to Testimony.

At the start of the afternoon session ex-Justice Arthur E. Sutherland of committee counsel asked to call witnesses who had been required to bring books, documents, papers and other records, and to have these records marked for identification and left with the committee. Mr. Hilliquit objected.

Such procedure, he contended, would prevent objections to such of the evidence as the Socialists considered immaterial or irrelevant or improperly authenticated, and was contrary to Supreme Court procedure. Assemblymen Evans and Block of the committee dissented from the Chairman's ruling that the papers remain in the committee's custody until it was decided which of them should be placed in evidence.

When Miss Anna Stern, Executive Secretary of the Bronx County Socialist organization, was called Mr. Hilliquit told her that she was not compelled to give over any of the papers until they had been offered in evidence.

"This committee would have the right to conduct this entire proceeding in camera," said Mr. Stanchfield. "It could exclude the five Assemblymen. It could exclude their counsel, and the whole proceeding could be conducted to a conclusion in that way. But because we realize that we are going into this case, in the last analysis, to the court of public opinion—the people of the State—we are quite willing that these five men should be represented by counsel and that ordinary rules of evidence, in a general way, should apply."

"The statement of Mr. Stanchfield," retorted Mr. Hilliquit, "that the committee is a law unto itself and all powerful and not subject to any review; that counsel for the Assemblymen under charges, and the Assemblymen themselves are here by courtesy or favor, I wish to reply to. As a proposition of physical power I am not finding any fault with it; but I wish to say, and I want it understood, that we do not wish to appear here on sufferance or courtesy or by favor, and that we are here with all the rights of counsel in any court of justice or before any tribunal, or we do not wish to be here."

The discussion was ended by an arrangement suggested by the committee's counsel to which Mr. Hilliquit agreed. Both sides sent a representative into one of the committee rooms and the committee lawyers marked the parts of the documents which they wished to place in evidence and allowed the opposing lawyers to put the balance in evidence.

Emma L. Kauffmann, a special policeman in Rochester, produced as evidence a book printed in Yiddish, which he had bought from Samuel Miller. Mr. Stanchfield asserted the evidence related to a conspiracy in which the five Assemblymen were involved.

"This is a new thing—that we are now on trial for conspiracy," said Mr. Stedman. "I suppose we will be charged with another offense by tomorrow morning."

Chairman Martin admitted the testimony regarding Miller, and Mr. Hilliquit again arose.

"As far as I am concerned, "he said, "and I think I speak for my associates, whenever testimony of this sort is called, we shall take absolutely no part in the proceeding and not dignify it by taking part in it. It is as if we were absent."

The book, which was admitted in evidence, turned out to be a pamphlet in red covers, published by the Jewish Socialist Federation of America. It was translated in part by Charles M. Robinton, an agent of the Department of Justice employed by the Lusk Committee, who was called to the stand. Its title was "The Dictatorship of the Proletariat," and its author was Hall Rogoff. Chairman Martin and Mr. Stedman clashed over an argument following Robinton's admission that a translation of the book was not made from the same copy which was produced in evidence.

Socialist Books as Evidence.

"I want to show that this is not a translation," said Mr. Stedman.

"They both are the same book," replied the Chairman.

Mr. Stanchfield read excerpts from the book.

"Working men cannot depend on peaceful evolution," said one passage. "They must prepare for a revolution and Socialism does not believe in the State. It wants to annihilate it entirely." Another said: "The first aim of the Socialists must be to seize the Government. The State, by whatever means they can succeed in doing this with their rule, must establish the dictatorship of the proletariat. The Bolshevist dictatorship is the bone of the Socialist revolution, and must be established in every country under all circumstances, when the Socialist revolution is established there."

The Committee Counsel offered in evidence another book entitled "Who are the Bolsheviki?" "Bolshevism is not a new Socialist theory, but the practical carrying out in life of the old Socialist theory," read one extract. Bolshevism is practical Socialism, the Socialism of today, and not of the remote future day. Bolshevism desires to establish Socialism by revolutionary route. "Their object is not only to carry out a social revolution in Russia alone but also in other countries, so they will do the same thing as the Russian proletariat. The more such revolution spreads over other countries, the easier and quicker it will be to establish Socialism."

Robintom, on cross-examination by Mr. Hilliquit, admitted that he translated only certain passages of both books. Mr. Hilliquit asked if he did not know that the Jewish Socialist Federation printed also books of opposite import to the one submitted. He also brought out the fact that most of the sections quoted were from a chapter entitled "The Opponents of the Dictatorship of the Proletariat," and that the book had another chapter, "The Defenders of the Proletariat."

He read from another chapter: "They held that since the dictatorship of the Proletariat was the exact opposite of democracy, of sacred democracy, therefore the dictatorship of the Proletariat was filthy and unclean."

Claessens Speech Quoted.

"This was marked with blue pencil lines, and then the lines were crossed out. Why did you cross them out?"

"Because I decided not to put that in unless the whole book was translated," Robintom replied.

Mr. Hilliquit asked if there was anything in the book which referred to the attitude of the Socialist Party toward Bolshevism. The witness replied that he knew of none.

The speech of Assemblyman Claessens was next introduced by William F. Smart, a stenographer, who said he took it at a meeting of the Socialist Party of New York at Parkview Palace, 110th Street, on Nov. 7. Claessens preceded Santeri Nuorteva, Secretary of a Soviet mission, to whom he referred as "our Ambassador."

Claessens, according to the report of his speech, referred at the outset to the "social revolution." But revolutions in themselves are not necessarily the aim of Socialists. What we Socialists want is more than a change in government. We want a social revolution, which means a complete change in the economic, social, intellectual and moral as well as the physical phases of life.

"We Socialists are social revolutionists; but for some of the detectives that are here, let me tell you that we are really the most peaceful people in the world, so much so that we are pacifists, that we hate the shedding of blood. We believe that hanging and killing never did any good; it has no educating influence."

Claessens, according to the report of his speech, then referred to the "brutality, the bestiality of the great mass of the American people." And took a fling at "the capitalistic press."

With the entrance of Nuorteva, Claessens turned his speech to the last election, when, he charged, they tried to steal the election from him.

"Every cocaine fiend, every thug, every dirty crook, that the Democrats and Republicans could sweep out of the Bowery, they put into the election places in Harlem." He then enumerated instances of alleged fraud. "I tell you my friends," he was quoted as saying, "if we take the situation as it stands now, then we are the dirtiest cowards on the earth. We are going to fight. I do not hope much from the courts, understand. The courts are elected by just such practices. These very Judges hold their seats by just the same fraud. If they are not thieves, a great many of them are receivers of stolen goods, and you can imagine how much justice you can get from this bunch.

"I know some people said yesterday and I know some of you feel 'to hell with the whole matter of voting; to hell with the whole form of government.' If the Government rests upon thievery and fraud, then you have no Government; you might just as well refer to this nation as the United States of thieves; but I am not one of those to become pessimistic. We are here tonight celebrating the second anniversary of the Russian revolution; and, comrades, while the Russians have not had the privilege of voting, if it could be called the privilege in the days of a Czar—they had not themselves what you call a democracy before the Czar; yet our comrades in Russia also were treated like dogs, and hung and sent to Siberia.

"Every dirty trick they used against us here was used against them and only worse. And did they stop? Did it kill their spirit? Our Russian comrades did not say that. They were fighters; and when we are celebrating the second anniversary of the Russian revolution we celebrate the second anniversary of the success of fighting men and women, and if we celebrate that in the highest possible form, not only in our idealism, but in our enthusiasm, then we celebrate it also as martyrs and not as cowards.

"I warn you, comrades, that we are not going to lay down on the job. I have spoken around the street corners, the night before last, and I have told my constituents the shame of such a condition. I have likewise told any person who still remains a Democrat or a Republican: I do not care how honest and clean you may be, you are an accomplice of the police. You have absolutely no right to democracy, you have absolutely no right to speak of an American republic; there is no American republic. It is merely one huge institution based upon fraud. God Almighty! If 6,000,000 men and women cannot cast their ballots, if they cannot get counted their own ideas, what is the sense of this whole thing?

"Now, thank goodness, Socialists are not only working along political lines. If we thought for a minute it was merely a dream on our part, a great political controversy until we have a majority of men elected, and then, by merely that majority declare the revolution, if any of you smoke that pipe dream, if that is the quality of opium you are putting now, give it to me and give it up. Yet I do not want any of you to go to the opposite extreme. The economic movement is also the movement by which Socialists are marching on; but the economic movement also has its shortcomings; and it also meets the cossacks and the brutal forces of the capitalist power in every way.

"But there are other things we want. We are working, not merely upon the industrial, not merely the political, not merely in the co-operatives, but along the broad lines of education, and I do not know, and you do not know, and there is today nobody in this room that knows how the social revolution will be accomplished in this country. At least, the luck that the Russians have, I doubt whether we will have it for ten million men to walk home, leaving their officers in the sewers, walk home with guns—that is a picnic, that is easy for any revolution.

"But this is a condition that you have not got here. So, under the circumstances, we have to proceed entirely different, and we have also to realize the brute forces against whom, and as such, we have got to use very opportunist we can get.

"We capture one section and move on to the next, until we reach more and more and ultimately realize. Do not get behind, do not let the thing of last Tuesday wear our your nerves. It was mean, it was dirty, it was the lowest, and if that is American—well, then, we are proud to be called non-Americans. The dirty, trashy way—if that grand stands for that—refers to Russia as a country of atrocities, then, I tell you, some day the Russians will have to send missionaries to the United States for the purpose of bringing decency in here.

"My God, when I looked at some of those dope fiends that sat around some of those boards I thought to myself, and newspapers talk about the nationalization of women in Russia. If there was an ounce of truth in your particular, damnable lot you would be the first to take a boat and go to Russia. The language that those men used at the polling place was absolutely unfit for pigs; and those are the types that we are supposed to believe uphold our American democracy. If it was not a fact that a change was coming we would say: 'To hell with the whole business.' But we are going to the Assembly, and we will tell it to them. There are five of us. Charlie Solomon is one. There are others, and I will go myself into the bargain, and we will tell them something. But we won't waste much time in the Assembly, comrades, talking to that bunch that sit there with stolen property—sitting in their seats—but we will use our position with the Assembly and reach the Henry Dubs and speak to them."

Following the reading of Claessens's speech William Tallman, deputy clerk of the United States District Court in New York, was called. He submitted a copy of the indictment in the case against Scott Nearing and the American Socialist Society. They were marked for identification only.

That ended the submission of evidence for thee day, and Chairman Martin announced an adjournment until Tuesday morning at 10:30. Mr. Stedman asked Mr. Stanchfield for some indication as to how long the trial would last. Mr. Sutherland, for the committee, declined to expedite the case, but said he could give no indication as to its duration. He said that the committee's counsel would work tomorrow and Saturday on the preparation of evidence. Chairman Martin said that next week's sessions would continue until Friday and possibly Saturday night.

It was announced this afternoon that Thomas Carmody, Attorney General during the administrations of Governors Dix, Sulzer and Glynn, would be associated with the Attorney General in the future.

Condemn Assembly's Action.

The Humanitarian League at a meeting last evening adopted resolutions condemning the action of the Assembly in refusing to seat the five Socialist members. Mischa Applebaum, its President, and another delegate will go to Albany to voice the protest.

BRYAN TURNED DOWN IN HIS HOME STATE

Leading Nebraska Democrats Pledge Their Support to Wilson and Hitchcock.

CUMMINGS SPURNS ATTACK

Chairman Declares Criticisms of His Presence at Edwards Dinner Are "Without Merit."

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Jan. 22.—President Wilson and Senator Hitchcock are to have the support of the Nebraska Democrats, instead of William J. Bryan, according to resolutions unanimously passed by 300 leading Democrats of this State last night at Lincoln, where they had been called to attend a dinner and meeting to encourage the candidacy of Mr. Bryan.

Resolutions praising Mr. Bryan had been prepared in advance, but following the rather cool reception of Bryan as a candidate as proposed in the first speech of the evening, they were not presented. A set of resolutions promising continued support by Nebraska Democrats to Wilson and Hitchcock was quickly gotten up and passed unanimously.

The resolutions read:

"Resolved that this gathering of Nebraska Democrats is pleased to acknowledge the service in peace and in war of the Democratic National Administration under the wise and resolute leadership of our great President.

"We extend our sincere thanks and congratulations to President Wilson, not only as Democrats, but also as citizens. We express our appreciation and thanks also to the Nebraska Democratic Senator, Gilbert M. Hitchcock, for the able and aggressive fight he has made in the contest to crown with victory the great war's end.

"We pledge to both our continued support in the efforts to bring peace and safety to a war torn and troubled world."

Cummings Replies to Bryan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The attack which William Jennings Bryan made in addresses last night at Norfolk and Richmond, Va., upon Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, because the latter attended a dinner at Newark Tuesday night in honor of the inauguration of Edward I. Edwards, elected Governor of New Jersey on a "wet" platform, caused a stir in political circles here today.

After several hours of deliberation, while Democratic and Republican leaders speculated as to just how this rebuke from the "Commoner" who has suddenly arisen from retirement, some believe, with the hope of controlling the party's national convention, would be accepted by Mr. Cummings, the latter issued this statement:

"If Mr. Bryan had read my speech on the occasion referred to he would not have made the comments attributed to him. If he complains because I attended an inaugural dinner to a Democratic Governor of a great State, participated in by both Democrats and Republicans, his comments are without merit, whether the Governor favored or opposed the adoption of the eighteenth amendment.

"If I am criticised for participating in a so-called 'Edwards for President' movement, that statement also is without foundation. My position in regard to presidential candidates is one of impartial neutrality. I do not forfeit that position by participating in functions in honor of Democrats who have been mentioned for the Presidency."

This passage at arms served to revive rumors that have been going the rounds that no love is lost between Mr. Cummings and Mr. Bryan over the developments just prior to and since the Jackson Day Dinner, when Mr. Bryan suddenly emerged from private life and, by taking direct issue with the President over the treaty of peace, again came into the limelight as a possible aspirant for renewed political power.

There have been reports that Mr. Bryan, in mapping out a campaign by which he hopes to become a controlling factor in the Democratic Convention has no place in his scheme of things for Mr. Cummings. Mr. Bryan, it is said, is determined to be present and very active at the San Francisco Convention whether he appears there as a candidate, a delegate or a worker from the sidelines. That he is more likely to get there in the last-named capacity than in any other, if Mr. Cummings is in the saddle and all powerful, is pretty generally conceded.

The fact that the National Committee, of which Mr. Cummings is Chairman, passed resolutions indorsing President Wilson and whatever course he might see fit to pursue in regard to the treaty and the League of Nations, despite the likes and dislikes of Mr. Bryan, was recalled today as a result of the Bryan addresses in Virginia.

President Wilson has remained silent as to Mr. Bryan's reported efforts to regain leadership in the Democratic Party, but it was evident from developments during the National Committee meeting here and at the Jackson Day dinner that Mr. Bryan was not closely consulted either by the White House or by the National Chairman.

Senators and Representatives were reticent about commenting on the Cummings-Bryan clash in view of the fact that the prohibition issue was one of the high points brought in by Mr. Bryan.

Bryan Renews Attack.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Jan. 22.—Declaring that the movement to enter Governor Edwards of New Jersey on an anti-prohibition platform in the race for the Democratic Presidential nomination was "the greatest slander the Democratic Party has ever known," William Jennings Bryan, speaking here today in support of prohibition enforcement, asserted that the Democratic Party "shall not go down into the grave with John Barleycorn."

Again referring to the attendance of Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, at what the former Secretary of State described as "the coming-out party" of Governor Edwards, Mr. Bryan said that Mr. Cummings did "not know enough" to stand aloof from affiliation with such a movement as the anti-prohibition movement or was in sympathy with it he was "not fit" to be Chairman of the party's National Committee.

To Stop Profiteering.

United States Attorney Leroy W. Ross of Brooklyn said he would investigate allegations of profiteering by druggists at once and would put an end to it as quickly as possible. He was unable to say whether a druggist could be proceeded against on a charge of violating the Lever Act and promised to look into it.

In spite of the prevalence of pneumonia and influenza, the death rate from the diseases does not appear to be as high at the present time as the death rate from the same causes in 1917, the last normal year, Commissioner Copeland pointed out. The Health Department continues to be of the opinion that the type of disease this year is much milder than that of 1918, and that secondary pneumonia develops with far less frequency.

Mendel Zagat, Secretary of the Bronx County Pharmaceutical Association, reported yesterday that from 10 to 12 per cent. of the 3,700 druggists of the city have applied for permits to dispense liquor. He suggested the establishment by the Government of distributing stations where whisky might be dispensed to fight influenza. This suggestion received the approval of Dr. Copeland.

It is understood that the officials have no discretion in the elimination of the various legal steps necessary to procure liquor for medicinal purposes, even in the most urgent cases. In some quarters it was felt that additional legislation would be necessary but Mr. Zagat said a ruling from the Internal Revenue Commissioner could cut all the red tape in the situation.

15,000 Beds Ready in Hospitals.

All preparations have been made in private and public hospitals to handle cases of influenza and pneumonia, according to Commissioner Copeland. He said he believed 15,000 beds were available for sufferers. This includes 5,000 at the Pelham Bay Naval Training Station. The Health Commissioner met members of the Ambulance Board yesterday and was informed that a large number of ambulances were available.

Offers of aid have reached the Health Department from several sources. Bailey B. Burritt, general director of the New York Association For Improving the Condition of the Poor, offered the services of the organization's staff of thirty trained nurses and about as many more visiting nurses on duty in Manhattan and the Bronx. The co-operation of the Henry Street Settlement has been offered by Lillian Wald, its directing head.

Nurses are still needed. The Health Department desires the names, addresses and telephone numbers of all nurses available for duty on call.

There are 175 influenza patients at Bellevue Hospital. The patients include four children of the Kurnca family of 202 First Avenue. They were removed to the hospital yesterday.

Benjamin Rothenberg, 25, a driver, of 328 East Seventy-eighth Street, and his sister Fannie, 31, died in Bellevue yesterday of influenza within a few hours of each other. They were taken to the institution on Monday.

Thomas Gares, 26, a driver, of 211 East 111th Street, was taken to Bellevue shortly after a child was born to his wife. When the hospital authorities learned of the condition of the household they took the woman and baby under their care.

Mrs. Rose Almosino, 30, of 543 East Twelfth Street, and her two children, Frieda, 8, and Mollie, 6, also were taken to Bellevue Hospital yesterday suffering influenza.

NEW HIGH RECORD IN CHICAGO.

2,086 New Cases of Influenza and 251 of Pneumonia.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—In the twenty-four hours ending at 5 o'clock tonight there were 2,086 new cases of influenza and 251 new cases of pneumonia, while influenza deaths numbered thirty-six and pneumonia deaths forty-three. This surpasses the high record of the outbreak of a year ago by more than 100 cases.

The nurse shortage became more critical during the day. Several families—with every member ill, appealed to the Health Department for aid and more than 300 requests for nurses remained unfilled tonight.

Health Commissioner Robertson declared that there have been 613 calls for nurses in the two days; that half of the city's ninety hospitals are in need of nurses; that because of the three-year training course, there are too few nurses in the training schools.

"In these same hospitals there are hundreds of trained nurses attending patients in private rooms. This diminishes the supply of trained nurses, leaving the city virtually without graduate nurses.

SPREADS IN OTHER CITIES.

More Influenza Cases Reported in Philadelphia, Syracuse and the West

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Within the last forty-eight hours one hundred cases of influenza have developed at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. In each instance the disease is in a mild form and has none of the malignant symptoms of the 1918 epidemic. None of the cases have developed into pneumonia.

By order of Admiral Hughes, the Commandant, all social centres and other meeting places for the men at the yard have been closed.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 22.—With fifty or more suspected cases of influenza in the city, health authorities and physicians generally are making stringent efforts to prevent a repetition of the epidemic of 1918. Physicians this morning asked the health department to make arrangements whereby they can secure whiskey for the treatment of patients.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 22.—One thousand cases of influenza in this city were reported today by Dr. C. W. Waggoner, Commissioner of Health. So far only three deaths are traceable to the epidemic, he said.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Six thousand cases of influenza have been reported in Havana, Cuba, the Public Health Service was advised today by its representative in that city. Further spread of the malady in this country was reported to the service today, ninety-three new cases being listed in Kansas and 2,430 in sixteen counties of Northern Illinois.

BLAMES PROFIT TAX FOR HIGH PRICE EVIL

William B. Colver Asserts Orgy of Spending and Packers Add to Cost of Living.

COLD EXPORTS ALSO HELP

Chairman of Federal Trade Commission Traces Causes of Present Conditions.

The excess profits tax is the cornerstone of our structure of high prices, according to William B. Colver, Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, who divides blame for present conditions among a shameful orgy of spending in 1919, reckless speculation, the trickling away to South America of our gold reserve, the destruction of foreign exchange through piling up the mountain of Europe's debt, and the machinations of the packers.

These things Mr. Colver set forth in a paper read before the Atlantic Conference of the National Consumers League in Newark last night, in which he dealt with the packers unsparingly.

Mr. Colver read that our export trade is threatened seriously by adverse rates of foreign exchange and pointed to the evils that would follow its decline either through curtailed production or overproduction. Application of direct action, dynamite, or violence to a readjustment of the cost of living, he said, would be as ill-advised, destructive, and futile as political revolutions.

"To continue to extend, through taxation gathered from all of us, further great loans from the Treasury to the Governments of stricken Europe, will only result in still further piling up the mountain of debt and add to the continual interest charge which must be a crushing burden upon foreign exchange," the paper ran.

"Meantime, 1919 has been a year which we and our children will look back upon with shame. It has been a year of reckless extravagance and personal expenditures quite aside from the high prices which we have been compelled to pay for the necessaries of life. Indeed, our own reckless extravagance has been an exceedingly important factor in the creation of the false price structure in our cost of living.

"1919 was a year of insane speculation. Hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars have been squandered in speculative ventures commonly called Blue-sky stocks and in stock gambling.

"When we talk of blue-sky operations, let us not consider them as being limited to the capitalized audacity of promoters of mines and oil companies. New York must share the responsibility. Legitimate American business, in need of additional capital for necessary and useful extensions, has found itself in competition with the blue-sky flotations and with straightout gambling.

"The war has put hundreds of millions—billions of dollars into the pockets of our people. This fund is the last great reservoir of money and credit on earth, and we have been wasting it like a nation of Coal Oil Johnnies.

"This fund should be devoted to the increase in production of necessary and useful things in this country; of needed goods for export and billions should be invested in gilt-edged transportation and industrial securities of prostrate Europe.

"South and Central America and the Orient are beginning to take our gold at the rate of a million dollars a day and to spend this gold in Europe for the same commodities which we make and should export, but which can be sold by Europe because of the depreciated European exchange, at prices with which we cannot compete. This operation has a direct influence upon our own high cost of living.

"The excess profits tax is another cornerstone, if not the chief of the corner, in our structure of unhealthy prices. It was never proposed as a revenue measure and is not necessary as such. It was proposed only as a corrective to Government price fixing. Even as a corrective, it did not work. On the contrary, it encouraged extravagance of operation and carelessness in business management. Now, the Government is no longer fixing prices and the only excuse which ever existed, if one did exist, for the excess profits tax, has disappeared.

BIG REMINGTON PLANT SOLD TO 3 CONCERNS

Holding Companies Formed Will Take Over $10,000,000 Arms Factory and Workers' Town.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 22.—Sale of the plant of the Remington Arms Company here, built at a cost of nearly $10,000,000, and "Remington City," with its 600 homes for workers, was announced today.

Three holding corporations, formed in New York, are the purchasers.

Trainmen Ask Answer on Wages.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 22.—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, which has a membership of approximately 200,000, will on Tuesday ask the Railroad Administration for a definite answer to its demands for a general wage increase of about 40 per cent. William G. Lee, President of the brotherhood, today asked Director General Hines for an appointment for Tuesday, and called the twenty-two General Executive Committee Chairmen and Grand Lodge officers to meet in Washington that day.

FRENCH CABINET SHAKEN BY ATTACK

promises for the future as a guarantee of the immediate security of France and the reparations due her would be inexcusably negligent. Consequently, no enterprise involving the use of the nation's land or sea forces would be decided upon without the advice of its military chiefs, and taking into consideration the fulfillment of its international obligation.

During the course of his address, Premier Millerand recalled that the Republic would soon celebrate its fiftieth anniversary.

"It found France invaded and conquered," he said. "It has made that country whole again. Through its efforts, Alsace and Lorraine have taken their places once more as part of the nation.

"The Republic has established and maintained the Government under a parliamentary régime free from any religious interference and founded on freedom. The Republic recognizes the citizens equal in rights, whatever their faith or condition."

M. Millerand put as the first article of his program liquidation of "the sacred debt the country owes the soldiers, the valiant maimed and the families of the glorious dead, who must receive pensions due without further delay."

With reference to the financial situation, the Premier said:

"Every citizen should contribute to taxation according to his means and progressively. The country's children, to save the country, offered all, even to their lives. Now it is not lives, but their labor and part of their resources the country needs.

"The scrupulous payment of our fiscal obligations is a sacred duty. To pay taxes is to serve France, to evade payment would be treachery. Those who have profited by the war should particularly bear the burden.

"The condition of the State budget today forbids that I should assume exclusive charge of the great works indispensable to exploiting our national riches, whatever our doctrinal preferences may be. Their execution will be assured by the State becoming a partner in controlling the operations and taking part of the profits."

He pointed to the fact that the peasants had resumed work with admirable energy. He was sure their comrades in the workshop, factory, and mine would do the same.

"For the prevention of the return of a similar catastrophe to that through which we have just passed," said the Premier, "we have faith in the League of Nations," and he added that the new expression of the old French conception of Government would do its utmost to aid in fortifying the organization.

The Premier said that France would remain the friend of the smaller powers, and concluded by asserting that the recent elections had shown the country's wish to continue the work of peace by all republicans of good-will and faith and excluding men of violence. He appealed to the spirit of union and asked the Chamber's confidence.

WARNS OF EFFORTS TO STIR UP ILL-WILL

London Chronicle Urges Calm View of Sims Disclosures and Irish Agitation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 23.—The Daily Chronicle in an editorial article on Anglo-American relations says of the Sims disclosures:

"We do not think many persons on this side of the Atlantic are disposed to work up indignation about these confidential instructions. They would not in the ordinary course of events have become our concern, and the only significance we need read into them is the fact of their publicity. This, too, is entirely discount when we remember Admiral Sims is prompted by friendliest feelings to us and has made this statement in his desire to expose the faults of the American Admiralty. We refer to the question only because it is one of many incidents which have been used by those who desire to stir up ill-will between Americans and British."

The Chronicle then refers to the bestowal of the freedom of New York on de Valera and "the description of this Irish incendiary as President of the Irish Republic."

"Among us in this country," says The Chronicle, "a public ceremony of such a kind is almost inconceivable and would be a slight that could not be thrown upon a friendly power, but we must appreciate the differences of American public life and the irresponsible action which is possible for a New York Mayor. The latter is an Irishman. He is acting with his Irish friends, and what he did was merely characteristic of much that Irish-Americans are attempting to do in the United States.

"It undoubtedly is the deliberate aim of many Irish-Americans to create a breach if possible between the United States and ourselves, just as at one time the German-Americans sought to sow discord between us. But Americans, so far from being determined by German-American, came into the war, and we believe that in the future so far from determined by the Irish-Americans, they will stand with us on important issues, of which even the League of Nations may prove to be one.

"Certainly we on this side have no intention of playing into the hands of mischief makers who endeavor to sow dissension. If we and the Americans keep our eyes open to the nature of the intrigues, we shall not fall into the trap laid by political intriguers."

TESTIFY CARRANZA AIDED TEXAS RAIDS

that Mexican officials were cognisant of the raiders' plan and that the recruiting of the parties had been openly conducted at Monterey, Nuevo Leon and Victoria, Tamaulipas. He told the committee that Lieutenant Kyle Rucker at one time conferred with the Mexican commandant regarding a report that bandits were moving toward the border and that the Mexican officer promised to send a force to intercept them. The evidence in court, the witness testified, showed that it was the same commander who led the bandits that same night on their raid.

Niceforo Zambrano of Monterey, then Treasurer General of Mexico; Mario Mendez, Director General of Telegraphs; General Emilio Nafarrette, General Fontunato Zuasua and General Juan Barragan are the names of men given by Walls as those mentioned in the trial of the raiders as connected with the plan. Aniceto Pisano and Luis De La Rosa were named by him as the most active of the leaders in the field.

What is taken as evidence that Carranza was backing the plan in 1915 and 1916 is contained in a report to the State Department which was made a part of the committee's record. The report is the statement of a man used by the principals in the working out of their organization and program. He said he was sent to Jesus Acuna, Minister of Gobernacion, by Eliseo Arredondo, then Carranza's Ambassador Designate in Washington, for instructions. Acuna sent him to General Zuasua, who was maintaining an office in Mexico City in the same building with Augustin Garza, alias Lino Caballo. They discussed with him frankly, he said, the carrying out of the Plan of San Diego or "The Texas Revolution" as it was also referred to by them. He was asked by them to assist in raising funds for the work. The author of the statement said he asked if Carranza knew of this plan and was told "that part was all fixed" and that any commission which they issued him in connection with the Plan of San Diego, presented anywhere would secure him ample protection.

The writer of the statement said he first became actively identified with Carranza supporters when he was connected with an agency for an American brewer at Kansas City. He named Jack Danciger as Secretary of the company and as "an active Carranza propagandist."

An incidental connection of Japanese with the attempt to put into effect the Plan of San Diego was indicated in the statement that "Pablo Nago," the assumed name of a Japanese, was used as a go-between by General Zuasua, and, according to document, seven or eight Japanese officers were participants in a raid near Brownsville. Nago was given as the authority for the statement that they were called away from the organization by the Japanese Minister at Mexico City, who threatened them with forfeiture of rank if they refused.

Relationship of General Pablo Gonsales, now a candidate for the Presidency of Mexico, to the plot was indicated in the statement by the declaration that on one occasion Augustin Garza and General Zuasua obtained from him 10,000 pesos and $1,000 in American gold. The American money, Garza said, was intended for an American negro who had been hired to instigate a mutiny among the negro troops on the border.

Mario Mendez, whose name appears repeatedly in the statement, was credited with having offered its author a commission to obtain anarchists in the United States to dynamite "certain places" in this country. That was during the war. The writer said that Zuasua and 150 soldiers left Mexico City on May 24, 1916, for the North. His men were those who had volunteered for the Texas revolution, he added, others already having been sent North on passes furnished by General Barrangan.

WAGE LABOR FIGHT ON SEDITION BILLS

Gompers Denounces Them at Hearing as Capable of Being Used to Prevent Strikes.

PALMER FOR MILDER PLAN

Opposes Graham and Sterling Measures, Including the Death Penalty.

COMMITTEE GETS PROTESTS

Attacks Seem Likely to Kill the Drastic Legislation That Is Proposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, appearing before the House Rules Committee today, opposed any additional legislation aimed to strengthen the sedition laws and curb the Red and I. W. W. movements.

Mr. Gompers denounced not only the Graham and Sterling bills, but said that the milder proposal by Attorney General Palmer was unnecessary. He asserted that the effect of the proposed drastic legislation would be to write an anti-strike law into the sedition laws.

Attorney General Palmer, who had expected to appear before the committee, wrote a letter in which he said that he was against the Graham and Sterling bills, and favored the Davey bill introduced in the House, which was identical with a measure he had "prepared and transmitted to the Senate in response to a resolution of the Senate." Mr. Palmer is opposed to the death penalty in case the death of an innocent person results from a movement aimed against the Government. He favors the imposition of a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment of not more than twenty years for those convicted of attempting to overthrow the Government.

Opposition by organized labor and the attitude of the Department of Justice, according to members of the House, will make it impossible to pass a drastic sedition law in this session. The opposition is having an effect on both political parties, who fear the consequences at the polls should Congress enact either the Graham or Sterling bill.

In addition to Mr. Gompers, the legislation was opposed by Professor Zacharish Chafee of the Harvard University Law School, William McDonald, editor of The Nation, New York; S. P. Weston, Seattle; Edward W. Evans of the Society of Friends, Philadelphia, and H. A. Davis of Boston.

Asserts Aim to Prevent Strikes.

"There are many questions which we must consider in connection with this legislation," said Mr. Gompers. "Is it advantageous to our country to have such a statute? Does it contribute to the safety of the institutions of our Republic? Is it necessary, and will it bring about a greater spirit of unity and solidarity and patriotism? Will it perpetuate our institutions, or will it work the very opposite of this desired result?

"Has history, or experience, no value to us? Is it such legislation as will tranquillize our conditions? Will it contribute to the spirit of progress or evolution of effort to make our country a better country?

"No one will say our country is perfect, for if it were Congress would be an unnecessary adjunct to our scheme of things.

"The most potent factor or purpose of this legislation is to prevent cessation of work. It might better be termed a bill to enforce compulsory involuntary servitude, to tie men to their tasks of labor.

"There has been a constant movement toward freedom since our Constitution was founded, in order that wage workers might have freer opportunity to emerge from conditions of servitude. The only difference between freemen and slaves is that the slave works at the dictation of his master, while the freeman works as he chooses to work and quits work when he so desires."

"Of what part of the bill are you speaking?" asked Representative Campbell.

"Section 6," replied Mr. Gompers, "where reference is made to force and violence."

Mr. Gompers contended that the word "force" was not sufficiently qualified, and would be construed to mean "moral" as well as "physical" force.

"Every movement among workers is a moral force exercised to better their conditions," said Mr. Gompers, "and it is a moral force that courts might misconstrue. Unless we encourage efforts of workers for their improvement, in a manner approved by the conscience of the American people, it will mean manifestations in another form.

"Strikes are nothing more nor less than an aspiration of the working people to better their lives and conditions of life. You will find strikes only in the civilized countries. You find no strikes in India, none in China. They are growing in number in Japan.

"This species of legislation is not going to prevent the evils at which it aimed. On the contrary it will provoke those evils.

"How will it do this?" asked Representative Pou of North Carolina.

"Through the interpretation of courts," replied Mr. Gompers. "This legislation gives the courts jurisdiction over movements among labor and they will take advantage of it. They have done it before. Injunctions have been issued, because the courts have interpreted strikes as referring to property. The issuance of the last injunction is one I have in mind, in which not only was it contended that they could prohibit the doing of certain things in themselves innocent and lawful, but there were mandatory features compelling the performance of other acts."

"You mean, then, that strikes could be construed as the use of force when they are a moral, not a physical force?" asked Mr. Rodenberg of Illinois.

"Yes," said Mr. Gompers. "Under the provisions of this bill if an organization should seek to undo the Woman Suffrage amendment to the Constitution, for instance, or to repeal the Prohibition amendment, members of that organization would be subject to the penalties of the law. The same thing would apply to a movement to repeal the provision for the popular election of United States Senators.

"Is there anything in this bill applying to the laboring men in the country that would not apply to all other people?" asked Mr. Snell of New York.

"It would apply to all," said Mr. Gompers. "Any movement to change the form of government would be barred by the bill."

Promises to Clear Doubts on Bill.

"If there is any doubt about the intention of this bill it will be corrected," explained Representative Volstead of Minnesota, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. "It is not the intention to write a bill that would make anybody liable without force or violence being used, and if there is any doubt about that, the bill will be amended on the floor. The committee intended that the prohibitions in the bill should be against the use of physical violence, and physical force. All we sought to condemn were acts by force or violence.

"There is no disposition on the part of any one who advocates this measure to take away the right to advocate a change in the Constitution, but merely that they shall advocate it by the Constitutional method, not by force and violence."

"I have had considerable experience with assurances of this character," said Mr. Gompers, "and there has not been an instance in which these assurances and understandings of the lawmakers have not been reversed by the courts. Agitation of this legislation has been fermented because of the silly, crazy, call them vicious, if you will, notions of a few persons who have come under the name of radicals. There is not an avenue which any group of men or women might take to better their condition that would not come under the provisions of this bill."

Mr. Gompers made the same objection as to the references to force and violence in the bill urged by Mr. Palmer as in the Sterling and Graham bill, that moral force as well as physical would be under the ban.

"I want it clearly understood that neither I nor the A. F. of L. has any sympathy with what has been termed the activities of the Reds," added Mr. Gompers. "I have done my level best in season and out of season in opposing their doctrine and have fought everything that is symbolized. I doubt if there is any man in all classes of people more despised by those who are known as Reds than myself, and no one who has been quite so vilified and slandered as I have been.

"The standpatters and reactionaries and fools in Congress may hate me, but none of them hates me so thoroughly as do the 'Reds'."

"Who do you mean by the fools in Congress," asked Representative Campbell.

"I am afraid I would be accused of lèse majesté if I were to mention their names," replied Mr. Gompers. "But I have been attacked in Congress, in both the Senate and House. Men in Congress may utter lies and slanders, and yet they are perfectly safe from punishment.

"One of the greatest difficulties we have had in strikes is the interpretation placed by courts upon their purpose. The courts have interpreted such movements as not being for the purpose of betterment of the conditions of labor, but for the purpose of undermining, destroying and overshadowing Government. If the courts are clothed with the authority such as this bill proposes, no one knows where it would end.

"The beginning of the decay in the great Republic of Rome was in the suppression of the right of free speech and free assembly. The right of criticism in the open forum was denied, and the people were alienated in their loyalty, and no wonder they disintegrated.

"This legislation confers upon the Postmaster General the right to become the Paul Pry of the nation, and pry into any letter he may choose. This espionage upon the people of the United States is going further than we did during the war."

Harvard Men Offer Protests.

Zachariah Chafee of the Harvard Law School said that the committee should go slowly in enacting such a measure as it was considering. So long as agitation was confined to talking and did not actually approach the threshold of violence, he said, the Government should not attempt to interfere.

"The American policy in the past," he said, "has been to let men talk and to trust in our American institutions to prevent the talk from amounting to anything. I believe in the end that truth will always be successful over falsehood."

He said that it might be possible under laws preventing a display of a red flag to construe the display of the flag of Harvard University as a crime, since it is red. This led Chairman Campbell of the committee to ask whether reports were true that there were many "parlor Socialists" among the professors and students in American colleges and universities and whether there were many at Harvard.

"I don't suppose there are any more than there are in the world generally," replied Mr. Chafee.

"Do they advocate a change in our form of government?" pursued the Chairman.

"I don't suppose any of them is doing that," said Mr. Chafee. He added:

"Don't you think there could be a readjustment of our industries and that we could go along under our present form of government? Don't you think we could have a President and Congress just the same?"

"What would we have Congress for?" retorted Mr. Campbell.

"We would have it to run the railroads," was the reply and the audience laughed.

Horace A. Davis presented a petition from the Harvard Liberal Club of Boston, which he said had no political affiliations and was not Socialist in character, protesting against the bill.

Publishers Present Objections.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (Associated Press).—At the Congressional hearing on the Sedition bills E. W. Evans, President of the Yearly Meeting, Society of Friends, of Philadelphia, said it was impossible to separate freedom of speech and freedom of religion. He advocated an appeal to the public-spirited people of this country in an effort to put down those who would overthrow the Government rather than the utilization of drastic laws.

Telegrams from thirty newspaper publishers protesting against the sections of the bill which they said would limit the freedom of the press were read into the record by Chairman Campbell. Objection to the provision which would permit the Postmaster General to bar from the mails newspapers publishing objectionable stories or cartoons was made by S. P. Weston of Seattle, representing the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

"Under this bill Republican Postmasters might suppress all Democratic papers," Mr. Weston said.

ERZBERGER SERENE FACING MANY FOES

German Finance Minister Smilingly Hears Bitter Attack by Helfferich in Court.

CURBS CENTRIST DISCORD

Ends a Strenuous Day by Toiling at His Desk Over Nation's Tax Problems.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 21 (via Copenhagen).—Whatever his many friends and still more numerous enemies may say against Erzberger, he certainly possesses indomitable energy.

This morning and early afternoon he appeared in a Berlin court as complainant against Dr. Karl Helfferich, once Vice Chancellor, whom he accuses of systematic slander and defamation of character, while in the evening he attended a meeting of the Centrist Party, defending the party against the bitter attacks of the reactionary, especially the feudal elements, which cannot countenance the Centrists' co-operation with the Socialists in the coalition Government. In neither case is Erzberger's position enviable, but no matter if his adversaries almost boil over with suppressed wrath, that characteristic smile which affects every genuine Wilhelminian like a red rag affects a bull, never leaves Erzberger's cherubic face.

Helfferich had written a whole book full of insults against Erzberger, entitled "Down with Erzberger," which was read in court yesterday. It made the former appear as the accuser and the latter as the defendant. Today Helfferich followed this with a speech that was even more denunciatory than what he had written.

He pleaded bona fides and said that he would produce legal evidence. Moreover, he said that he had kept on insulting Erzberger for months in order to compel him to bring the present suit, because he considered the complainant the curse of the Fatherland, who must be eliminated from public life if Germany is to have any chance of reviving.

Helfferich Denounces "Fatal Policy."

Helfferich said that he had known Erzberger ever since 1903, when the latter made his first appearance in the Reichstag, and he had closely watched Erzberger's "fatal policy" ever since, being convinced that the latter was only an inevitable consequence of his personal character, "which I cannot describe more minutely because I am convinced the presiding Judge would call me to order if I attempted to do so, but the facts that will be brought out here will save me this unpleasant task."

The former Vice Chancellor made his speech from behind a table in that well known, disruptive manner affected by Wilhelm himself. He talked interestingly only when he grew vitriolic. Then he pointed in Erzberger's direction with a long pencil or shook his fist wrathfully. Helfferich was very well dressed, after the manner of one of the Junker class, which he serves, though by birth he belongs to the people.

He asked where Erzberger got his money, accused him of having committed sabotage against the Government early in 1904 during the West African war, of having obtained material for his attacks on the Government by bribing Government officials, of having accepted a bribe in the form of a position as a member of Boards of Directors of one or more well-known industries for aiding the latter in Parliament or deciding in their favor in certain cases of arbitraton when appointed referee, and so on.

The Presiding Judge, though doubtless he is no lover of Republican statesmen, repeatedly cut short Helfferich's long periods, reminding him that the facts, not his views, were wanted.

Erzberger was sitting between his two counsellors smiling kindly at Helfferich all the while, as if the latter were expressing nothing but assurances of his distinguished consideration to the Minister of Federal Finance.

Detectives Guard Erzberger.

When the session adjourned Erzberger left hurriedly for the Reichstag Building, being joined outside the Court House by one very portly man and another somewhat ascetic looking man, both Secret Service members ordered by the Minister of Public Safety to accompany Erzberger wherever he goes, but who were nevertheless excluded from the court by the Judge, who proclaimed that in court it was his business to protect those present. The two detectives mentioned entered a motor car and followed Erzberger to the door of the great hall of the Reichstag, where the Centrist Party was in session.

The Centrist chieftain entered smilingly and was immediately surrounded by his lieutenants, who told him excitedly of more or less veiled attacks on his leadership by Prince von Loewenstein and other monarchists. Erzberger smiled indulgently and a few minutes later assured the Wilhelminians that they certainly meant well, but that for the present he was continuing co-operation with the Socialists and Democrats, both of which parties are abhorred by the monarchists.

He may have had a fight with the reactionary Centrists, but it seems that he is winning as usual.

The night found Erzberger still smiling when not munching sandwiches at his desk in the Federal Ministry of Finance. While the two detectives mentioned were watching over his safety in the corridor the Centrist statesman was pondering over piles of statistics concocting some new plan of taxing the people, for as his enemies say, he will never tire until he has created so many taxes that it will take half of Germany's population to watch that the other half does not cheat the Government.

FOUR INDICTED AS REDS.

Brooklyn Men Seized in Raids to be Tried Next Tuesday.

The Kings County Grand Jury yesterday presented indictments charging criminal anarchy against four men who were seized by Department of Justice agents during the raids made on Nov. 8 last. The indictments are the first of their kind returned in Brooklyn, and District Attorney Harry E. Lewis has notified counsel for the prisoners that they will have to be ready for trial next Tuesday. The prisoners were arraigned before Judge Charles J. McDermott in the County Court and all pleaded not guilty.

The four alleged Reds are Irving Potash, 220 Roebling Street; John Janschuky, 93 South Second Street; Michael Zwarich, 66 North Sixth Street, and Taft Novick, 104 North Portland Avenue. Potash was taken in a raid at 208 Grand Street and the others in a raid at 93 Grand Street. The four appeared before the Lusk Committee, where they admitted they were members of the Communist Party.

The indictment charges that the prisoners on Nov. 8, 1919, organized, helped organize, and became members of the Communist Party of America, and the Communist International, which was formed to teach and advocate the doctrine that organized government should be overthrown by force and violence and other unlawful means.

TWINS MAY LOSE $40,000.

Late J. B. Chambers Had Not Legally Adopted Child Beneficiaries.

Seven-year-old twins described in the will of John B. Chambers, giving them $20,000 each, as his adopted children, may not receive the bequests because the death of Mr. Chambers on Oct. 28, 1919, occurred before he had taken steps to adopt them legally. In the Surrogates Court yesterday the Columbia Trust Company and P. F. Chambers, Executors, asked a ruling as to the validity of the will.

The petition states that the twins, now known as Henry and Margaret Chambers, were born in 1913 and are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Woodin. When three months old they were taken from their parents to the country home at Lakeville, Conn., where Henrietta Van Clest, a visiting nurse, was appointed their guardian. In November, 1918, Mr. Chambers took them into his home. At the time of his death he had decided to adopt the boy the following week, and return the girl to the institution. They have been cared for by the State Charities Aid Association since his death.

The will directed that Mrs. Corinne Goll of St. Louis should care for the children until they became of age, gave $150 a month for their care, and also left Mr. Chambers's household effects and automobile to be used for their comfort. The residue of the estate, valued at $88,000, was to be divided among relatives, including Colonel W. A. Chambers, U. S. A., of Governors Island; William E. Chambers of 47 West Fifty-seventh Street; Ambrose B. Chambers of Harvard University; D. Clopton Chambers of Alexandria, Va., and Ann Chambers Carter of Washington, D. C.

FINES LANDLORD'S DRIVER.

"Too Bad You Are Not Defendant," House Tells Galewski.

When Fletcher Blackwell, 33 years old, a chauffeur, of 40 West 131st Street, stepped up to the bar in the Traffic Court yesterday to face Magistrate Frederick B. House on a charge of violating a traffic ordinance in not having a license tag on his machine, the Magistrate asked the identity of a person who accompanied the defendant.

"I am Charles Galewski, 51 Chambers Street, attorney, and I represent the defendant, who is my chauffeur. You ought to know me, Your Honor, I was your landlord."

"I do not recall ever having met you," replied Magistrate House. "I have had a new landlord almost for every meal, and it is difficult to remember them all. I do recall that my rent has been boosted too frequently, and it is too bad that you are not the defendant in this case. Your client is fined $2."

3,000 German Prisoners Leave Lille.

LILLE, Jan. 21.—Repatriation of German prisoners from the Lille region has begun. Three thousand of these prisoners left for Germany yesterday. They appeared to be in excellent health and were wearing new boots and clothing. They took with them large quantities of eatables.

BOGUS REVENUE MEN HOLD WET 'PARTIES'

Demand Wine and Have Gay Times in Back Rooms, Says Prohibition Officers.

100 SALOON MEN VICTIMS

Swindlers with Tin Badges Said to be Led by Former Federal Agents.

Swindlers who have been holding up bartenders and proprietors of saloons for several weeks are led by former agents of the Revenue Service, according to J. J. Quigley, Assistant Prohibition Enforcement Agent in New York, who said yesterday that arrests might be expected soon.

Mr. Quigley said the gang was operating on Second, Third, Ninth, and Tenth Avenues. Several nights ago two men entered a saloon, declared themselves revenue agents and ordered the bartender to bring a case of wine from the cellar. The bartender did so, and the "agents," who were accompanied by two young men, made merry and imbibed the major part of the wine.

Mr. Quigley has had five specific reports of the operations of the gang, and he said that if the reports were true, the bogus inspectors have forced 100 saloon owners to disgorge liquor or money under pain of being arrested. The sums mentioned varied from $100 to $500, he said.

The method of the swindlers is to enter a saloon where liquor is being sold in violation of the law, buy a drink, and then flash tin shields announcing themselves revenue agents. The rest is easy. In only a few instances in cases reported to Mr. Quigley did the bartenders insist on examining the supposed credentials of the swindlers. In these cases the men made hasty exits. Several of the men left bogus summonses. Impersonating a Federal officer is a felony punishable by ten years in prison, Mr. Quigley said, and he indicated that the extreme penalty would be sought against offenders.

"The queer part of it is that most of the saloon men did not stand upon the only right they had in such cases and demand to see the credentials of the fake agents,'" added Mr. Quigley. "The tin badge convinced the bartender, apparently, that he was dealing with a representative of the law. This is peculiar, because saloon men who have been in business any length of time have read the little cards issued by the Treasury Department to revenue men. The game was so easy for the self-appointed 'agents' that in at least one instance they brought girls along, and, after holding up a saloon man for money, took a case of wine into the back room and proceeded to have a 'party.'"

California wine is continuing to come to New York at the rate of four carloads a day, Mr. Quigley said. These are shipments intended originally for export, but which were delayed by freight congestion or for some other reason, and will now have to be sold for non-beverage purposes. The value of the amount reaching New York in the last four days was estimated at approximately $1,000,000.

Foreign Consuls are receiving protests from sailors of their nationality against the sealing of stocks of liquors on board foreign vessels. These stocks are sealed when the three-mile limit is reached, and the men, who are accustomed to their ration of wine every day, are forced to go without while their vessels are in port.

James J. Shevlin, Federal Prohibition Agent, went to Washington yesterday to confer with Prohibition Commissioner John Kramer regarding the situation and to submit the names of agents he has already chosen to assist him in this district.

OFFERS "WET" MEASURE TO AID INFLUENZA FIGHT

Representative Sabath Wants to Lift Restrictions on Prescribed Whisky.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Representative Sabath of Illinois introduced today several proposed amendments to the Volstead act, among them one which would relax restrictions on whisky obtained on physicians' prescriptions for ninety days on account of the influenza epidemic.

Mr. Sabath would make it possible to reputable physicians to prescribe such quantities of whisky as they believed necessary. He feels that the passage of such an amendment would result in better provision being made by druggists to meet needs. He has also taken up with the Public Health Service the question of meeting the present influenza emergency.

Another proposed amendment, which seems to have little or no hope of adoption, would permit the sale of 3 per cent. beer and porter and 9 per cent. wine.

LIQUOR LICENSES END JAN. 31

Sisson Explains Status of Saloon Men Who Sell Near Beer.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 22.—All liquor certificates issued by the State Department of Excise expire at midnight Jan. 31, State Excise Commissioner Herbert S. Sisson said tonight when asked as to the status of the saloonkeepers who stay in business and sell near beer.

"No one can get a license to sell after Jan. 31," said Mr. Sisson, "and those who do sell near beer do so on their own responsibility. The liquor law gives the definition of liquors as follows:

"'The term liquors as used in this chapter includes and means all distilled or rectified spirits, wine, fermented and malt liquors.'"

Mr. Sisson did not care to hazard an opinion whether the definition meant liquors of less than one-half of 1 per per cent.

DROUGHT HERE HITS BRITISH

Causes Shortage in Tea and Sugar and May Increase Prices.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—According to The Chronicle prohibition in the United States is having a direct effect upon this country. The increased consumption of tea in America, it says, has led to a marked increase in America's demands upon the available supplies and may affect prices here. But it may not happen immediately, as the Ministry of Food has made provision for ample stocks for a time.

Another result of prohibition, it says, is that the American consumption of sugar has increased suddenly and has absorbed the Cuban crop. The reduction of the sugar ration here, it says, is due entirely to competition from the United States.

NO METROPOLITAN MERGER.

President Pratt of Trust Company Says Offers Have Been Rejected.

Rumors that the Metropolitan Trust Company was to be merged with other financial institutions, which have been in circulation for several weeks, were definitely disposed of yesterday when Harold I. Pratt, the new President of the company, elected on Jan. 9 to succeed George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., sent a letter to stockholders and clients of the company setting forth that proposals from other institutions looking to a consolidation had been formally rejected by the Board of Directors.

An excerpt from Mr. Pratt's letter, making this point clear, reads as follows:

"At a meeting of the Board of Directors on Jan. 9 the future policy of the company was fully discussed. Suggestions from other institutions that we amalgamate with them were considered and rejected, the Board being unanimous in its determination to inaugurate a progressive campaign for new business in all departments. I accepted the Presidency to carry out this plan and the platform of the new administration is to be along progressive yet conservative lines, offering to the clients of the company in the banking, commercial and trust departments a fully equipped organization to meet any calls that may be made upon it.

"There has been no material change in the stock ownership during the past year, and I am advised that none is considered, nor is any further change now contemplated in the personnel of the staff. The company is starting the New Year with every prospect for a bright future, which I feel is assured if we may have the benefit of your full support."

Harold B. Thorne, the Senior Vice President of the Metropolitan Trust Company, entertained the officers of the company at dinner last night at the Metropolitan Club, in honor of Mr. Pratt. The object of the dinner, it was said, was an informal discussion of plans bearing on the future growth and welfare of the company.

Another Newberry Aid Changes Plea

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 22.—Dr. Earl J. Fairbanks of Luther, Mich., one of the 135 men charged with conspiracy in the election of Senator Truman H. Newberry, entered a plea of nolo contendere today. Dr. Fairbanks, a former State Senator, was Chairman of the Lake County Republican Committee in 1898. He had stood mute when arraigned. His plea of nolo contendere was the sixth to be accepted by Federal Judge Sessions.

Democratic Forum Elects Officers.

At the annual meeting of the State Democratic Forum, held yesterday at the Hotel Astor, the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: Mrs. George Draper, Second Vice President; Miss Helen Roarty, Third Vice President; Mrs. Frederick Reynolds, Recording Secretary, and Mrs. J. McDougall, Treasurer. Mrs. Robins A. Lau is President of the Forum.

ASQUITH TO BE PASSIVE AS COMMONS CANDIDATE

Accepted Paisley Nomination on Condition of Not Fighting in His Own Behalf.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Political interest in the last few days has centred on Paisley, where one of the most important Parliamentary by-elections in the country's history is about to be fought, the result of which may be the reappearance of ex-Premier Asquith in active political life.

There had been considerable difficulty in the choice of a Liberal candidate. Mr. Asquith, urged by his friends, agreed to accept the majority invitation, but refused to exercise any influence in his own behalf.

The local Liberals were divided between a proposal for supporting the ex-Premier and another one to support a coalition candidate. Failing to agree the onus of selection fell on the Liberal Association as a whole and tonight the association met and Mr. Asquith was unanimously chosen to contest the seat.

Now it remains to be seen whether the Unionists will oppose his return and run a candidate as a supporter of the Government. The Unionist council meets tomorrow to decide the question. Meantime the Labor nominee has already opened his campaign.

Paisley is considered a free Liberal seat. Its late members, Sir John McCallum, declined the request of the local Liberal Council to throw in his lot with Lloyd George, and insisted on standing as a free Liberal, serving under Asquith's banner. Paisely is the first free Liberal seat that has fallen vacant since the general election, and in normal times Mr. Asquith's nomination would have been a foregone conclusion.

The London Times's Parliamentary correspondent, discussing on Tuesday what was likely to happen if the ex-Premier were returned to the Commons, said:

"Mr. Asquith's reappearance in active political life would at once alter the current of political values. He would make a bid for the support of all Liberals, and if he secured election to the House of Commons he would inevitably challenge Mr. Lloyd George's hold on the Coalition Liberals, who have never been happy since the split in the party first appeared."

The same correspondent says that the bringing forward of Mr. Asquith's name was in response to a feeling which prevails in England as much as in Scotland that the Liberal leader ought to resume his seat in the Commons with the least possible delay.

BUY FINE BERLIN VILLA.

Americans' Purchase May Be to House Our Envoy.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—Grunewald Villa, situated in an exclusive suburb of Berlin, has been bought by Americans, according to the Tageblatt today.

The price paid for the property, which formerly belonged to the late Robert von Mendelssohn, a prominent Berlin banker, is said to have been 4,000,000 marks.

The newspaper adds that one report has it that the premises will be the permanent residence of the American Ambassador.

and Holding Corporation. And they are both dead."

"I know; mother and father are both dead," observed the Mayor.

"And this is their offspring, sick, sore, lame, and disabled and in the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy," mournfully continued the Interborough's lawyer. "You are going to erect a monument to the others. I can see that."

Borough President Riegelmann of Brooklyn suggested that if necessary the burial might take place in the site of the Nathan Hale monument, which was moved.

$6,823,000 Interest Charges.

Regarding the Steinway tunnel project, Gaynor was asked if the Degnon Contracting Company's contract was not $5,461,471, instead of $10,759,739, as indicated in the Interborough's books. He reconciled this discrepancy in figures by attributing the difference to additional charges and expenses which arose later. He testified that an item of $6,823,000 in interest charges had been paid by the Interborough on advances made to continue the progress of the Steinway tube.

"Why was this interest chargeable to the account?" asked F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen.

"Because the New York and Long Island Company was without funds for building the tunnel. They borrowed the money from the Interborough," Gaynor said.

"Was not the contract made between the New York and Long Island Railroad Company and the Degnon Contracting Company guaranteed as to performance by the Interborough Rapid Transit?" Borough President Connolly of Queens asked.

Gaynor said it might have been so, adding that the Interborough Rapid Transit finally took over the tunnel project.

Mayor Hylan asked the auditor to describe the cost of the subways. The witness carried out the request, with the aid of Mr. Quackenbush, who interpreted part of the involved financial history of the transit developments. The desire of the attorney to clarify matters aroused the ire of the Mayor, who said:

"We won't have anything else in this record except your explanations, if you keep on, Mr. Quackenbush."

No Appraisal of Lines.

When the question of the Manhattan Elevated came up, Corporation Counsel Burr asked the Interborough's counsel to furnish him with an appraisal of the lines at the time it was turned over to them. Mr. Quackenbush said that no appraisal had been made, so far as he knew.

"We intend to produce everything within the control of the Interborough concerning the Manhattan Railway," the attorney said, "but you will observe that this request asks for the records back to 1883, twenty years before the lease of the Interborough. These papers and documents are entirely in the control of the Manhattan and we have no authority to undertake to produce them. We will, however, request the Manhattan's President to bring them here. They have their own counsel and organization."

"All they do now is to collect rent?" President LaGuardia asked.

"They don't even have to do that, because we disburse through our treasury, to their stockholders, the dividends, which is their rentals," Mr. Quackenbush added.

Under examination of Mayor Hylan, the Interborough auditor said that the Manhattan was capitalized at $60,000,000, with mortgages amounting to $44,000,000. The road was making a return of 7 per cent. on its capital stock, but prior to its being taken over by the I. R. T. it paid only 4 per cent., he testified.

Elevated Got $95,000,000.

"From 1903 to 1919 the Interborough paid over to the Manhattan Elevated for dividends on stocks and leases more than $95,000,000, didn't they?" the Mayor asked.

"I would not put the dividends as high as that. The total would be about $65,000,000 for sixteen years," Gaynor replied.

He added that, with other rentals and interest, it would amount to the figure mentioned by the Mayor. The Mayor then began a series of questions with the idea of bringing out that the stock and bond issues were contingent on the subway lease.

The hearing, which is expected to last three months, will be resumed next Wednesday morning. One of the members of the Board of Estimate said he would introduce a motion to continue the hearings without interruption so as not to have the investigation too prolonged.

SENATE CONFEREES NEAR COMPROMISE

of the Lodge group, dictated a statement in which he warned Mr. Lodge not to try to bind him to any compromise making substantial changes in the majority reservations. In giving out his statement, Senator Frelinghuysen said that many other Republicans would go with him to the irreconcilables and vote for rejection of the whole treaty if Mr. Lodge weakened.

Senate leaders commenting on Senator Frelinghuysen's statement said that if a compromise is finally reached by the conferees, there is little doubt but that their program will receive the 64 votes necessary to ratification.

Reported Republicans Make Concessions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (Associated Press.)—In the negotiations as to a compromise on the reservation affecting Article X., it is reported that the Republican Committee is making material concessions regarding the form and language of the reservation, but is remaining adament against any change in the fundamental principles of the Lodge reservation.

Of many proposals received from the Democratic leaders for a substitute, the proposition said to be receiving principal attention, with prospects of adoption, is along the lines of the McKellar-Kendrick draft declaring that the United States assumes no obligation to protect foreign territory by use of her armed forces or an economic boycott without specific action and approval by Congress, and reserves the privilege of offering good offices in adjustment of foreign disputes.

One of the Democratic leaders said he looked for decisive action tomorrow on Article X., but that conferences on other reservations probably would continue into next week.

win P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, suggested that the Republican Party could not find a more available candidate than Mr. Kingsley. The suggestion that he be nominated was made in the current issue of The Eastern Underwriter. An editorial article says:

"Among all the candidates whose names have been placed before the public as the prospective nominees of the Republican Party for President, no business man has been mentioned in the daily papers, although the country has reached a crisis where the requirements demanded of the next Chief Executive must consist of those qualities which belong primarily to the director of a successful business enterprise whose affairs are conducted on a large scale.

"Is there any reason why an insurance man cannot be found who meets the test? Is there any reason why the gift of the Presidential nomination should be withheld from an insurance man? These questions were asked of a number of prominent men in all divisions of insurance by The Eastern Underwriter this week, with the invitation that comment be offered on the availability of Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life, for the office. This action was taken on the initiative of The Eastern Underwriter, without consulting the President of the New York Life.

Among those who favored Mr. Kingsley's candidacy or the candidacy of a business man were: Charles A. Peabody, President of the Mutual Life Insurance Company; John T. Stone, President of the Maryland Casualty Company; Asa S. Wing, President of Provident Life and Trust Company; E. C. Jameson, President of Globe and Rutgers Fire Insurance Company; W. H. Stevens, President of the Agricultural Insurance Company, and Hubert Cillis, President of the Guardian Life.

COAST MOVE FOR HOOVER.

Members of Both Parties in San Francisco Plan Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22. — A "Hoover for President" movement was started this afternoon at a gathering of representative men and women of the leading national parties. The meeting was presided over by R. B. Hale.

It was decided to send a letter, signed by thirty prominent men and women from different parts of the State, holding divergent political beliefs, to virtually every registered voter of California. Recipients of the letters will be asked to state, first, whether they favor Hoover as the candidate of their party, and second, what is their party.

It is set forth in the letter that the signers are not launching a third-party movement.

GERMANY APPROVES HOOVER RELIEF PLAN

Will Remove All Import Duties and Needless Customs Formalities to Aid Food Distribution.

BERLIN, Jan. 21 (Associated Press). —The German Government in a statement issued tonight expresses unequivocal approval of the purposed plan of Herbert Hoover, Director General of the Interallied Relief Organization during the war, to establish American relief warehouses throughout Central Europe.

In order to facilitate the warehouse plan to the full extent of its ability, the Government declares it will not only remove all import duties, regulations and needless customs formalities, but also will afford the shipments special transportation facilities in Germany.

The Government points out the desirability of the Hoover plan, which would place its operation under the relief administration of the European Children's Fund, as the arrangement would permit of the purchase in the United States of food supplies in shipload lots, thereby insuring the lowest obtainable freight rates.

The statement also asserts that transportation of the relief commodities would take place under the watchfulness of the Hoover organization which, it is contended, would result in the safe delivery to recipients of the goods in a sound condition.

Issuance of the Government's statement was intended to counteract an alleged misunderstanding in the United States with respect to the Hoover plan. The Government expresses its acknowledgment to the American Society of Friends for its relief work among German children and promises this organization a full measure of assistance in the prosecution of its work.

WOMEN AND MASONS RESCUED FROM FIRE

Panic at Dance Caused by Blaze and Lodge Meeting Is Broken Up.

20 LEAP TO COURTYARD

Two Women Taken to Hospital—Candidates for Initiation, in Undress, Flee to Roof.

Twenty women trapped on the second floor of Harts Hall, 1,028 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, were compelled to jump to a rear courtyard, and several other men and women, who were attending functions in the building, were rescued by firemen and citizens when a fire last night partly destroyed this borough landmark. Two of the women suffered injuries which necessitated their removal to Bushwick Hospital.

On the second floor of the building seventy-five members and guests of Paul Revere and Fidelity Councils of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty were holding a dance. The lodge rooms on the floor above were occupied by Ridgewood Lodge of Masons, which was holding an initiation for six candidates. About seventy or eighty members were present.

The fire was discovered by Christopher Kaufman of 1,918 Linden Avenue, Brooklyn, who had been sent to escort the six candidates from an anteroom into the lodgeroom. As soon as he entered the main hallway he found clouds of smoke pouring up from below. Running back to his fellow-members he gave the alarm, and then ran to the floor underneath to notify the men and women attending the dance. Kaufman then tried to rush down to the first floor, but found the flames were shooting up from the basement, where the blaze originated.

When those who were on the second floor found their egress by way of the stairs was cutt off, a panic ensued and Kaufman, aided by other men, tried to quiet and direct them to the fire escape. The Masons went down the fire escape and assisted in getting the women out. The six candidates, who had divested themselves of their outer clothing preparatory to the initiation, found themselves in a predicament as they had no time to dress. They fled to the roof where they remained until the fire was over. No amount of persuasion on the part of their friends could induce them to forget their modesty. They later descended to the lodgeroom which was not touched by the fire.

Meanwhile, in the rear courtyard, firemen and citizens were trying to induce the panic-stricken women to come down the fire escape in an orderly manner. About twenty disregarded the pleas and jumped to the yard. Mrs. Eva De Milt of 106 Eighth Street, Flatbush, fell into an uncovered opening into the cellar when she jumped. She was rescued by Charles Bialdell, Treasurer of the Council, who descended into the blazing cellar by means of a rope tied around him and rescued her. Mrs. De Milt's right leg was broken and she was injured internally. Mrs. Elvira Lewis, whose address was not obtained, was also injured in leaping to the yard.

The fire, which did about $25,000 damage, was put out before it got above the first floor. Mayor Hylan for many years had his law office in Harts Hall. The building is owned, it was said, by James Hervey Hart, 87 years old, who recently was separated from his 18-year-old wife, a former manicurist.

Traffic in all directions was tied up for more than an hour by the fire. The blaze, which occurred just as the theatres in the vicinity were emptying, was witnessed by a crowd of several thousands. Two alarms were sent in.

NEW AIR POLICY IN EFFECT FOR ARMY

Under It Specific Functions Are Designated for Army, Navy and Marine Flying Corps.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Secretary Baker today put into effect so far as the army is concerned the new army-navy policy relating to aircraft which has been approved by the Joint Army and Navy Board on Aeronautics, as well as by Secretaries Baker and Daniels.

Under this policy aircraft to be used in wartime operations are to be designated army aircraft, navy aircraft and marine aircraft. Army aircraft will be provided by the War Department and manned only by army personnel. Navy aircraft will be provided by the Navy Department and manned by navy personnel. Marine aircraft will be provided by the Navy Department and manned by the marine air personnel, which is a branch of the Naval Air Service.

Specific functions have been mapped out for each of these branches of the Air Service. Army aircraft will carry out operations from bases on shore as an arm of the mobile army, or against enemy aircraft in defense of all shore establishments and also alone or in co-operation with other arms of the army, or with the navy, against enemy vessels engaged in attacks on the coast.

The function of navy aircraft will be to conduct operations from mobile floating bases or from naval air stations on shore, as an arm of the fleet, or for overseas scouting, as well as to protect coastal communications or operations against enemy establishments on shore when such operations are conducted in co-operation with other types of naval forces, or alone when their mission is primarily naval.

The functions normally assigned to army aircraft will be performed by the marine aircraft when the operations are in connection with an advance base in which operations of the army are not represented.

Princeton Men Hold Reception.

The New York Committee of the Princeton Endowment Fund, of which Moses Taylor Pyne is Chairman, gave a reception yesterday afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria for the fathers and mothers of Princeton men to meet President John Grier Hibben of the university and Mrs. Hibben. Subscriptions for New York have reached $1,874,042, which is approximately 40 per cent. of New York's quota of $4,600,000. Over 350 subscriptions have been received in the city, which is 12 per cent. of the 2,784 Princeton men residing in New York.

Sustains Baker's Stand on Pershing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Provisions in the Army Reorganization bill, as drafted by the Senate Military Sub-Committee, which would have the effect of making General Pershing Chief of Staff in place of General March, the present occupant, were tentatively eliminated today by the full Military Committee, which sustained recommendations by Secretary Baker.

WANTS SHIP BOARD ENDED FOR ECONOMY

McCumber Tells the Senate of Projects to Save a Total of $2,250,000,000.

WOULD DROP 50,000 CLERKS

Declares That Government Extravagance Causes the High Cost of Living.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Congress is rushing the country toward a "financial abyss, like a blind man rushing toward a precipice," Senator McCumber of North Dakota declared today in a speech to the Senate on governmental extravagance. This extravagance, he said, was the cause of the high cost of living, which, "when analyzed, means nothing more or less than that we are indulging in a wild orgy of spending borrowed money."

The Senator appealed to the Republican Party in Congress to effect real economy, which he said required "the use of saw and axe and not a manicure set" on appropriation bills. He suggested means by which he thought that $2,250,000,000 could be saved. Among his suggestions were the abolition at once of the Shipping Board and the discharging of 50,000 Government clerks.

He began by taking up the existing financial situation.

"We will start the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1921, with a deficit of more than $3,000,000,000," he said. "Our estimated expenditures in the Book of Estimates, incomplete but always below the actual amount expended, propose for our consideration an expenditure which, with the additional appropriations now being made, will not be less than $6,000,000,000. The total expenses to be met during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, would, therefore, be about $9,000,000,000.

"Where will we obtain the cash to meet this demand? Again we turn to the Book of Estimates for contemplated revenues. Including a return of $500,000,000 of capital stock of the Grain Corporation, the estimated revenue in round numbers totals $3,000,000,000. Assuming that we collect all this sum, and I doubt that very much, we would still have a deficit of about $3,000,000,000."

Analyzing expenditures in various departments, Senator McCumber declared that savings could be made of $300,000,000 in the Treasury Department; $447,000,000 by the abolition of the Shipping Board; $700,000,000 in the War Department; $140,000,000 by eliminating expenditures for public works under War Department supervision; $75,000,000 by eliminating good roads appropriations, and $60,000,000 by dispensing with 50,000 Government clerks.

MISSES' SPRING DRESSES

Be it of Tricotine Severe and Tailored, or Taffeta Frivolously Tucked and Frilled, the First Spring Frock Receives an Ovation.

THE first Spring frock is important—if added to being the first Spring frock, the frock is pretty, then there is little more to ask. The Individual Shop for Misses presents the first Spring dresses

To Match the Spirit of Spring
To Sum up the Mode of Smartness.

Almost all of these Spring dresses have short sleeves, some of them are saucy, some no less severely than cleverly tailored. There are little brocaded vests, perhaps, under bolero fronts of bebuttoned tricotine, or there are long braided panels of Poiret twill hanging coatwise over the skirt. The more formal frocks of silk are frilled, quilled, pleated, made with smart harem hems, finished with tassels, bright with ribbons, embroidered, or corded. Sizes 14 to 20 years.

ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA

When Cleopatra praised the delicacy of a supper given by Antony, he immediately called for the cook and presented him with a city.

When the modern Antony hears his Cleopatra praise the delicacy of a supper at CHILDS, he doesn't give the cook a city.

No, indeed! He presents his lady love with an engagement ring, in appreciation of her good taste in matters culinary.

Oysters were a supper delicacy then, as they are now—lightly breaded and fried to a golden brown.

7 TO 14 YEAR TERM FOR POLICE BURGLAR

Herman Crouse, Brooklyn Patrolman, Sentenced to Sing Sing Prison.

JUDGE DENOUNCES CRIME

Bennie Sternberg, Wanted in Same Case, Reported Caught in Canada.

Patrolman Herman Crouse of the Atlantic Avenue Station in Brooklyn, convicted of participating in the burglary at 715 Herkimer Street, when the firm of Starobin & Dubin, fur dealers, was robbed, must serve from seven and a half to fourteen years in Sing Sing Prison. Crouse was convicted on two counts, burglary in the third degree and grand larceny in the first degree. Justice Isaac M. Kapper, in the Supreme Court, yesterday sentenced him to serve from two and one-half to four and one-half years on the first count and from five to nine and one-half years on the second. The second term is to begin at the conclusion of the first.

William J. Fallon, counsel for the prisoner, asked for clemency on the ground that Crouse served five years in the United States Marine Corps during the Spanish-American War, in the Philippines and during the Boxer rebellion in China, and that he had been on the police force for fourteen years without a charge against him. District Attorney Harry E. Lewis called the attention of Justice Kapper to the testimony of witnesses who declared that Crouse was the ringleader of a burglar gang and stated that he believed Crouse was connected with many crimes other than that for which he was convicted.

Justice Kapper, in imposing sentence, said:

"It seems to me that the verdict in this case could not have been otherwise. The defendant, occupying the relation of a guardian of the peace, clothed in the uniform and under the oath of a member of the great police force of the City of New York, could not possibly be dealt with leniently by a Judge who was mindful of his obligations. There must of necessity, it seems to me, be dealt out to him a severe punishment. The only redeeming feature to me, in the entire case, is that he is not a native of the city, upon whose police force he pretended to serve and the uniform of which he has disgraced."

Upon motion of Mr. Fallon, Justice Kapper granted a stay, pending an application for a writ of reasonable doubt, which will be asked for that Crouse may be admitted to bail while an appeal is being taken.

Police headquarters learned by telegram last night that Bennie Sternberg of 628 Schenck Avenue, Brooklyn, had been arrested in Toronto, Canada, on a bench warrant charging him with complicity in the fur robbery and with acting as a go-between in the disposal of the furs. The police say Sternberg auctioned off all his furniture and personal effects and fled a few days after the crime. A detective has been hunting for him ever since he was implicated in the confessions which brought about indictments in the case. Sternberg was arrested as a suspect after Mrs. Elsie Lee Hilair was strangled to death in the Hotel Martinique in 1917 but later was set free. He has had other troubles with the police.

REPORT OF CREDIT HERE CAUSES JOY IN VIENNA

Chance of Getting $20,000,000 Is Welcomed as Showing Change in Our Attitude.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—A Havas dispatch received from Vienna today says an announcement of the opening of a credit of $20,000,000 by the United States for Austria has given the utmost satisfaction in the Austrian capital. The dispatch adds that the credit has not yet been accorded, but that in official circles it is stated the mere change in the official disposition of the United States toward Vienna constitutes a promise which is sufficient to permit of rejoicing over the event.

The dispatch quotes the Arbeiter Zeitung as saying: "The news of this credit is a ray of hope in our night of misery," and the Reichspost as declaring that the money ought to be employed in the economic reconstruction of Austria.

Deny Bond Issue for Allies' Loans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Treasury Department today denied a rumor, said to be current in Wall Street, that the $10,000,000,000 loan to the Allies would be converted into a bond issue, to be offered for public subscription. It was said that no such scheme was in contemplation. Albert Rathbun, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, is in Paris conferring with representatives of foreign Governments over the conversion of the loan of $9,600,000,000 to the Allies from demand notes into long-time paper.

GERMAN RECOGNITION IS URGED FOR IRELAND

Writer in Berlin Newspaper Says There Could Be No Objection Now with Treaty Ratified.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—A writer in the Deutsche Zeitung urges the German Government to recognize "the Irish Republic" at the earliest possible moment.

"As peace has been ratified," he adds, "there can be no objection to this, particularly as the voting in the Irish municipal elections proved the desire of the Irish to be an independent republic."

ZONE FARES PROFITABLE.

Connecticut Trolleys May Soon Be Paying Dividends Again.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 22.—Receipts under the zone trolley fare system have increased to such an extent that dividends for the Connecticut company may soon be resumed, the Public Utilities Commission was told by counsel for the company today.

The company answered opponents of the system who in regional hearings had protested against it. The zone system was adopted last Fall. The company said its receipts in December were $165,297 greater than in December, 1918, and the gross for fifteen days this month is $53,000 more than the same days in 1919. The day before Christmas riders paid within $1,000 of the highest figure of any working day in several years.

As to protests, the company said these came from sixteen towns with a population of 75,000, while forty-two with 660,000 in them indorsed the zone system.

AVERT ARKANSAS RACE RIOT.

Two Negroes Are Arrested and Troops Called In Return to Camp.

Special to The New York Times.

DUMAS, Ark., Jan. 22.—The danger of race riots in Desha County, Ark., following the forcible rescue by armed negroes of a negro prisoner from Deputy Sheriff J. H. Breedlove yesterday afternoon, passed today and Federal troops sent here from Camp Pike to handle the situation will return to Camp Pike tomorrow morning.

The soldiers left here this morning to search for the negroes responsible for the attack, but were halted by a civilian posse before they had reached the negro community with the information that two of the ringleaders had been arrested and that the others had escape across the Arkansas River and that no further trouble was feared.

Following a conference between Governor Brough and Major A. F. Prescott, Troop Commander, the detachment returned to Dumas. No further trouble is expected.

GIBBS AND MARTIN QUARREL IN COURT

Bronx County Judge Accuses the District Attorney of Intimidation.

"JEALOUS," MARTIN SAYS

Court Orders John Doe Inquiry in Morris Case, Alleging Flagrant Perjury.

Judge Louis D. Gibbs of the Bronx County Court and District Attorney Francis Martin of the Bronx clashed yesterday morning when the District Attorney appeared in response to the Judge's order that there be a John Doe investigation of alleged perjury in the trial of John Morris, an ex-policeman of 1,038 Boston Road, acquitted on Wednesday night before Judge Gibbs of a charge of robbery and immediately rearrested on a charge of bribery.

In directing Mr. Martin to appear before him, the Judge asserted that it appeared that "witnesses had been intimidated, coerced, and sweated," while Louis Fridiger, Morris's lawyer, asked that James Davey, son of the owner of a chain of grocery stores, he held for compounding a felony.

Morris, who was re-arrested on the charge that he paid a witness not to testify against him, admitted in court through his counsel that he made payments to the man he was accused of robbing, Louis Rausseau, a clerk in one of the Davey stores, but alleged that the payments followed threats by Rasseau to identify him positively otherwise.

After a few preliminary hostilities between the court and the District Attorney, Judge Gibbs said:

"I asked, ordered, or directed you to appear here, it makes no difference to me which you call it, because it appears that three witnesses in this case have committed perjury of the rankest and most flagrant type, and one witness compounded a felony, or attempted to compound a felony."

"If this is a John Doe proceeding," the District Attorney replied, "I want a complaint or affidavit. I want it done in a lawful manner. I am going to bring this to the attention of the New York City Bar Association and, if necessary, to the Governor. There has been influence used in this case from almost the beginning. These statements come out of the mouth of Morris, a scoundrel, perjurer, robber and briber. I will take the whole matter before the Grand Jury."

"I am not to be intimidated by threats," replied Judge Gibbs. "If influence has been used, you may know more about it than I do. Furthermore, you have no right to refer to Morris as a robber—he has been acquitted by a jury of twelve men. You have been threatening and intimidating a great many others in this county, but you cannot succeed with me. You attempted to intimidate the late Justice Brady and ohers."

Mr. Martin asked the court if he had been "brought down here to be insulted."

"I tell you here," said Judge Gibbs, "that the charges made by witnesses, if true, are a disgrace to the administration of justice in this county, and I repeat it, this court will treat all with courtesy as long as they conduct themselves as lawyers should, but it will not tolerate violent threats."

"Don't make any wild statements for the newspapers," said Mr. Martin. "We want the facts."

"You threatened Magistrate McGeehan," shouted Justice Gibbs, reverting to his charges of intimidation.

"Where and when?" asked Mr. Martin. "Give the facts."

"And it is a notorious fact," continued the Judge, "that you have threatened persons with Grand Jury investigation."

"Was that another statement for the newspapers?" asked Mr. Martin.

"You insulted Justice George V. Mullan of the Supreme Court," asserted Judge Gibbs.

"You brought me here to abuse me," protested Mr. Martin. "Now either prove the charges you made last night or make a statement that they are not so."

Mr. Martin reminded Judge Gibbs that he had watched the Morris trial closely, and said that he had thought two or three days ago of taking the suspected perjury up with the Grand Jury.

"I know," responded the Judge, "you have your eagle eye on everything. You seem to think that the Grand Jury is for your personal convenience."

"This is a matter of jealousy," retorted the District Attorney, hotly. "You have been trying to get the Grand Jury for yourself for years. You have tried to take away the duties of the Sheriff and the County Clerk for having a bill passed at Albany—"

The Court interrupted, and the District Attorney again insisted that charges be drawn up in a regular complaint.

Judge Gibbs said he did not intend to take any suggestions in the matter and Mr. Martin remarked that it was the first time he had been in the court for months.

"I don't care if you never come into this court," replied Judge Gibbs.

Mr. Martin then asked that Judge Gibbs be a complainant in the case, but the Judge replied that if he was to be a complainant it would be in a higher tribunal.

"You are not above the law," concluded the Judge, "so be careful of the statements you make."

When an Assistant District Attorney asked yesterday that the hearing of Morris be adjourned in Magistrate's Court Mr. Fridiger objected, insisting that a full complaint be drawn up and hearing proceeded with immediately, but the court overruled him.

MARSHALL FIELD TAKES CHARGE OF BIG ESTATE

Young Heir Won Respect of Fellow Clerks During Apprenticeship in Bond House.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Captain Marshall Field today took charge of the Field estate of $120,000,000, of which he is the chief heir.

For the last three months he has been employed in the office of Lee, Higginson & Co. here to learn the bond business. His fellow clerks said Field was a "regular fellow," who could make a living if he didn't have a cent to start with.

Captain Field was elected President of "Community Service," which was established in Chicago at a meeting held at the Union League Club today, and tomorrow will take up active work of promoting Americanism, which is the main purpose of the organization. Captain Field declared that the Community Service was one medium by which the problem created by the abolition of the saloon would be solved.

Planning a Hunter Memorial.

On the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Hunter College for Women of the City of New York, Sixty-eighth Street and Park Avenue, the Alumni Association is planning to raise $150,000 for a memorial hall to Thomas Hunter, according to announcement made yesterday. The new building will be named Alumnae Hall. Louis Marshall, in memory of his wife, has pledged a contribution of 10 per cent. of whatever amount is raised for the building. Mrs. John R. Sim is Chairman of the Graduate Gift Committee of Hunter College, whose offices are at Sixty-eighth Street and Park Avenue.

TORTURE IN MILITARY PRISON IS CHARGED

National Civil Liberties Bureau Says Conscientious Objectors Are Cruelly Treated.

The National Civil Liberties Bureau issued the following statement last night:

"Iron torture chambers have been introduced by Col. R. D. Johnson, executive officer at Alcatraz Island, San Francisco, in which conscientious objectors imprisoned on the island are placed.

"Information of this atrocity was received by the National Civil Liberties Bureau, 41 Union Square, from officials of the Labor Defense League of San Francisco. Albert DeSilver, director of the National Civil Liberties Bureau, left for Washington immediately upon receipt of this information to see Secretary of War Baker, who had ordered the abolition of various forms of torture in the military prisons.

"Robert Simmons, a conscientious objector to war, serving a ten-year sentence, after being kept in solitary confinement was transferred to the latest torturing device, in which he is at present kept, unable to sit down, lie down, or fully stand. It is practically an iron strait-jacket, into which the prisoner is squeezed. The walls are iron, with the top consisting of a number of iron bars. The dimensions of this torture chamber are 6 feet high, 23 inches in length, and 1 foot wide. It is absolutely dark inside, the only air obtainable being from the top of the cage.

"Four of these iron cages were manufactured in the prison machine shop by order of Colonel Johnson. It is believed that they will be used for four conscientious objectors, known as 'absolutists,' those who absolutely refuse to connect themselves in any way with military requirements.

"The four 'absolutists' are Simmons, who is at present confined; Grosser, Rodolph and Dart. Dart, it is significant, had served his sentence, but despite the requests that he be released since his time had expired, was kept at Alcatraz. He refused to work because his time had expired, for which he was retried and sentenced to serve an additional year.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—Iron cages so constructed that the occupant is compelled to stand are used at the Alcatraz Island Disciplinary Barracks impartially as discipline for all prisoners who refuse to work and only during working hours, Colonel J. B. McDonald, commandant of the prison, said in commenting on charges of the National Civil Liberties Bureau that conscientious objectors were being confined in "torture chambers."

All prisoners sent to the barracks are sentenced to labor, he said, and when they refuse they are compelled to stand up during the seven-hour working day. This form of discipline, he said, was in use in many prisons. He said the charge that the medical needs of prisoners were ignored was false.

The Government Offers Flour Users an Unusual Chance to Purchase Pure Wheat Flour At a Great Saving

The cost of most staple foodstuffs showed material reductions during the past week, as compared with the corresponding week a year ago.

But the cost of Pure Wheat Flour was one food that showed an increase.

As a result the Government purchased about a half million barrels of pure wheat flour.

Macy's ever ready to co-operate with the Government in its effort to relieve the stress of living expense, has secured through the Flour Division of the United States Grain Corporation of this standard pure wheat flour, which will be ready for distribution beginning to-day at these welcome prices—

147,000 Pounds

12-lb. Bag, 71c
24½-lb. Bag, $1.39

This flour costs much less than high patent flours, and the housewife realizes now that this flour makes delicious biscuits and pastry and good bread. It is not a substitute nor is it a "War" or "Victory" flour.

It works easily, rises quickly and produces a loaf of bread of good color and superior texture. For pastries, biscuits and cakes no flour makes a more delicate or tender crust and crumb.

WHOSE HAT WILL COVER A PRESIDENT?

Every editor looks for kaleidoscopic changes this Political year.

—And accurate news upon political subjects is of the utmost importance in holding the interest and confidence of readers.

There will be the usual crop of "roorbacks," rumors, colored or false reports.

Special correspondents and press agents will "keep their finger upon the public pulse," will give grave counsel from swivel chairs—hundreds or thousands of miles distant from scenes of action.

But this is not the year for that sort of Political News.

For there have been few years when the "average citizen" has been so interested or so affected by the political situation.

The Press has a duty to perform.

Through unproved charge and unretracted countercharge the average citizen feels he has lost his perspective on "Public Men."

Just as many public men have come to feel that integrity is no defence,—that facts play but a small part in attacks made upon them.

There are sincere men in every party and this is no time to be anything but sincere Americans.

It required a World War to awaken us, as a whole, to the fact that without a sense of individual responsibility to the Community, State and Nation, there can be no representative government.

The people want facts; they deserve them—they have earned them.

The New York Evening Post is independent, neither for any party nor against any party. It is for the United States—and against anything subversive of its best interests.

The addition of features in accordance with "Post Quality" is no easy matter.

The selection of a man to cover the Political Year—to swing twice around the circle from coast to coast, to attend Conventions and Presidential Primaries State by State is not an easy task.

But to select a man so sincere, so well qualified, so dependable that the New York Evening Post could say, "Go to it, you have no instructions save to be independent and to give the best there is in you"—that man must be a man indeed.

—And he is just such a man. His ability, his vision, his knowledge of human reactions and twenty years of Political study are coupled with unquestionable sincerity, plus 100 per cent. of rugged Americanism.

Mark Sullivan needs no introduction to any circle of American readers—from Maine to California.

The management of the Post is glad to let the engagement of Mark Sullivan be taken as an indication of intention.

An indication of intention to hold and merit a foremost place in public confidence—"A Newspaper You Can Trust".

Edwin F. Gay
President New York Evening Post, Inc.

The first dispatch from Mr. Sullivan appears to-morrow—and two or three times a week thereafter.

JURY CALLS HYLAN TO TELL OF 'BRIBE'

Wants to Know Origin of His Hint of $32,000 Distribution in the Rothstein Case.

SWOPE PROVES AN ALIBI

Others Indicated in Mayor's Letter Make Denials—Inspector Henry Subpoenaed.

Mayor Hylan and Police Inspector Dominick Henry will be called before the Extraordinary Grand Jury today to tell what they know about a letter written by the Mayor to Police Commissioner Enright asking an investigation of a report that a $32,000 bribe had been distributed among Herbert Bayard Swope of The New York World, and "an Assistant District Attorney and an ex-City Magistrate." The bribe was alleged in the Mayor's letter to have been paid after an indictment had been dismissed against Arnold Rothstein, who had been arrested with nineteen others in a raid on an alleged gambling place in West Fifty-seventh Street. None of the witnesses examined by the jury yesterday was able to show any foundation of fact for the bribe story. It is proposed to ask the Mayor for the source of his information on the subject.

The Mayor's letter to Police Commissioner Enright was among others subpoenaed by the jury from municipal offices, including the letter-files of the Mayor. It was written in March. The raid, in which two of Henry's detectives were shot, took place on Jan. 19, 1919. The assailants of the officers were not identified among those arrested.

Police Commissioner Enright told the jury he had concluded his investigation and had not discovered any evidence to support the allegation of bribery or the distribution of any money in connection with the Rothstein case. District Attorney Swann made a similar statement. The Mayor had mentioned one name only in his letter of the three persons referred to as participating in the alleged bribe, that of Mr. Swope, but the other two persons who felt that they had been indicated voluntarily appeared and defended themselves.

With documentary evidence to support his statement Mr. Swope proved to the jury that he was in Europe from December, 1918, to Sept. 19, 1919, long before the beginning of the Rothstein case and many months after it had been disposed of. Mr. Swope said he had known Rothstein in the same way that he knew a number of men along Broadway, but had absolutely no knowledge of anything concerning the matter. Outside of the Grand Jury room Mr. Swope said:

"The whole story regarding me is utterly false. I was in France, in the service of my paper, The New York World, from Dec. 1, 1918, until September, 1919. Previously I had been in Washington, from November, 1917, the greater part of the time in Government service. The Rothstein shooting occurred in January, 1919, and the trial or dismissal of the indictment took place in June, 1919. I asked to go before the jury to scotch this lie and to brand the liars, whoever they may be, and to ask satisfaction for this criminal libel."

Ex-City Magistrate Emil Fuchs, who appeared to testify but will be heard today, said to newspaper men: "The Mayor should be man enough to come out and say he was mistaken."

Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, who prosecuted the Rothstein case, and who had been active for several years in the District Attorney's office as the director of gambling and vice raids, went before the jury ten days ago and said that the reference to an assistant prosecutor in the bribe rumor evidently was directed at him. He then declared the rumored charge to be false and malicious. Ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, with whom Smith worked when Whitman was District Attorney, told the jury that Smith had waged fearless war on gamblers and other offenders, and declared that Smith's honesty and integrity was such as to inspire confidence.

Assistant District Attorney Smith issued a typewritten statement in which he said:

"The statement contained in the letter written by the Mayor is absolutely false and was known by the Mayor to be false at the time it was written. Inspector Henry could possibly give some information to the Mayor, if he wished, as to why sufficient evidence was not obtained to secure the conviction of the man who fired the shots."

The two detectives who were injured in the raid, McLaughlin and Walsh, will be among the witnesses questioned today.

Arnold Rothstein told the jury that he had not paid a dollar to secure any influence or aid, other than legal counsel, to defend him from the charge of felonious assault. It was said that Inspector Henry had told the Mayor of the bribe rumor. Inspector Hehry, who sent word to the jury that he was sick, was again subpoenaed to appear today to tell the origin of the story or to say where he got his information.

Skolny Clothes

Half-Yearly Sale!

Suits and Overcoats

Amid all the clatter about high prices we are glad to announce very substantial reductions.

However, the reductions are not made in response to the clatter. They are the normal effects of our policy.

When buying for Fall and Winter we had no way of knowing how many Suits and Overcoats our public would absorb.

The power to limit purchases to the actual needs of a retail clothing store would revolutionize business.

Distribution is largely guesswork. The best judgment is merely conjectural. It's all a matter of surmise.

That's because weather, financial, social, political, labor and health conditions affect the distribution of clothing.

The Suits and Overcoats involved in our present offerings represent the garments we bought in excess of our seasonal needs.

For us to hold them to sell at regular prices next Fall would be contrary to sound business practice.

They are unsold balances, residuums, surpluses, and the mathematics of merchandising justify clearing them out at revised prices.

All Colors and Sizes, in All Materials and at Each Price

UNCOMMONLY beautiful coats of Velour de Laine and Silvertone, appropriate for outdoor Winter occasions, that find expression through the grace of exquisite tailoring and the appeal of rich fabric, with now and then a collar of luxurious fur, or one wrought in self material, sounding a note of individuality.

Reduced to 35.00

UNUSUALLY becoming coats for daytime wear, fashioned of Evora, Silvertip Bolivia and Velour de Laine, in the favored midwinter styles and especially noticeable for the beautiful collars formed of Taupe Nutria, Squirrel and Raccoon, that convey in unmistakable terms the sense of cozy warmth and luxurious charm.

Reduced to 75.00

INEXPRESSIBLY smart coats of the moment, simply tailored and yet essentially feminine, very welcome during the chill Winter months, the richness of Vellouise, Peach Bloom, Crystal Cord and Bolivia combining uniquely with collars of Squirrel, Taupe Nutria and Raccoon in achieving garments of irreproachable vogue and distinction.

Reduced to 110.00

EXTREMELY elaborate coats for town and country, having the advantage of graceful collars and cuffs of Squirrel, Beaver, Taupe Nutria and Australian Opossum, cleverly combined with Vellouise, Evora, Velour de Laine, Silvertip Bolivia, Bokhara, Bolivia and Frost Glo in producing garments that insure success with fashionable women of taste.

Reduced to 150.00

Reductions In Fur-Trimmed Suits That Are Extraordinary

THE mode is always partial to the tailleur, especially those favored types that are smart but simple of line, as in these models of Velour de Laine, Yalama and Tricotine, shown in all sizes for women and misses, with collars and occasionally wide bands of Squirrel and Taupe Nutria adding the final touch.

A Number of Models Reduced to 65.00

AN exceptionally striking effect is given to the tailored suits of Bolivia, Peach Bloom and Velour de Laine, shown in all sizes for women and misses, by original trimmings of Squirrel, Beaver and Taupe Nutria that emphasize the possibilities of achieving apparel dainty and stylish yet practical for Winter.

Frocks That Announce The Coming of The Spring Modes

The Values Are Most Extraordinary

A GLIMPSE of the Spring fashions indicates an inclination for infinite variety in decorative treatment, as revealed in such quaint conceits as billowy ruffles, rich gold thread embroidery and unusual draperies that enhance the frocks of Taffeta Silk and are foreshadowed in the beaded costumes of Georgette. A wide variety of stunning models are executed in Tricotine.

Very Specially Priced 30.00

THE penchant for the elaborate, already evident in the Spring modes, is accentuated in these early frocks of beaded Georgette, in the exquisitely embroidered dresses of Tricotine, in those of Taffeta silk, with their novel pleatings and ruffles, and in the day and evening costumes of Satin, featuring draped effects and the new Harem skirt.

Very Specially Priced 50.00

THE newest and most attractive Spring frocks are those developed in Crepe Meteor, Satin and Georgette, that find satisfying completeness in lace collars, girdles of contrasting silk, elaborations in the way of beadwork, in dazzling color combinations of Crystal, Sphinx, Iridescent and Shell effects and other style innovations.

Very Specially Priced 75.00

A DELIGHTFUL note of early Spring is expressed in the frocks of Crepe Georgette, with the delicate beauty of this exquisite fabric emphasized by touches of wonderful charm, sometimes in the form of the smart accordion pleated skirt, but more often by glistening gold thread embroidery or lovely bead work.

INDUSTRIAL COURTS PROPOSED IN SENATE

Kenyon Resolution Asks the President to Form a National Labor Board at Once.

THEN CALL LABOR CONGRESS

This Would Recommend a Code to be Applied to All Industrial Disputes by Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. — Senator Kenyon, Iowa, today introduced a resolution proposing that Congress recommend to the President that he immediately constitte a National Labor Board and later call a National Industrial Congress, as a means of bringing about "industrial peace and prosperity to all our people."

The function of the Labor Board, as defined in the Kenyon resolution, would be "to pass upon industrial disputes, pending the action of a National Industrial Congress." Senator Kenyon suggested that the board be modeled upon the War Labor Board, and function under the same principles and precedents.

"It shall receive for adjudication either ex parte complaints or joint submissions from employers and employes."

The resolution provides, "or it may institute proceedings in any controversy on its own motion, or at the direction of Congress or the President. It shall establish in the leading industries joint boards for the adjustment of labor disputes and for such other purposes as it may deem proper for the advancement of industrial peace and the public welfare."

Following the temporary work of the board, Senator Kenyon would have the industrial conference devise a permanent plan for adjustment of labor disputes and recommend to Congress the necessary legislation for creation of labor courts.

The Congress, he suggested, should be composed of 150 delegates representing employers, the same number representing employes, and fifty delegates representing the general public. The resolution provides for the selection of these delegates so that every branch of industry shall be represented. Members of the Industrial Conference recently called by President Wilson would act as a committee or organization, under the resolution.

Senator Kenyon in presenting his resolution said:

"I intended to introduce this resolution some time ago, but waited for the recommendation of the present Industrial Conference. It is not intended at all as critical of the work or recommendation of this conference. I believe, as suggested by them, that some form of industrial court is necessary. In the introduction of their report they say:

"'The right relationship between employer and employe in large industries can only be promoted by the deliberate organization of that relationship.'

"That states the question I am trying to get at in this resolution. I assume the industrial conference will later enunciate their view as to how this organization of relationship between employer and employe is to be accomplished. I fail to see just how we can have industrial courts without an industrial code which shall set forth the fundamentals as to 'the right relationship between employer and employe.' You could not well have a Congress without a Constitution or courts without a code; likewise how can you have industrial courts without an industrial code? If employer and employe could get together and agree on an industrial code recognizing the eight-hour day, a living wage, the right of collective bargaining, and other fundamental matters, then disputes over these fundamentals could be taken care of in the industrial courts. It seems to me we must solve this fundamental relationship before courts will be of practical value."

CHARGES DRIVE ON REDS IS A POLITICAL BY-PLAY

President of Dartmouth Says It Is to Aid Palmer's Aspirations—Criticises Russian Policy.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 22.—President Ernest Hopkins of Dartmouth College, addressing alumni here last night, declared that "the present activity against alien radicals in this country is purely political by-play to enhance the political aspirations of the Attorney General."

Dr. Hopkins arraigned the Government campaign against the Bolsheviki and other radicals, and supplemented it with criticism of the policy of the United States toward Russia.

"Certain people," he said, "are attempting to make a reputation for conservatism. As a result their censorship and propaganda have been actively at work to such an extent that freedom of thought and speech, such as the Constitution of the United States expressly guarantees, are impossible."

President Hopkins declared that many of the war powers granted the Government were still being exercised and that the country was living in a period of censorship. "I have every reason to believe, although I cannot prove it, that letters sent me from Russia have been withheld," he said, "and I am very sure also that letters to others have not been delivered. Men who have come back from Russia have said that the allied blockade is starving hundreds of Russians who have nothing to do with the Soviet Government. England has had her eyes opened in this matter before the United States."

NEEDS OF NEAR EAST TOLD.

Relief Chairman States $30,000,000 Is Required to Aid People.

To save millions in Western Asia from starvation $30,000,000 is needed in addition to the $33,000,000 already expended, Dr. James L. Barton, Chairman of the Near East Relief, told that organization at its annual meeting in the University Club last night. The organization now is operating 196 orphanages, 54 relief stations, 44 hospitals, and 16 homes for women rescued from Moslem harems, as well as a number of industrial plants employing natives, whose handiwork was on exhibition at the meeting.

A report was presented from Colonel William N. Haskell, High Commissioner for the allied powers and representative of the organization in the Trans-Caucasus, showing that thousands of homeless children and 800,000 adults in that region alone need the help of American philanthropy. The Secretary's report showed the large number of persons engaged in relief work, and that if the general campaign director dwelt upon the widespread organization in this country and Canada.

Secretary of War Baker sent a letter in which he said, now that the Red Crosshad relinquished this field to the Near East Relief, the problem was up to that organization; and he knew of no language strong enough to state adequately the needs of the stricken people at this time.

GIVES INSIDE VIEW OF WORKER'S MIND

Steel Official Labors with the Men to Learn What They Think and Say.

FINDS CAUSES OF UNREST

Director of Personnel Says Radicals Among Workers Are In a Small Minority.

In an effort to discover the causes of the present industrial unrest, Whiting Williams, Director of Personnel of the Hydraulic Pressed Steel Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, left his desk and for seven months worked as a laborer in the steel mills, coal mines, and on ore dumps. Speaking yesterday at a luncheon of the Advertising Club, 47 East Twenty-fifth Street, Mr. Williams told of three things on the worker's mind, which, he believed, were the primary causes of the discontent.

These, he said, were "the pre-eminent importance of holding a job; the terrible danger of being forced into joblessness; the unholy alliance between tiredness and temper, between fatigue of body and mind, which gives opportunity for agitators to work upon the feelings and sensibilities of the worker, and the almost complete ignorance of the average worker as to the plans, purposes, ideals, and character of his employer.

"The worker is told little or nothing of these things. As a result, he uses his head and makes deductions. He sees prodigal waste of materials about the shop, perhaps, and decides: 'This company cares for nothing but big money. What do my small wages matter?' And he proceeds to 'soldier' on the job. The longer I worked in the mills the less I did, because of the 'underground' instructions, a tap on the shoulder, with such behests as, 'Lots of time,' 'Take it easy,' 'Don't kill yourself,' 'Twelve hours,' etc. The ignorance of the worker regarding the company's principles and purposes, the result of lack of interest by the company in its workers, causes lack of interest on the part of the workers, which costs the company money in inefficient work.

"It is a mistake to conclude that all workers are radicals. The latter are a small minority, but they have a lead on the employer group, chiefly because they have been industriously engaged in putting salt on the raw spots among the workers, thus taking advantage of idleness, fatigue, and soreness.

AGAINST PROMOTING WOOD.

Baker Says General Is One of Several with Distinguished Record.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Secretary Baker wrote Chairman Kahn of the House Military Affairs Committee today disapproving the promotion of Major Gen. Leonard Wood to the grade of Lieutenant General, as proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Dyer, Republican, of Missouri.

The letter showed that Representative Kahn had transmitted a copy of the Dyer bill to Mr. Baker for recommendation, but the only comment made by the Secretary beyond expressing his disapproval of the proposal was the following:

"General Wood is one of a number of officers of the regular army of long and distinguished service."

2 SAVED AT SEA, 5 MISSING.

Members of Wrecked Schooner's Crew Picked Up from Deckhouse.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—The rescue of two survivors and the probable loss of five other members of the crew of the schooner Gortyuva, was reported by the steamer Nashotah, in a wireless message today.

The survivors, John Murd, the mate, and Michael Esterly, cook, were picked up from the top of the floating deckhouse of their craft. They said, according to the radiogram, that their vessel had been wrecked thirty miles south of the position where they were found—32:40 north, latitude, 53:54 west longitude—on the the morning of Jan. 17, they expressed belief that their five mates lost their lives. The schooner, which is not listed in any registry available here, was said to have been bound from Charleston, S. C., for Huelva, Spain.

PLAN TO BRING BACK PARTY CONVENTIONS

Republicans Will Introduce Bills at Albany to Restore State and Judiciary Meetings.

HOPE TO WIN GOVERNOR

Restoration of Conventions Might Rid the Republicans of Tangle Over Candidates.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 23.—Restoration of the old-time State and Judiciary nominating conventions will again be sought by the Republican majority in the Legislature in bills to be introduced next week.

Party leaders of the Republicans have been feeling out public sentiment on this question for the last two years, and, with the present candidacy tangle for Governor on their hands, they believe the best solution to be found is the convention system. The three-headed fight among factions supporting Speaker Sweet, Secretary of State Hugo and State Controller Travis for the Governorship has led the majority party in the Legislature to renew its demands for abolition of the primary system.

The restoration of party convention bills will be introduced by Senator Charles W. Walton of Kingston and Assemblyman George R. Fearon of Syracuse, sponsors for a similar measure offered in the Legislature last year, which never saw light of day. The bills will provide for the selection at the primaries of delegates to the State and Judiciary conventions to be held in September.

There is a referendum on the subject provided by terms of the measures in order to win Governor Smith over to their support. The referendum would be put up to the people for decision at a special election to be held in April.

Governor Smith has expressed opposition to any interference with the present direct primary laws, but the Republican majority believe he would favor a change in the sytem if the matter was placed before the electorate for decision.

Assemblyman George E. D. Brady, Republican, of Erie, today introduced a bill to extend the workmen's compensation law to occupational diseases which was recommended by both Governor Smith and Speaker Sweet. It contains a schedule of twenty-four occupational diseases for which compensation may be had.

The Industrial Commission and Council may consider changes or additions to this schedule which may be recommended to the Legislature after hearings in at least four of the principal cities of the State. Compensation is to be paid only when the disease is due to the nature of the employment and was contracted twelve months previous to the date of disablement.

The State is to be divided into districts for which one or more physicians may be selected for the purpose of examination of any workman on request. Provision is made for a medical referee to be appointed by the State Commissioner of Health.

The first bill passed by the 1920 Legislature, a measure introduced by Assemblyman Daniel P. Witter of Tioga, appropriating $241,000 to be distributed by the Commissioner of Agriculture to certain counties from which the State received license fees for dogs, was signed by Governor Smith today.

JOHNSON PICKS A MANAGER.

Will Open Headquarters Here for Presidential Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Senator Hiram Johnson of California, tonight announced the immediate opening of Eastern headquarters in New York, from which will be directed contests to obtain for him State delegates to the Republican National Convention.

Mr. Johnson has selected Angus McSween, Washington correspondent of The Philadelphia North American, as the manager in the East of his campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination. In a statement issued tonight, Senator Johnson said:

"Wherever there is an opportunity to obtain a decision by the people, there we will have a fight for the Republican delegates. Already in many of the States, where the rank and file of the Republican party have the right of selection, contests are under way, and Mr. McSween will direct organizations in every State with real primaries.

"I am leaving Sunday for Missouri and thereafter will go through the Middle Western States and into the Dakotas. On my return I shall go into New Jersey and other Eastern States."

Woman Joins Lowden's Committee.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns of Chicago was appointed today to take charge of the women's work in the campaign of Governor Frank O. Lowden for the Republican nomination for President. Mrs. Dobyns has been Chairman of the Illinois Republican Women's Executive Committee since July.

THREATENS SHOE INDUSTRY

Wood Heel Strike at Haverhill, Mass., Affects 37 Plants.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Jan. 22.—The strike of wood heel makers here, which has been in progress several weeks, owing to rejection by the manufacturers of price lists prepared by the union, now threatens to tie up the shoe industry of the city.

Several hundred more workers were called out today, bringing the number of strikers to 1,100.

Every wood heel plant in the city, numbering thirty-seven, is affected. Already 2,000 shoe workers have been laid off because of the wood heel shortage.

TELLS JERSEYMEN NOT TO PAY N. Y. TAX

Attorney General Urges Trans-Hudson Residents to Protest if Employers Deduct.

WILL FIGHT FOR REFUND

Decision to Test Case Now in U. S. Supreme Court Awaited—Many Complaints Received.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 22.—Following many complaints from New Jersey residents affected by the New York income tax that in spite of the decision of Federal Judge Knox, in the New York District, that the tax law is unconstitutional in so far as it applies to New Jersey citizens, their employers are deducting the amount of the tax from their salaries, Attorney General McCran declared today that New Jersey residents should not pay the tax or allow deductions except under protest.

He asks that all Jersey citizens affected by the tax communicate with him and if the law is declared unconstitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court where it is now pending, legal means will be taken to compel a refund of the money collected from New Jersey residents. Mr. McCran issued the following statement:

"New Jersey residents employed in New York State should not pay the New York income tax or permit deductions to be made from their salaries, except under formal protest. This protest should be addressed to the person to whom the money is paid or to the employer who deducts and withholds the amount claimed as a tax.

"In all other cases no return is required to be filed before March 15, and New Jersey residents should not file returns at this time.

"The New York Income Tax act has been declared to be unconstitutional by the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. The State of New York appealed from the decision of Judge Knox and the case, on appeal, was argued before the United States Supreme Court at Washington, on Monday, Dec. 15. In this appeal the State of New Jersey was represented and filed a brief on behalf of our citizens. Every endeavor is being made to protect residents of this State from the unjust New York act.

"I have asked, and I again urge all citizens of New Jersey affected by this law to communicate with me. In the event of the act being declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court legal means will be taken to compel a refund of sums unjustly collected from our citizens."

NEGRO ON BOARD, TWO QUIT.

Educators' Resignations Follow Appointment by Camden Mayor.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Dr. Clement T. Branch, a negro, was appointed a member of the Camden Board of Education by Mayor Ellis last Monday. He is the first negro member. That night Dr. E. Read, President of the board for many years, resigned.

Today Harry C. Dole, for eleven years a member, sent his resignation to the Mayor. Dr. Charles P. Tuttle, another member, today said: "I have also been considering the matter of resigning."

Unconfirmed rumors were current tonight that other members are also contemplating sending their resignations to the Mayor.

Dr. Branch said he would not decline to serve on the board because his presence was objected to. Mayor Ellis is out of the city.

In their resignations neither Mr. Read nor Mr. Dole gave as the reason the naming of a negro on the board. Mr. Dole assigned his health and "other reasons" as the cause for his resignation, while Mr. Read said his business duties were pressing.

Those who object to the appointment do so on the ground that the Mayor had not consulted with the members of the board. They allege the appointment was purely political and that the retirement of William J. Fox was forced to make a place for Dr. Branch, who has taken an active part in Seventh Ward politics.

TOWBOAT STRIKE STILL ON.

Twenty-five Crews Return, but Nearly 400 Vessels Are Tied Up.

The strike of tow-boat men was continued yesterday, with little apparent change. Members of the New York Tow-boat Exchange, 11 Broadway, reported yesterday that the number of boats tied up because of the action of the Harbor Boatmen's Union was reduced by twenty-five yesterday. Frederick A. Russell, Chairman of the New York Arbitration Board and President of the exchange, said that no strike-breakers had been employed to take these boats out and that they were manned by their old crews.

Arthur Olsen, Chairman of the Strike Committee of the union, said the situation was precisely as it was on Wednesday. He estimated from 300 to 400 tug-boats were tied up in New York harbor. Mr. Olsen said there was soon to be a conference between his union and the Master, Mates, and Pilots Association, with the object of gaining the co-operation of the association with the union in the present strike.

H. Pollock, Marine Director of the United States Railroad Administration, said yesterday that foodstuffs and coal continued to arrive without interference by the strikers. Boats operated by the railroads are not involved in the strike.

PRISON FOR COURT CLERK.

Case Resulted from Inquiry Into Shoplifter's Fraudulent Release.

Hugh S. Doyle, 35 years old, who had been employed seventeen years in Special Sessions as messenger and clerk, was yesterday sentenced to serve not less than five years and not more than nine years and six months in Sing Sing Prison, for second degree forgery. He was accused of passing forged checks upon merchants in the vicinity of the Criminal Courts Building, where he was well known, but an investigation started by Justice Kernochan concerning the alterations of Special Sessions Court records, which resulted in the release of women shoplifters without trial brought about the arrest and prosecution.

Some of the released women fled to other cities and are out of the jurisdiction of the court. The falsifying of the court records made it appear that these women had been freed or suspended sentence, whereas the court and Justices had made no disposa of their cases. Doyle admitted some complicity in this mutilation of the records, but the investigation has not disclosed the others.

ASKS MONDELL'S SUPPORT.

War Training Association Pleads Economy of Universal Service.

That a system of universal military training would be a great economy to America is the belief of the Military Training Camps Association. In a telegram sent Representative Mondell last night the association asks his support of a program of universal military training on the ground that besides its many advantages it will not cost so much as a large professional army, which will be needed if we do not have universal military training.

"A large professional army tends to militarism. A citizen army is democratic and American," the telegram added.

Carnegie Hall Meeting Canceled.

James W. Gerard, Chairman of the American Committee for the Independence of Armenia, announced yesterday the cancellation of the mass meeting, which was to be held under the auspices of that committee this evening at Carnegie Hall. It was planned to urge the Administration to prevent the division of Armenia.

BISHOP WRITES DR. GRANT.

Will Not Send Letter Until Rector Recovers from Illness.

Bishop Charles Sumner Burch said last night that he had written a letter to Dr. Percy Stickney Grant in regard to the minister's recent radical utterances, which he is withholding because of the rector's severe illness.

"I have not sent the letter yet," said Bishop Burch, "because Dr. Grant is a very sick man. You may draw your own conclusions as to the nature of it. I am keeping in daily touch with Dr. Grant, and as soon as he is well enough to receive my letter I shall send it."

The Bishop's communication, he stated, is in response to one received from the rector a week ago defending his position. Bishop Burch would not make his reply public, confining himself to the strong inference that the tone of the letter renders its receipt by a sick person unwise.

"We must be fair," he concluded, "and treat Dr. Grant as we would any other sick man."

Bishop Burch has not altered the attitude he took at the beginning of the situation. At that time he told the press that Dr. Grant "must be loyal," and that he would not be permitted to use his pulpit for expressing opinions subversive of law and order.

Dr. Grant is said to be not dangerously ill, but suffering from a painful abscess.

MAYOR STAYS LIBEL SUIT.

Schieffelin Ordered to Show Cause for Hylan's Examination.

Clarence M. Lewis of Seligsberg, Lewis & Strouse, 43 Cedar Street, attorneys for William J. Schieffelin in his libel suit against Mayor Hylan, issued the following statement yesterday:

"On Jan. 14, Justice Vernon M. Davis issued an order requiring Mayor Hylan to appear for examination before trial on Jan. 23. The order was served on Mayor Hylan and on the Corporation Counsel on the day it was signed, Jan. 14. No effort was made to vacate the order until today, when the Mayor obtained from Justice Finch an order to show cause why the order for the Mayor's examination should not be vacated, although until 4:30 today, when we were served with the order to show cause, we were prepared and expected to proceed with the examination.

"The Mayor does not make any affidavit in support of the motion to vacate the order for his examination, but an affidavit is made by William E. C. Mayer, an Assistant Corporation Counsel. In his affidavit Mr. Mayer virtually admits that Dr. Schieffelin is entitled to the order for the examination of the Mayor, but seeks to have the order limited.

"The Mayor has not yet paid the costs awarded him by the Appellate Division.

"We shall be prepared to argue the motion to vacate the order on the day on which it is returnable. We shall ask for a speedy decision, and hope to be able to examine the Mayor within a very short period of time."

WOMAN SUES FOR $103,891.

Eleanor L. Young Asks $100,000 in One Action Against C. A. Gumbert.

Two suits were filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Eleanor L. Young, one against Chester A. Gumbert for $100,000 and the other against the Stock Exchange firm of McClave & Co. of 67 Exchange Place. It was said Gumbert is known at the offices of the brokers, but is not connected with the firm.

In the suit against Gumbert only a summons was served, and Bijur & Herta, attorneys for the plaintiff, declined to tell the nature of the suit. In the suit against McClave & Co. the plaintiff alleges that she opened an account on Nov. 13 last, and that when she closed it, on Jan. 19, a balance of $3,891 was due her.

TWO VIOLINISTS PLAY.

Madeleine MacGuigan and Helen T. Tas in Aeolian Hall.

Madeleine MacGuigan, violinist, a quaint, bright elfin person who played as a child of ten in Ireland, and is in the sweet-and-twenties now, gave an interesting first recital here yesterday afternoon at Aeolian Hall, her program ranging from the serious D minor sonata of Brahms to the A minor concerto of Ceoil Burleigh. She tossed off lightly the harmonics of "Zephyr" and "Butterfly," by her master, Hubay, adding a piece by the American, Grasse, and Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Sang," set for violin by the late Maud Powell.

Helen Teschner Tas, who played last evening in Aeolian Hall, was heard at her best in Bach's "Chaconne" for violin alone, her powerful tone rather than technical strength endowing the classic with its due musical feeling. She gave, in oddly, leisurely way, a sonata of Tartini and a concerto of Mozart, less happy in its final minuet; some arrangements by Wilhelmj, Sarasate, Kreisler, and a rondo of Saint-Saëns.

De Luca Ill; "Rigoletto" Postponed.

"Rigoletto" is not to be revived at the Metropolitan tomorrow afternoon owing to De Luca's sudden illness; instead "The Barber of Seville" will be sung, with Garrison, Hackett, and Amato. Last evening Farrar, Kingston, and Scotti appeared in "Madam Butterfly," hastily substituted for "Zaza," for which no tenor was at hand but Crimi, also indisposed.

While the reannouncement of "Zaza" for Monday week satisfied many subscribers, there were lamentations from some out-of-town operagoers who had rushed to buy seats from Broadway speculators at $20 a chair.

Philharmonic Plays Without Soloist.

The Philharmonic Society's audience filled Carnegie Hall last night, though not in the recently frequent overflowing measure, whether owing to the storm or to absence of a soloist. A program for orchestra alone included Cesar Franck's fine symphony, Tschaikovsky's "Francesca," Wagner's "Siegfried Idyl," and Sibelius's "Finlandia." To these Mr. Stransky added also the "Carnival" overture of Dvorak, which was at the last moment inserted in the house bill. This afternoon there will be a complete Russian program.

"The Rusian Isba" for the Belmont.

"The Russian Isba," an operatic novelty to be sung and acted by a company of forty Russian players who arrived in this country a few days ago, will be presented at the Belmont Theatre on Monday night, Feb. 16. It is described as "a three-act novelty of Russian peasant life." Serge Borowsky, baritone, will head the company, which was originally organized as an entertainment unit during the war.

"Isle of Surprise" to be Repeated.

"The Isle of Surprise," which was given by the Princeton University Triangle Club at the Waldorf-Astoria on Dec. 18, will be repeated on Friday, Feb. 13, at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre. During the holidays the show was given in nine large cities in the East and Middle West. E. H. Coffey and B. Harris, two seniors, wrote the piece.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Frances White will head the cast of "The Greenwich Village Follies" when that entertainment goes on tour in another week. Bessie McCoy Davis is withdrawing from the cast.

Elsie Ferguson, in Arnold Bennett's "Sacred and Profane Love," will begin her New York engagement during the week of Feb. 25. Her supporting company will include Jose Ruben, Olive Oliver, Maud Milton, Alexander Onslow, Sebastian Smith, Renee de Monvil, Katharine Brook, A. Romaine Callander, Augusta Haviland, Bertha Kent, Peggy Harvey, Denise Corday, and Eleanor Seybolt.

Brieux's "The Letter of the Law," with Lionel Barrymore as its star, will be played next week in Atlantic City, and will be brought to New York a little later.

"Wedding Bells," with the same cast now appearing at the Harris, will tour the coast following the New York run.

"Rolle's Wild Cat," by Clare Kummer, with Roland Young as the featured player, will open at Far Rockaway on Jan. 30. The cast will include Cecil Yapp and Lotus Robb.

RAIL CONFEREES CONFESS DEADLOCK

Cannot Agree on Labor Provisions and Matter May Be Referred to Houses.

CUMMINS SEES NO LIGHT

But Chairman Denies Report That Guarantee Section Will Be Cut Out.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Chairman Cummins of the Senate, at the conclusion of today's meeting of the conferees on the Railroad bill, expressed the belief that the controversy over the labor provisions could not be settled without another vote in the House and possibly in the Senate. He said that while he had not lost hope of a conference agreement, the differences between the two sets of conferees were so wide that reference to the House seemed probable.

Representative Sims, Democrat, Tennessee, proposed today that the conferees eliminate all labor clauses from the bill and leave legislation on labor to a future separate bill, but the Senate conferees refused to consider the suggestion.

The Senators were said to have indicated that if the House rejected the anti-strike clause they might then be more willing to consider a compromise. Among the compromise suggestions brought forth today was that of Senator McCormick, Illinois, for settlement of railroad industrial disputes by tribunals, similar to the Canadian arbitration system, but with an additional provision prohibiting strikes within sixty days after announced decisions of the Arbitration Board.

Denial of reports that the conferees had agreed to abandon Section 6 was made by Senator Cummins. Section 6 carries the financial provisions for a fixed percentage rate return and the reduction of excess profits.

FIRE AT RITZ WEDDING.

Blaze in Ballroom Prevents Dancing After Chambers-Borden Nuptials.

The wedding of Kenneth N. Chambers, a son of the late Frank R. Chambers, and Miss Mary Maffitt Borden, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Leigh Borden of 215 West Ninety-eighth Street and a granddaughter of the late Captain John Hewland Maffitt, took place at 8 o'clock last night in the Crystal Room of the Ritz-Carlton.

During the ceremony, at which the Rev. Dr. W. W. Bellinger, vicar of St. Agnes's, officiated, a fire started in the hotel, but none of the wedding guests knew of it until the wedding was over. The reception and ball, however, which was to have taken place in the large ballroom, was cancelled, for when the guests started to enter the ballroom they found it filled with smoke and firemen busy seeking out the flames. The damage was slight.

The guests left the ballroom calmly. The rescue squad extinguished the fire after an hour's work and the dinner was continued.

Clarence Nesbitt was best man at the wedding, and the ushers were Herbert Larson, Charlie Saacke, Lawrence Battle, Walter Hales, William Coward, and Edwin Borden.

Film of American Catholics in War.

Motion pictures showing the part taken by American Catholics in the war will be shown at the Cohan & Harris Theatre on Sunday night under the title of "American Catholics in War and Reconstruction." The film will be exhibited under the auspices of Archbishop Hayes, and Justice Victor J. Dowling will preside. Addresses will be made by the Rev. John J. Burke, William J. Mulligan, and Justice Cornelius F. Collins.

MANY TELL OF WASTE IN GOVERNMENT PLANT

Wartime Speed Blamed for Extravagance at Muscle Shoals Explosives Factory.

FLORENCE, Ala., Jan. 22.—Charges that enough brick was stolen from the Government nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals to construct a two-story building in Sheffield, Ala., were denied by J. L. Andrews, banker, of Sheffield today before the Congressional War Expenditures Committee. Personal investigation of the charge had proved that the bricks were condemned by Government Inspectors before they reached the plant, he said, and were sold en route.

"There was some criminality at Muscle Shoals where men got on two payrolls," Andrews said, "and some shirking of duty, but the utmost effort was made to keep down that sort of thing."

Kenneth F. Smith, a community worker, formerly in charge of the Muscle Shoals Labor Adjustment Bureau, told the committee that work at the plant was done regardless of cost largely because the builders got a percentage on all expenditures. He said 600 kegs of nails, worth $6 each, had been buried by a foreman just to get them out of the way.

William R. Watkins, formerly a policeman at Muscle Shoals, said nobody cared how things went because of the general feeling "that the builders got a commission on every dollar paid the men."

Labor agents in trying to get negro workmen for the plant assured them they could gamble without molestation, the witness said, adding that "the negroes played craps, but the higher ups used the cards." If all small gambling among negroes had been stopped it would have driven them from the camp, he said.

Charges that Government property was hauled away in carload lots were made yesterday by W. E. McCary of Birmingham, formerly employed by the Department of Justice as an investigator, and Chairman Graham indicated today that the committee would look further into the testimony of McCary that houses at Muscle Shoals were knocked down and carted away to be erected again for citizens at East Florence, and that a big business structure at Sheffield, was built with brick stolen from the plant.

The builders claim that if there was any waste it was due to haste in getting the nitrate plants in shape to turn out explosives during the war.

Near the end of an all-day session, after half a dozen witnesses had testified concerning wholesale extravagance, Representative Garrett of Tennessee declared that it was not a question of dispute. "Everybody knows there has been waste at the plant," the Representative said. "No attempt has been made to deny it or condone it except on the ground of the wartime speed."

Henry M. Blossom Left $45,995.

The estate of Henry M. Blossom, author and playwright, who died March 23, 1919, at the Belnord, was appraised yesterday at $45,995 and $33,210 net. The chief item in the estate was the value of royalties from his productions, amounting to $36,470, including "The Velvet Lady," "Mlle. Modiste," "The Only Girl," "Princess Pat," "Checkers" and "The Red Mill." He had $5,676 in stocks and bonds. The estate goes to his wife, Marjorie May Blossom.

PREDICT THAT HARRELD WILL BE TURNED DOWN

House Republicans Keep Up Fight on His Selection for Army Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Efforts to have the Republican Committee on Committees reconsider the appointment of Representative Harfield of Oklahoma as a member of the House Military Committee were made today by Republicans favorable to universal military training. Mr. Harreld has announced his opposition to such training and his vote probably would be the deciding one in the committee.

Chairman Mondell said that he had not been requested to call another meeting of the committee. It was suggested that the appointment be presented to the House for confirmation, but Mr. Mondell was undecided whether this would be done.

Opposition to Mr. Harreld was voiced in private by Chairman Kahn and other members of the military committee favorably disposed to universal training, and the prediction was made that Representative Newton, Republican, Missouri, would be selected in his place.

THE HOLE IN THE WALL.

The Paris Eclair describes allied policy toward Russia in terms of stone masonry. Bolshevism is a dangerous torrent; the French build a wall to dam it off from Western Europe; the British knock a hole in the wall by the opening of commercial relations with Russia; and at the same time they build another wall on the east, which shuts the flood off from India, and may have the effect of turning its force backward toward the hole in the other wall.

So much our Parisian contemporary says or implies. And indeed it is difficult to see any consistency in the allied plans, or even in the British plan which has changed the direction of allied policy. The French, one supposes, still stick to the idea of the cordon sanitaire, or so much of it as Mr. LLOYD GEORGE has left. Poland and the Baltic States hope for French support. Marshal FOCH is said to be about to set out for the Baltic, and he would hardly go unless he expected to be able to do something when he arrived.

Meanwhile the British are rushing warships into the Black Sea, and there is talk of the appearance of a British army in the Caucasus, of desperate measures for the defense of India. Fear is expressed of a Pan-Turanian movement from Constantinople to Vladivostok, with ENVER Pasha and General SEMENOFF as its leaders. Yet the British seem to be supporting the Turko-Tartars of the Republic of Azerbaijan, who are not free from suspicion of Pan-Turanian sympathies, themselves. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE's wall in front of India does not seem any too secure; but it is inconceivable that he has knocked the hole in the western wall in order to divert the flood and reduce the pressure on his own somewhat unstable edifice.

So it would seem that England is still at war with Bolshevism in Asia, although England in Europe is resuming trade with Russians under Bolshevist rule, while France and Poland are still at war with Bolshevism. The Allies have employed various kinds of unusual policies against Bolshevist Russia: war that is not war, peace that is not peace, and now this strange hybrid of peace on the front and war on another. Peace with LENIN is an intelligible policy, though a risky one; it would involve eternal vigilance, but bargains could be made; and there is a chance, if a small one, that the cessation of war everywhere might weaken the Bolshevist regime. An aggressive war against LENIN is an intelligible policy, though impossible in view of the defeat of the anti-Bolshevist Russians and the war-weariness of the allied peoples. Defensive war is an intelligible policy—the maintenance of the cordon sanitaire and the defense of India, with continuation of the blockade. But what can be said for the breaking up of allied solidarity, the strengthening of one front simultaneously with the weakening of another, the furnishing of supplies to Russia which can be used in war against the border States? Many things have changed in the last five years, but it is still easier to break a bundle of sticks one at a time.

Perhaps Mr. LLOYD GEORGE hopes to win conservative support for his new trade policy by combining it with brandishes of the sabre against anyone who menaces India. Recent British demonstrations in Central Asia, coupled with the Premier's references to Lord BEACONSFIELD and the weakening of Russia, have had profound effect in Russia; they seem likely to make a good many recruits for Lenin. How will they be received in England? When British labor will be opposed to military training. To put on the Committee on Military Affairs a member with Mr. HARBORD's opinions and Berger vote makes Republicans furious, tickles the Democrats, and seems about as monumental a blunder as even Mr. GILLETT and Mr. MONDELL are capable of making.

Lord STANLEY, the Rupert of debate, caustically altering a line in a famous epitaph, said of Lord JOHN RUSSELL: Nihil tetigit quod non perturbavit—"He touched nothing that he didn't make a mess of." With all respect to dignitaries, that is a tolerably exact description of the course of Mr. GILLETT and Mr. MONDELL since this Congress began. Boiling is too cold a word to denote the wrath into which they have plunged many members of their own side of the House. Their kindness to Mr. BENSON's Oklahoma friend is, perhaps, not more nor less sagacious than their wonted proceedings; but the exasperation of the Republicans of the House has now reached that high temperature which cannot be relieved without explosion. The New York delegation is bound to fight in caucus the nomination of Mr. HARBORD; and, if beaten there, to continue the fight on the floor of the House. It is a very petty quarrel as it stands. Even if the embarrassed gentleman from Oklahoma is allowed to shift from arms to the plow, from Military Affairs to Agriculture, the wound in the Republican bosom will remain unhealed. The Republican party is as harmonious as a Witches' Sabbath.

THE PRINCE IN PERSPECTIVE.

The shadow of the Prince of WALES does not grow less in perspective. He himself bears witness that American cordiality has not ceased with his departure. "I still receive most charming letters, and, I may add, not all of them from the fair sex." This, says the cabled report of the London Pilgrims' dinner, "occasioned much laughter." That was inevitable, and no doubt intended; but the underlying fact is serious.

EDWARD ALBERT is something quite new in princes—a prince who can talk and does talk. Inquiry among members of his entourage in America disclosed that, though formal parts of his speeches were generally written for him, he seldom failed to eke them out with ideas of his own, inspired by the mood of the moment. It is by these timely quips and topical allusions that he is most happily remembered. Whatever his ultimate fame may be, his reputation up to the present rests upon the fact that he is the first of a long line to develop the gift of popularity by means of utterance. When his famous grandfather spoke his own mind, it was to the point; his reputation for a careless frivolity was tempered, during his years of responsibility, by an ever-strengthening sense of his patriotic shrewdness and sagacity. But little doubt ever arose as to the authorship of his public utterances.

In Prince EDWARD's knack of public talking there is more than a command of phrases, more than a sprightly sense of what is amusing to the multitude. Any man who gives way to the crowd psychology parts, so to speak, with his habiliments; his soul stands naked in a way that few except practiced speakers can endure. It was the sense of a manly presence, of a genuinely modest and amiable temper, that took the American public. At the Pilgrims' dinner the Prince "spoke with assurance and in a strong voice." That "surprised his hearers." A suspicion may be thus entertained that native gifts of voice and presence expanded during the sojourn here. Possibly, also, there was an enlargement of vocabulary. If so, perhaps the Prince will explain to his fellow-countrymen a verbal misunderstanding into which Punch has fallen. Quoting a newspaper report that "the Prince spent a couple of weeks in Philadelphia yesterday," Charivari comments: "How time does fly when one is happy!" We would not have it thought that the Prince was less than happy anywhere; but, as a great Englishman once remarked, there are places where "time flies withal," and then there are other places.

REPUBLICAN HARMONY.

Mr. JOHN W. HARBORD, Republican, was elected last November a Representative in Congress of the Fifth Oklahoma District, to fill a vacancy caused by death. His predecessor was a Democrat. The conquest of this Democratic district was loudly trumpeted by the Republicans, who hailed it as an omen and a prophecy. Mr. HARBORD's record and achievement in the Congress, where he is a freshman, are sufficiently proclaimed by the fact that he is one of the six members who voted to keep VICTOR BERGER in his seat. It would be supposed that that vote would be sufficient to exclude him from the favor of the Committee on Committees, the master of the House. At most, Mr. HARBORD might have looked for a place on the Committee on Agriculture, where his rural knowledge might have expressed itself.

What the master of the House did was to offer him a choice between Agriculture and Military Affairs. He chose the latter. Now it happens that, aside from his support of Mr. BERGER, the Socialist adversary of the war, Mr. HARBORD is, of course, an opponent of universal military training. That, in a voluntary form, is included in the Senate Army bill. Mr. KAHN, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, is resolved that it shall be included in the House Army bill. Before the resignation of Mr. LAGUARDIA to become President of our Board of Aldermen, the House Committee on Military Affairs stood 11 to 10 for universal training. As a result of the ineffable wisdom of the Committee on Committees, the Military Affairs Committee is now tied, 10 to 10, on this important question.

Again is the deep-revolving judgment of Speaker GILLETT and Mr. MONDELL, the Republican floor leader, manifested. Mr. MONDELL is against universal training, and the rift within the Republican lute is made wider and wider by this curious selection. A large number of Republican members, including the New York delegation, are made furious by this latest and not least of the long series of blunders that Mr. GILLETT and Mr. MONDELL have such a genius for. Was Mr. HARBORD's winning of a Democratic district so signal a merit as to be worth throwing the apple of discord among the Republicans again? A member whose soul is tender to VICTOR BERGER belongs on no committee. When a man is a Bergerian he must be opposed to military training. To put on the Committee on Military Affairs a member with Mr. HARBORD's opinions and Berger vote makes Republicans furious, tickles the Democrats, and seems about as monumental a blunder as even Mr. GILLETT and Mr. MONDELL are capable of making.

Lord STANLEY, the Rupert of debate, caustically altering a line in a famous epitaph, said of Lord JOHN RUSSELL: Nihil tetigit quod non perturbavit—"He touched nothing that he didn't make a mess of." With all respect to dignitaries, that is a tolerably exact description of the course of Mr. GILLETT and Mr. MONDELL since this Congress began. Boiling is too cold a word to denote the wrath into which they have plunged many members of their own side of the House. Their kindness to Mr. BENSON's Oklahoma friend is, perhaps, not more nor less sagacious than their wonted proceedings; but the exasperation of the Republicans of the House has now reached that high temperature which cannot be relieved without explosion. The New York delegation is bound to fight in caucus the nomination of Mr. HARBORD; and, if beaten there, to continue the fight on the floor of the House. It is a very petty quarrel as it stands. Even if the embarrassed gentleman from Oklahoma is allowed to shift from arms to the plow, from Military Affairs to Agriculture, the wound in the Republican bosom will remain unhealed. The Republican party is as harmonious as a Witches' Sabbath.

THE NEW ORLEANS RING SMASHED.

JOHN MILLIKEN PARKER of New Orleans, affectionately known among the friends of reform in Louisiana as "JOHN M.," won the nomination, and consequently election as Governor, in the Democratic primaries held on Tuesday. In the North we remember Mr. PARKER as Mr. ROOSEVELT's companion and guide in the canebrakes, and the undaunted Progressive candidate for Vice President in 1916. Louisiana knows him as a man who has been pummeling the Ring, the famous or infamous New Orleans machine, for a generation; and he has beaten it at last.

Municipal government in New Orleans is the old Tammany system of Tammany's most evil days. Protected vice, taxes wasted, teachers ill paid, streets unrepaired, public buildings neglected, the police and fire departments disorganized—that is only a part of the shameful story. Louisiana was on the road to bankruptcy. The country districts and the "decent citizens" of New Orleans have saved her at last. "I am no superman," said Mr. PARKER the other day, "but I do take a solemn pledge to destroy the system which the present administration has rammed down the throats of the citizens of New Orleans and the State of Louisiana if it takes the balance of my life to do it."

He will keep his word. New Orleans and Louisiana will have a thorough housecleaning in the next four years. Mr. PARKER's triumph, after so many years of warfare, is a notable triumph for the cause of good government, State and municipal, for the independent voters of Louisiana, the State, the soon-to-be-purified New Orleans, and that gallant and unwearied champion of honest government, JOHN M. PARKER.

INTERBOROUGH DIVIDENDS.

Just how shocking is the fact that the Interborough paid 187 per cent. in dividends in sixteen years? That is less than 12 per cent. a year, earned in an enterprise so novel, and thought to be so desperate, that when the opportunity was offered at auction there were no bidders, and that when a responsible contractor was found he had great difficulty in getting the backing of financiers. That the judgment of conservative authorities was right appears from current events, which include the loss of some 90 per cent. of the value of the stock, represented as a "gold mine." The bonds, which represent ownership of the stock at the rate of two for one sold below 20 yesterday. Therefore half of the 187 per cent. was in effect paid out of capital, and hardly more than legal interest was earned on the stock, which now chiefly represents the right to pay an assessment, and which is seeking buyers without finding them.

That the payment of dividends is waste, if not fraud, is a theory much favored in these days. But yesterday it was testified that eight millions of surplus had been spent in defraying a deficit incurred by meeting extraordinary costs due to the war. If the Interborough is responsible for the war and its sequels, nothing is too bad to happen to it. But if the Interborough was sound enough to bear losses of eight millions without succumbing, and did so without murmuring until now, then it deserves recognition as one whose wounds and labors as a public utility are honorable. None of the facts now testified to is new. All of them are matters of record, and have become of record under official scrutiny.

The actors in these events have suffered by them more than any law could mulct them. If their plans had not miscarried, the riders would still be enjoying transfers and nickel fares. To the extent that they protected themselves by selling out when they saw the handwriting on the wall they have shifted the loss to innocent holders, without saving their prestige or their enterprise. These innocent purchasers have not lost as much as appears, for they bought on a declining market, and still own a corpse which may revive. Within a few days there have been statements of great growth of business on the subways. Part of it is natural. Part of it is due to the dismemberment of the surface lines and the loss of transfers, which drives the business underground for lack of any other cheap or quick way of getting about the city in general, and between the boroughs in particular. That the nickel-payers are losing in proportion that they must pay more nickels, and are deprived of what the nickels used to buy, is so clear that it must seem that they would resent the leadership accomplishing these things.

GENERAL PERSHING'S FUTURE.

Under the "Act to increase the efficiency of the army" approved Feb. 14, 1903, "all officers detailed in the General Staff Corps shall be detailed therein for periods of four years, unless sooner relieved." This provision applies to the Chief of Staff himself. It is proposed in the Senate Army Reorganization bill to make General JOHN J. PERSHING Chief of Staff for as long a period as he remains upon the active list of the army, which will be in the natural course of things until Sept. 13, 1924. If General PERSHING were made Chief of Staff now he would have about four years and eight months to serve in the office should the Senate Army Reorganization bill become a law with the provision affecting him a part of it. Secretary BAKER has asked the Military Affairs Committee to eliminate the provision, and he gives some excellent reasons. General PERSHING's period of service would be only a few months longer than the term of four years of the law of 1903. Why not let him have the extra time, it may be asked, if the purpose is to honor him for his great work in France? A principle is involved with which Congress should not interfere. Secretary BAKER, who is an admirer of the General and estimates his war services at their true value, says:

> Congress should not by legislation attempt to fix his status, or that of any other officer. It is extremely impolitic legislation. It is an interference with the function of the Commander in Chief of the army. Suppose Congress were to designate this and that officer for particular functions; very soon the Commander in Chief would have no function whatever.

ELIHU ROOT was Secretary of War when the General Staff was created by the law of 1903. Mr. ROOT said of the new post and its responsibilities:

> For the successful performance of his duties the Chief of Staff must have the entire confidence of his commander. In proportion as he merits that confidence the Chief of Staff gradually comes to find his advice usually accepted, and really to exercise the authority of his commander, subject only to the most general directions, just as VON MOLTKE exercised the authority of King WILLIAM of Prussia as his Chief of Staff.

Secretary ROOT did not overstate the confidential relations of the Chief of Staff and the President, and Mr. BAKER is on unassailable ground when he says that "the Chief of Staff "should be a man of the President's "own selection and removable at any "time he saw fit." An incoming President may appoint to the office a successor to the General serving at the time. It is the expectation that a change will be made. President WILSON did not, however, exercise his prerogative when he went to Washington. General LEONARD WOOD had been Chief of Staff for more than two years, and he continued to serve until April, 1914. The President who is inaugurated on March 14, 1921, should be allowed to select his Chief of Staff, but if the provision of the Senate bill in General PERSHING's interests is retained the new President must recognize him as Chief of Staff and enter into confidential relations with him. This might be embarrassing, and it is conceivable that the welfare of the army would not be promoted. The President is not a fixture; why should his subordinate in the army, of which the President is Commander in Chief, be a fixture and enjoy a longer term? It is a question that should not be difficult to answer.

The plan, if adopted, to make General PERSHING Chief of Staff until he retires from the army would be a precedent which might be followed some day by bestowing the office upon a famous soldier of fifty, who would have fourteen years to serve, and then people might feel the shadow of militarism falling over them. Honorable work can be found for General PERSHING, and he is not the man to shirk it. Secretary BAKER offers the timely proposal that the General be made head of the joint Board of Defense of the army and navy, a position of usefulness such as Admiral DEWEY filled in connection with the General Board of the Navy.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Need of Whisky for Influenza Cases.

Liquors for prophylactic or therapeutic purposes may become a grave problem if druggists continue to refuse to keep them on hand to fill prescriptions lest they "become identified with the liquor traffic." Already an embarrassment has arisen with the growing menace of influenza. Whisky is given by many physicians to stimulate patients in the wasting stages of the disease. Physicians who are as much opposed to the liquor traffic as any prohibitionists prescribe whisky and believe that it saved many lives in the last epidemic. No question of temperance is involved. Enforcement of the prohibition law is not at stake. But the lives of a great many people may hang in the balance if whisky cannot be procured, and whisky of good quality, to keep up their strength while they fight one of the most insidious of diseases. It is not too much to say that the death rate would be very much increased in the community during an epidemic of influenza if there were no whisky, or little of it, for the doctors to use.

In the shadow of another visitation druggists should put behind them their fear of being "identified with the liquor traffic." If time is lacking to convert them to a common sense view of the situation, the Federal Government should come forward with a plan to provide the whisky legitimately at stations under its control. That is the proposal of Dr. ROYAL S. COPELAND, the Health Commissioner, and he should continue to urge it until relief is furnished.

The Buford Sovietized.

The ruling passion is strong in deportation. The members of the "Goldman - Berkman Committee" for the passengers of the Buford are loud in their scorn of the ship and its accommodations. It was "a leaky old tub, with water pouring into the men's bunks." The food for the women was "passable," but that for the men was "putrid" and "half cooked." The officers conducted themselves with "military brutality." They were "extremely autocratic," lacking "the judgment and tact necessary for successful dealing with the deportees." In a word, they were "helpless." One wonders how the ark got across the water at all. Miss GOLDMAN thoughtfully supplies the answer. In order to prevent the collapse of all rule, the deportees formed a committee or soviet, by the aid of which the Captain managed to get his passengers safe to the shore. We commend the precedent to all transatlantic skippers who have trouble with their ships' companies.

The members of the Goldman-Berkman Committee have their minds centred in the loftier affairs of State. They disclaim any "definitive plans for work for Russia," such plans being so obviously superfluous; but their hearts bleed for benighted America. They are going to organize a League for American Freedom. "As American radicals aided the Russian liberation from Czarism, so now the American people are entitled to receive help from free Russia." Not merely the Buford but our Ship of State is to be sovietised. It is a grand and glorious project; but there seem to be obstacles everywhere. When the Goldman-Berkman Soviet wrote its program for American liberation it was being whirled through Finland in locked cars.

Americans Strangely Out of Date.

In these days when money, such as it is, seems to be more plentiful than anything else, six dollars is a paltry sum. Not many workingmen in America would willingly take it as a day's wage, and the phrase "six dollars a week" is as much a part of ancient history as "give me the check."

Yet yesterday's news told of a group of Americans who are working for six dollars a month. It is hard work; it is outdoor work in a land where Winters are hard and long; it is such dangerous work that any individual taking it up is more likely than not to lose his life. But these Americans traveled thousands of miles to take up this employment, and there seem to be more applicants for positions than there are vacancies.

These strange Americans are the members of the Kosciuszko Escadrille in the Polish Army. They served in the American flying forces in France; and when the war in France was over and they enlisted for the war against the Bolsheviki most of them had to take lower rank than that which they had held. The Poles would have paid them salaries on the American scale, far higher than any of those obtaining in Eastern Europe. But when they found out the salaries of Polish officers doing similar work they refused to accept more. They are paying our debt to KOSCIUSZKO and PULASKI; they are upholding the reputation of the American soldier; and they are bringing into our time something of eighteenth century flavor, a reminiscence of a day when gentlemen lent their swords willingly to a worthy cause.

Legion Post Opposes Removing Dead

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It has been called to my attention that there is a move under way headed by the "Purple Cross" (American Undertakers' Association) to bring back the dead bodies of our American soldiers, sailors and marines who are buried in Europe. It is high time that such a proceeding was looked into and decisively beaten in Congress. It is an injustice to the loved ones of these hero dead to allow such a disgraceful proceeding, whether it is backed by the "Purple Cross" for profiteering or not.

Mrs. Mabel F. Gariessen, mother of the first New York officer to be killed in the war, and Miss Jane O'Ryan, General O'Ryan's sister, are the two notables who have been unalterably opposed to this move from the start. Mrs. Gariessen was a canteen worker overseas after her son's death, and the task that she is attempting is just a continuation of the noble work she has so gloriously done overseas. The bodies of our dead should not be molested from their final burial places. My post of the A. L. voted unanimously against bringing the bodies to the United States. I am sure that any service man who went through that hell, those long nights and days of suffering, would not want to see the bodies of his comrades removed. There are so many bodies that never will be found and that terrible risk of returning the wrong body to a mother cannot be allowed.

Mrs. Gariessen's efforts are noble indeed, and as many gold star mothers see it, let them contribute to preserve and sanctify the ground on which they have fallen and create an everlasting memory of their sacrifice in bleeding Europe's heart.

American people could see those wonderful burial places, such as Le Glorieux, Verdun, and Cote de Remagne cemeteries, they would be convinced that it would be folly even to consider removing them.

Not a Supreme Court Decision.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The criticism of your correspondent, H. C. F., that I quoted from the wrong person in my letter in last Sunday's TIMES is justified. My attention has been called to it in several private letters. I attributed a decision in the Rhode Island prohibition case to Associate Justice Day of the Supreme Court, when it was in fact the opinion of United States Solicitor General King. It followed closely the decision of Justice Day in the New Orleans and Baltimore cases, and, as the print was very fine, I did not notice that the Solicitor General's name came in, but read it as a continuous decision of Justice Day.

I greatly regret the error, as there is a vast difference between a decision of the Supreme Court and the opinion of an attorney, no matter how eminent. The latter, of course, would not nullify the Ohio referendum or Governor Smith's proposal for one, although the decision of the Federal Constitution, which is quoted, would, if sustained by the Supreme Court, do both.

GOODS SENT TO RUSSIA.

Supplies Will Probably Be Seized and Used for Red Armies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having lived in Soviet Russia up to a year ago, I may claim to know what I am talking about when I assert that the lifting of the blockade, far from weakening the power of the Bolshevist rule, will, on the contrary, greatly strengthen it.

Allowing that goods will be shipped only through the Russian co-operative societies, which at present have been transformed in Soviet Russia into purely Bolshevist organizations, and are, therefore, merely "camouflage," it is not at all unlikely that, having accumulated some stocks, these societies will some day find themselves ordered by the Bolshevist authorities to sell goods only to their partisans, the Bolsheviki. The rest of the population will go on starving and suffering as before, and the Red army will gain a new lease of life.

There are very interesting possibilities with the distribution of agricultural implements especially. It must be understood that the Bolsheviki were busy all through 1919 trying to establish farming "communes" on vacant lands in the country, so as to dispense with the need for dealing with the farmer who refused to sell his harvest to the Soviets because they could not give him anything in return except inflated paper money. These farming "communes" have enjoyed special privileges from the Bolshevist authorities and have been a thorn in the flesh of the independent small property-owning farmer, feeling running pretty high between these and the new sellers.

Now, picture to yourself what will happen if a shipment of plows is sent to a village. Of course the first ones to get any will be the "commune" farmers. The old resident farmer will have to watch the hated intruders working with the best of new implements while he himself will have to scratch his field with a dilapidated, rusty pre-war plow, fit for the scrap heap. It is not difficult to imagine for one who knows the ways of the Russian village just what is bound to happen, and mighty quick, at that! This is going to happen:

"Down with the new land aristocracy!" will be the cry of the Russian village. Just as the peasants took everything away from the aristocratic land owners after the first revolution, just so are they going to take what they need from the new wards of the Government. Simply take it away and tell the new sellers to get out; that's all.

This, of course, will be followed by punitive expeditions of the Red army, and the Russian villages will again run red with the blood of their sons and daughters. The Red army is now large enough to laugh at and defy the rest of the world and will manage the peasants for some time, too, if necessary, with an iron hand. The Soviet power will triumph, and, thanks to the new shipments of badly needed goods, it will be able to feed and clothe its friends and starve and freeze to death its foes who are still alive.

These are some of the thoughts one sees by reading the news about the lifting of the blockade, and I fear that I am right.

But, of course, I am no prophet and I hope that I shall have been a poor guesser and that the sight of the first shipload of goods may provoke a riot when the people find out that the Bolsheviki intend to keep it all for themselves, and that this riot may grow into a roaring revolution that will sweep the new czars of my poor country to oblivion. At the Public Library.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Cannot something be done to prevent the overcrowding of the Public Library at Forty-second Street on Saturday and Sunday afternoons by the hundreds of high school and other students, most of them half-baked young Socialists, who come with satchels and school books, and fairly overrun the building? The library is not a school building, and these young people should not be permitted to crowd out the library readers and workers as they do in the performance of such school duties as should be done at home or at the schools, and for social gatherings.

They fill to overflowing the main reading rooms, and even the technical reading rooms, where they sit in groups, whisper, laugh, and flirt. The older readers are literally crowded out, even from the special rooms, where no seats remain, and, not content with usurping the reading rooms, they gather in overwhelming crowds in halls, corridors, and dressing rooms, where they defy the attempts of the attendants to keep order.

Because it is a public building they seem to think they can do as they please, and in the manner of the rising generation, with its socialistic tendency, they take possession in the name of liberty. The beautiful building is a public one, and free, but it is, like all American institutions of this kind, free in the law, and subject to some restrictions. Cannot something be done in this matter? Present conditions are a disgrace and unbearably humiliating.

FIRST SPRING CATALOGUE.

The poet who writes of the beautiful Spring
Must wait for his theme till the first birdies sing,
Or the stormy hue of a midwinter sky
Changes to suit his professional eye.

Must find pink arbutus deep down in the wood;
Discover new gold in a young crocus bud,
Yes, in order to write his annual rhyme,
He must see and hear—have proof of the time.

But Spring comes to me when the Winter winds blow,
When garden and wood are a great fluff of snow;
When the sky is painted a battleship gray
And the birds are singing—down Palm Beach way.

The old postman whistles and hands it to me,
And all that it costs is a "penny due" fee;
Yet I know when I tear off its thin disguise
The glory of Flora will blind my eyes.

My first Garden Catalogue! Yes, it is here,
It's gaudy, it's wordy—not real art, I fear;
But I pore o'er its pages of riotous bloom,
And soon, very soon, all Spring's in the room.

E'en the logs on the hearth are sending forth shoots
Of curly green leaflings and odorous roots.
Our dull Persian carpet is magic indeed—
A great bed of pansies now—"grown from seed."

Convolvulus lacework twines table and chair,
Shy wall flowers hide in the corners there;
Delphiniums, roses, sweet-scented stock,
Carnations, oxalis, starry-fringed phlox,

All growing as pictured on Page So and So,
As somehow I never can quite make them grow—
Except in the garden I plant on the day
That the first Spring Catalogue comes my way.

HELEN HAMBIDGE.

SENSE A LIMITATION, SAYS SIR OLIVER

Gives Only a Faint Conception of the Realities of the Universe.

VEIL AGAINST THE INVISIBLE

Calls the Ether the Substantial Thing, Far More Impressive Than Matter.

Sir Oliver Lodge lectured yesterday afternoon to an audience that included a large number of women in mourning, and occupied all the seats and the standing room at Carnegie Hall.

He laid the foundation for proof of life after death which he will offer in later lectures, giving elaborate illustrations to prove that the human senses give only a faint conception of the realities of the universe, and that the first discoveries by science in the invisible world are comparable to well-known discoveries of science which reverse the apparent evidence of the eyes and other factulties, such as the discovery that the earth is round, whirling through space at unbelievable speed and that the bright lights in the sky are great bodies revolving at inconceivable distances.

He discussed the pre-existence of those now living, the present existence of those now dead, whom he believed to be near at hand, around and among us, and of the existence, elsewhere and in the future, of former humans who have attained an excellence which places them above us, as we are above the black beetle.

"Now in these topics I do not wish to dogmatize," he said. "I am here to tell you what has been the result of my life-long study of these things and no one will suppose for a moment that I have any infallibility. Every statement of this kind must be judged on its merits."

Sir Oliver said that young children had a faint glimmering of recollection of a past life, but that this died out of their minds early in life.

Hidden by Veil of Sense.

"It was not this individual John Smith that began with birth," he said. "That is what has been acquired by this life. We have acquired possession of our own soul and our own personalities and our own identities. We begin with a dream of life, of pre-existing life, whose previous experiences we do not know. They were not the experiences of those individuals."

"My message," he continued a little later, "and the evidence which I shall try to give on another occasion, is that those who have gone beyond the body through the veil, are all one family. The partition is not a real partition. It is an appearance, not a reality; a veil of sense.

"There is an apparent chasm, but love bridges the chasm. The other life is screened from us, and yet, as I think, is not far from us. I think it is all around us and we are screened. Why it is held that the brain is the screening organ, the organ which shuts off the whole realm of existence other than that on this planet, and that it mercifully shuts off so much from us in order that we may attend to our work here and do our job here for some sixty or seventy years.

"During that period we have practice work to do. And if our minds are opened, as the minds of some mystics, some visionaries, are, to the magnitude of the universe, we would be apt to tend to shirk our work. But let us remember that we are screened, and don't let us think of that appearance as a reality. We are not really isolated. We are guided and helped from the unseen and many a prophet and saint have been aware of this. The highest communicates with us at time through agents. 'God, who at sundry times and manners hath in these latest days spoken unto us by his Son.' What if that be true? I believe it is true, that the saints and the prophets have not been befooled. It is not a little universe. There are not half-truths. If true at all, it is wholly true.

"There are grades of existence far away beyond us. We trace the existence of men down to the black beetle and the amoeba. We don't trace the grades of existences higher and higher until we come to infinity, to God Himself.

Science to Build the Stair.

"We ought not to allow ourselves to be limited always to what enables us to do our daily work, but take a larger view also. Seers have taught us this. Now it has become the humble property of men of sciences to begin to establish this in an ordinary workday manner. Sciences, the sciences of the future, will have a message to humanity where-by the results which have been attained by the few can be made accessible to the many. The peak whence these things are visible has been reached by people who don't need to climb, who can ascend by balloons or some other method, by intuition and inspiration. We workers in science must construct the staircase, the road by which we slowly grope our way.

"We are going up the other side of the mountain. Gradually working our way toward the summit we begin to perceive sometimes that we shall find people who have got there before, by the paths of religion and anxiety and inspiration. We shall arrive at the same result by other channels—we shall, if we follow trust.

"The communion of saints has been taught us. We are finding that it is a reality. That which we call in science telepathy, the action of mind on mind, has been called also inspiration and prayer. These things are real. Mind, affection, aspiration, and love are not parts of the body. They are parts of the permanent reality. Eternity is now. The Kingdom of Heaven might be on earth.

"Don't think of the future as something toward which we shall go and at which we shall enter. Wherever we are it will always be the present. It will always be the now and here. The present is the opportunity for action and it always will be.

"But let us hold to the faith that we are helped, helped in our struggles by those who have gone before us. They are not removed out of our ken, save to this appearance of sense. They know what we are doing. We can strive to do what they can to help humanity. They have, as I believe, been active through all our terrible struggles, and the youth that we have lost has gone before us, bright-eyed, brave youth, keenly desirous that we shall not lament them overmuch, but realizing that they, too, have their job and are doing their works as we are trying to do ours, servants of the most high God. Think of them as with us still, screened only from our senses, not screened from us in reality."

No Faith in Denials.

The speaker said that leaders in discovery in anatomy and physiology, though commonly materialists, were to be trusted absolutely in their positive statements. When they deny, however, that there is anything which they and their instruments cannot perceive, he said, they were merely denying what they could not understand.

"In general," he continued, "positive statements are worth hearing, but a negative statement, denying something, too probably is not worth hearing."

Even though the mind could be seen functioning each molecule doing its part, he said that the soul, the life and thought, could not be understood any more than a spectator who could see through a small hole an orchestra leader waving his baton would see how the music was produced.

"If you were watching the orchestra of the brain molecules," he continued, "they are only incarnating or getting into thought something which is beyond matter, which lies in the realm of the unseen of mind and thought."

"The soul constructed the body, the soul uses the body, the soul dominates the body, and the soul will survive the body, for it is of a different kind altogether. The body wears out. There is no reason why a soul should wear out. The body grows old. Some souls seem to grow old, but not necessarily. We understand the wearing-out of the body, but the main reality is not going out of existence. Things don't go out of existence. If the thing is real, it persists. All real things persist."

In his illustrations of the limitations of the human senses, which screen the invisible world and which made our understanding of visible things dependent on the slow progress of sciences through centuries, he mentioned the recent study of the constellation of Orion, saying:

"What the reality of that constellation may be I cannot say. One can imagine it must be something supernal that it should be so bright to us at the distance. Light, which travels at the rate of 180,000 miles per second, has taken 600 years to come. That is to say, when you look at the constellation Orion, you see light which has been traveling ever since the time of the Plantagenets, starting on its journey before this country was discovered and only now arriving, and there are many stars and nebulae enormously further off than that."

Senses of Lowly Origin.

The speaker pointed out, incidentally, that we were able to study the heavens and make some beginnings at the comprehension of the vastness of the universe, because our planet was surrounded by a clear atmosphere. We are cut off from the rest of the solar system by a cloudy or foggy atmosphere, such as surrounds Venus, he said, that our views would be "miserably constricted," a further proof of the mistake of depending on the senses for information.

"Remember," he said, "what our senses are and how they arise. They arise in the process of evolution to enable us to get our food and to escape our enemies. They rise from low down in the scale."

He asserted that our senses were not given for the purposes of philosophy that they were strained when used for such purposes, so that it was natural that progress was slow and mistakes were many. Another illustration, which he gave of the supposed deception of our senses, was that of pounding the table with one hand and beating the air with the other. The wood, he asserted, was a sketchy and unsubstantial thing with little reality to it, while the air was the solid and substantial thing. Space was generally regarded as emptiness, he said, as he continued:

Ether the Substantial Thing.

"To my mind the ether of space is a substantial reality with extraordinarily perfect properties, with an immense amount of energy stored up in it, with a constitution which we must discover, but a substantial reality far more impressive than that of matter. Empty space, as we call it, is full of ether, but it makes no appeal to our senses. The appearance is as if it were nothing. It is the most important thing in the material universe. I believe that matter is a modification of ether, a very porous substance, a thing more analogous to a cobweb or the Milky Way or something very slight and unsubstantial, as compared to ether."

He said that Einstein and his associates did not deny ether, but ignored it, because it was not subject to experimentation. He predicted that in twenty years, they would find that scientifically speaking, they could not do without ether.

ENGLISH TABLE SET, $3,000.

First Day's Sale of Mrs. Eben Sutton Collection Yields $16,525.

Big prices began early in the opening day of the sale of the remarkable collection of early American and English furniture, &c., of Mrs. Eben Sutton of Baltimore, at the

A WINSLOW HOMER SOLD FOR $28,000

"Wild Geese in Flight" Leads Sale of Collection of Paintings of Mrs. R. C. Lincoln.

NINE THAULOWS, $17,850

A Corot Brings $3,700, Cazin's "Landscape Sunset" $3,500, and a Small Mauve $3,050.

It was a Winslow Homer which brought the striking price in the sale of the collection of paintings of Mrs. Roland C. Lincoln, under the auspices of the American Art Association at the Hotel Plaza, Thomas C. Kirby in the auctioneer's chair, last evening. The Homer "Wild Geese in Flight" was a large and beautiful picture and it soared in price far above all others in the sale, going to the Macbeth Galleries for $28,000, more than half as much again as was paid for the entire lot of nine beautiful Frits Thaulows which individually brought some of the higher prices of the evening, but as a whole only reached $17,850.

It was a lovely soft toned picture, the wild geese in their gay brown and black plumage flying over the sand dunes on which were lying two of their companions brought down by the hunters. It was painted by the artist in 1907 and had been exhibited in the museums of Boston and Worcester, the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts and the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh. It started at $5,000, a higher price than was paid for any other picture in the sale, and there was a pleasure when it was knocked down for the selling price. In dimensions it was 34 inches by 50¼.

There were a few pictures in the evening's sale from other private collectors than Mrs. Lincoln, or from estates, and the Corot, "Ville d'Avray: L'Etang et la Maison Cabasaud," from the collection of the late Colonel Nathan H. Heft of Bridgeport, Conn., brought the second highest price, going to M. H. Goldblatt for $3,700, and it will go to Chicago. A Cazin, one of the Lincoln pictures, "Landscape: Sunset," went to Ex-Senator William A. Clark for $3,500. A small Mauve, "Winter Work in the Woods," went to John Levy for $3,050, and what was called the best of the Thaulows, "Winter Landscape," went to Howard Young for $3,050.

A small portrait, "Mary," by the American artist, George de Forest Brush, whose work is almost never found in public sale, went to Knoedler & Co. for $2,450. Some of the pictures were held at an upset price and passed, and the total for the remainder was $106,085.

A Tournieres, "Countess d'Ovigny," the property of E. H. G. Slater, was held for a $2,000 bid and withdrawn. A large Charlemont, "The Pages," one of the big pictures of the Yerkes sale, which then brought $6,400 and later was sold for $7,000, was held for a $3,000 bid last night and withdrawn. It was catalogued as the property of a private owner. Two or three other pictures catalogued, but not shown, were not in the sale.

COL. HARVEY AND WIFE ILL.

Editor Is Recovering, but She Is Low with Pneumonia.

Colonel George Harvey, proprietor of Harvey's Weekly and former editor of The North American Review and President of Harper & Bros., is ill with bronchitis at his home on Roseld Avenue, Deal Beach, N. J. He was confined to his bed for four days, but was able to get up yesterday, and will soon be able to return to his desk.

Mrs. Harvey, who was Miss Alma Parker, is seriously ill at their residence with pneumonia. She has been ill for a week and is now in a dangerous condition. The crisis of the malady is expected today.

ATTEND MILITARY DANCES.

Society at Balls of First Reserve Squadron and Col. Downs Post.

Two interesting military dances were held last night. The First Reserve Squadron Post, American Flying Squadron Club, held its first annual dance at the Waldorf-Astoria, while at the Hotel Astor, Colonel Wallace A. Downs Post 20, Veterans of Foreign Wars, gave an informal dance.

The First Reserve Squadron's dance was staged in the Sherry Apartments, and largely attended, the patronesses including Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Mrs. H. C. Bolling, Mrs. Butler Duncan, and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr. Dr. E. Garnsey Brownell, formerly Lieutenant Colonel, U. S. A., is the commander of the post. The First Reserve was the first to go over from the United States, and included Quentin Roosevelt, James E. Miller, Hobart Baker, Blair Thaw, and Reynal C. Bolling, all of whom were officers, and all of whom were killed.

The picturesque uniforms of the Old Guard lent color to the dance at the Astor. This post was organized six years ago in the Old Guard Armory. Many army and navy officers attended. Members of the ladies' auxiliary assisted in the arrangements of the evenings.

SIR ROBERT SYNGE KILLED.

Fall Fatal to Deputy Marshal of Ceremonies at Foreign Office.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Sir Robert Follett Synge, deputy marshal of ceremonies at the Foreign Office, died this morning as a result of a forty-foot fall from his bedroom window yesterday. He had recently been in poor health.

Sir Robert had been connected with the Foreign Office for thirty-five years, and in that time was officially concerned with receptions to President Wilson, President Poincaré and other distinguished visitors to England. He lived at 7 Chestnut Square.

Sir Robert's mother was a daughter of Col. Robert Dewar Wainwright of the U. S. Marine Corps, and his brother, Francis, married Miss Mary Tucker of Lenox, Mass.

D. A. MATHEWS DIES AT 98.

Oldest Member of the Old Guard, of Which He Was a Founder.

Daniel A. Mathews, oldest member of the Old Guard, who would have been 99 years old next Aug. 23, died yesterday at his home, 418 West 118th Street. He was born in 1821 in a house built by his father on a dirt road that then had no name and no other houses on it. The elder Mathews called the road East Broadway. The son attended Columbia Grammar School and became an art dealer on Cedar Street.

Mr. Mathews, in 1867, joined with other survivors of the City and Light Guards and formed the Old Guard. His funeral services will be held at the Old Guard Armory, 209 West Fifty-first Street, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Dr. P. Holly Smith.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 22.—Dr. P. Holly Smith, President of the Faculty of the Baltimore Dental College, Chairman of the Executive Council of the National Association of Dental Faculties, and one of the best known members of the dental profession in this country, was found dead in bed at his home here today. Heart disease was given as the cause of his death. He was 61 years old.

Obituary Notes.

JOSEPH LAMONT GAVIT, the son of John P. Gavit, an editor of Harper's Magazine, a nephew of Thomas W. Lamont, died at his parents' home in Englewood, N. J., last evening of typhoid fever. He was a student in Harvard College, where he was a member of the editorial staff of The Harvard Crimson. He was 21 years old.

THOMAS BOOTH HINDLEY, for eight years Vice President of the Musical Protective Union and bandmaster of Barnum's Circus in his youth, died Wednesday night of acute gastritis at his home, 1,302 Clay Avenue, the Bronx. He was born in England in 1853 and came here as a young man. He was formerly musical director of the Old People's Theatre on the Bowery, Miner's Fifth Avenue, Knickerbocker and Empire Theatres.

WILLIAM R. LESTER, art critic and one of the book review editors of The Philadelphia North American and former dramatic editor of The Philadelphia Record, died in Philadelphia last night. Mr. Lester was about 65 years old.

THEODORE DOUGLAS, consulting engineer, President of the Hudson Equipment Corporation and Duplex Engine-Governor Company, died on Wednesday in his fifty-first year. He was graduated from Yale in 1894, spent three years in Italy in archæological research, and later traveled extensively in this country and Central America as an expert for metallurgical and mining companies. JULIUS FLEISCHMANN, JUST DIVORCED, TO WED

Ex-Mayor, Said to Have Settled $2,000,000 on Former Wife, to Marry Mrs. Hemingway Today.

Julius Fleischmann, former Mayor of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Laura G. Hemingway of 176 West Seventy-second Street, will be married today by the Rev. H. C. Wasmund of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Brooklyn.

The marriage will be celebrated just two days after Mr. Fleischmann's divorce. On Wednesday Mrs. Lilly Fleischmann obtained a decree of divorce from him in Cincinnati, the decree being granted by Judge C. W. Hoffman in the Court of Domestic Relations.

Mr. Fleischmann did not contest the suit and the hearing was perfunctory, only two witnesses besides the plaintiff testifying relative to allegations of neglect and statutory cruelty. In her testimony Mrs. Fleischmann referred to a "Mrs. Hemingway." She was awarded $25,000 a year as alimony and a Summer home in New London, Conn. The reported settlement on his former wife of $2,000,000 by Mr. Fleischmann was not announced in court.

Mr. Fleischmann was Mayor of Cincinnati two terms. He is 47 years old and resides at 100 West Fifty-ninth Street. He is head of a large business interest in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Hemingway, who is 30 years old, is the daughter of Edward Leach, who resides at the Hotel Marie Antoinette. She obtained a divorce from her husband, Lewis Hemingway, in 1919. Mr. Fleischmann and Mrs. Hemingway have been friends for several years.

Alex. J. Hemphill Has Influenza.

Alexander J. Hemphill, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Guaranty Trust Company, was taken ill with influenza yesterday at his office, 140 Broadway, and was removed to his home, 13 East Sixty-ninth Street. At his house last night it was said that his condition was not alarming. He is resting comfortably and his recovery is confidently looked for.

Listen, Lester!

You evidently never tried a Par-amount Shop, judgin' from your little "pome."

A WISH

"Backward, turn backward, O
Time, in your flight,
Give us our sugar, so gleaming
and white,
Give us the old-fashioned thirty-cent lunch,
And blooming young soup greens
at two cents a bunch.
Orchestra seats at a dollar a throw,
Good shirts and kellys at two bucks or so.
Backward, turn backward, O
Time, in your flight,
Give us our hops again, just for to-night."

Lester Lamb, in The Evening Mail

You won't find any sugar, or any lunches, or any soup greens, orchestra seats, kellys or booze, but Lester, "them there good shirts is here," at $2.00 and $2.50—not to mention scores of other standard-priced needables for the well-dressed man.

And what's more, they're guaranteed to please, or your money back.

Cordially,

YALE AND HARVARD CLUBS WIN AT SQUASH

YALE CLUB KEEPS UP WINNING GAIT

Maintains Clean Slate in Class B Squash Title Tourney, Beating Columbia Club.

LOSERS MAKE GAME FIGHT

Harvard Club Team Thrashes Crescent Players Soundly and Has Firm Grip on Second Place.

METROPOLITAN LEAGUE.
CLASS B.
Standing of the Clubs.

Club.	Played.	W.	L.	P.C.
Yale	6	6	0	1000
Harvard	7	5	2	.714
Crescent	7	3	4	.429
Columbia	6	1	5	.167
Princeton	6	1	5	.167

The Yale Club squash tennis players still reign in Class B of the Metropolitan League, winning their sixth successive team match yesterday afternoon from the Columbia University Club on the latter's own courts by the score of 3 to 2. The victors got a good scare, however, before pulling the decision out of the fire, dropping the first two individual contests.

Harvard's representatives increased the margin of their hold on second place by dropping the Crescent Club below the 500 mark with a clean sweep of 5-0. The New Mooners are still ahead of Columbia and Princeton, who are now tied for last place in the race.

The much defeated wearers of the Blue and White, who finished without a victory in Class A of the league, and have only one to their credit in the lower division, put up a great fight yesterday against a clearly superior team, and came very close to upsetting the leaders for the first time this season. In the two matches put on simultaneously at the start of play Columbia sprang a double supprise, for in both cases the Yale men were considered the stronger.

J. N. Worcester and R. E. Wigham, however, came to time in great style, and disposed of J. A. Vietor and Clyde Martin, respectively, in straight games. Worcester's scores were 15–10, 15–11, while Wigham overcame the hockey star by the count of 15–9, 15–8.

Putnam Puts Up a Battle.

When W. H. Putnam held William Adams, Jr., close in the opening game of the next match to take the court it appeared that he had at least an even chance to complete the defeat of the Elis. Realizing that the final decision might depend on him, he made a desperate effort to square things in the second game. But Adams ran into a long lead, and was finally within a point of the match, with his opponent still trailing at the total of nine.

Here Putnam braced remarkably, while Adams simultaneously grew a trifle careless in his play, with the result that the loser actually came from behind for 5 successive points and set the game at 14-all. Putnam managed to win one of the extra tallies also, but here his streak stopped suddenly. Adams woke up to the danger of the situation, and put on all speed for a dazzling finish. By hard and accurate hitting he gathered the 3 points still necessary for victory, and saved the day for his side.

When Stuyvesant Wainwright defeated R. V. Mahon, 15–8, 15–8, the two teams were tied, and everything depended upon the final match of the afternoon, which brought together H. R. Stern of Yale and I. H. Cornell of Columbia, probably the two strongest of the opposing players.

Decision Goes to the Blue.

The Eli representative won the opening game by a comfortable margin, scoring at 15–8, but in the second he found the hard-hitting Columbian more and more difficult to handle. It was a fairly even proposition up to double figures. Then Stern crept ahead to the count of 13, where he stayed for several hands, trying in vain to put over the winning points.

Cornell meanwhile had reached the total of 11, and was threatening to tie things up again, showing a most stubborn defense and remarkable getting ability. Two hard-luck shots, which hit him after he had seemingly avoided the flight of the ball, broke up his last opportunities for a stand, and, after hanging on for one more rally, he missed two in succession, which decided the day's play in Yale's favor at 15–11.

Harvard's walkover was made easier by the fact that the Crescent Athletic Club was represented by only four men, one of whom was very late in turning up. The earlier matches all had a decided Crimson tinge, although C. W. Dinges forced John Munroe to travel at his fastest pace before winning in three games, 15–12, 10–15, 15–5. F. S. Whitlock went through M. M. Sterling in impressive style, taking the second game at 15–4, after pulling through the first with little to spare at 15–12. Harold Rowe, the Crescents' newest star of the racquet, who had not previously lost a match in the series, succumbed to Geoffrey Taylor yesterday by the one-sided count of 15–5, 15–5.

Torrance Scores in Two Games.

The veteran, N. F. Torrance, was delayed in arriving, and had little chance against the speed and court experience of Hewitt Morgan, former Massachusetts State champion, who defeated him in two games scored identicaHy at 15–9. With the match as a whole already lost, there was little reason for the Crescent man to exert himself, yet he kept his opponent on the run throughout, and made him work hard to earn his points.

The absence of A. W. Baxter, Jr., gave Harvard the remaining encounter, A. H. Tomes winning by default, and making the final count 5 to 0 in favor of the Crimson. This is the worst beating the Crescent players have received this year, and indicates that Harvard's alumni may yet finish strongly enough to overtake Yale as they did in Class A, with a possible victory in both classes in the event of a play-off.

The national Class B individual tournament will begin tomorrow on the courts of the Yale Club with a record-breaking entry list of eighty, including all the players who have been taking part in the league matches. At the same time and in the same place a professional challenge match will be played, Frank Lafforgue of the home club meeting W. D. Ganley, who coaches the Harvard squash experts. These two stars will play from scratch, the best out of five games tomorrow, and a duplicate series on the following Saturday, the winner meeting James Mullins of the Columbia University Club, with the ultimate object of challenging Walter Kinsella of the Squash Club, the open champion of the world.

Harvard, 5; Crescent, 10.
Hewitt Morgan, Harvard, defeated N. F. Torrance, Crescent, 15–9, 15–9; John Munroe, Harvard, defeated C. W. Dinges, Crescent, 15–12, 10–15, 15–5; F. S. Whitlock, Harvard, defeated M. M. Sterling, Crescent, 15–12, 15–4; Geoffrey Taylor, Harvard, defeated Harold Rowe, Crescent, 15–5, 15–5; A. H. Tomes, Harvard, won from A. W. Baxter, Jr., Crescent, by default.

Yale, 5; Columbia, 2.
J. N. Worcester, Columbia, defeated J. A. Vietor, Yale, 15–10, 15–11; R. E. Wigham, Columbia, defeated Clyde Martin, Yale, 15–9, 15–8; William Adams, Jr., Yale, defeated W. H. Putnam, Columbia, 15–10, 17–15; Stuyvesant Wainwright, Yale, defeated R. V. Mahon, Columbia, 15–8, 15–8; H. R. Stern, Yale, defeated I. H. Cornell, Columbia, 15–8, 15–11.

Kelly to Row in Diamond Sculls in English Henley

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—John Kelly of the Vesper Boat Club, and national single sculling champion, will try to win the Diamond Sculls at the Henley regatta in England next Summer, and expects to enter the Olympic rowing races later in Belgium. He said today he would not row in fours and eights for the Vespers this year, but would confine himself to sculling. If he wins the Diamond Sculls and is picked among others to represent the United States at the Olympic regatta, he said, he expects to pair up with Paul Costello of this city for the double sculling event.

DEMPSEY APPEALS TO BOXING BOARD

Requests Investigation of His Exemption from Military Service During War.

In reply to resolutions adopted by various posts of the American Legion, referring to the fact that he was not in uniform during the war with Germany, Jack Dempsey, champion heavyweight, has telegraphed to the Army, Navy, and Civilian Board of Boxing Control in this city asking for a complete investigation of his activities while hostilities were on.

Dempsey in his telegram denies that he made any attempt to dodge the draft, and offers to furnish proof to establish that claim.

The telegram from Dempsey was received in New York last night, and the Arbitration Committee of the Board of Control will decide at an early date whether or not it should comply with Dempsey's suggestion that an investigation of his war record be held.

The telegram follows:

"Major Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, President Army, Navy, and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, 340 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.:

"Last June you gave to me a boxer's license, No. 2, which certified on the face of it that I had a clean and honorable record as a boxer.

"Since that time a few posts of the American Legion, which are not in any way familiar with my record, adopted resolutions condemning me as a 'draft dodger' in the late war, an indictment wholly unsupported by facts.

"What I have done has been to follow implicitly the instructions given to me by the representatives of the Government. The slogan at that time was, 'follow the Government's instructions.' That applied to me as to every other citizen in the United States, and I was carrying out their orders and abiding by their instructions, and I was not a 'draft dodger' as these few Legion posts have declared and who base their decision on false evidence, through persons who are trying to put them over to further their own selfish interests. Am I to be crucified and condemned because I followed the orders given to me by the Government?

"This is an appeal to you as a body of thorough and honorable sportsmen whose aim has always been justice and fairness and a square deal for all, to investigate this matter thoroughly, and if I am innocent of the charge of 'draft dodger,' clear me publicly before the world, and if I am guilty, condemn me.

"I will either present myself personally for examination by your board, or submit to you, upon telegraphic request, a complete statement of my activities during the war in affidavit form, and I agree to abide by your final decision in the matter, as to be misjudged without a chance to prove my innocence is cruel, and I feel that your honorable board will at least see that justice will be done to me. JACK DEMPSEY."

NINE GAMES FOR BUCKNELL.

Football Schedule Shows Several Changes from Last Year.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Jan. 22.—Bucknell's football schedule for 1920 was announced here today by the athletic authorities. Nine games are booked, one less htan last season, when Pennsylvania was added that the college had opened.

The outstanding changes from the schedule of last Fall are the addition of Lafayette and the omission of Syracuse and Penn State. The former will be played at Easton on a two-year agreement basis. Syracuse and Penn State, both of whom were held to 9 to 0 scores last season, requested places on Bucknell's 1920 schedule.

The schedule follows:

Oct. 2, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; Oct. 9, Ursinus at Lewisburg; Oct. 16, Navy at Annapolis; Oct. 23, Muhlenberg at Allentown; Oct. 30, St. Bonaventure at Lewisburg; Nov. 6, Lafayette at Easton; Nov. 13, Gettysburg at Harrisburg; Nov. 20, Susquehanna at Lewisburg; Nov. 25, Dickinson at Williamsport.

COAST NINE TO TOUR EAST.

University of California Granted Permission to Make Long Trip.

BERKELEY, CAl., Jan. 22.—Permission has been given the University of California baseball team by the Executive Committee of the associated students to tour the East this Summer, meeting many prominent colleges of the Atlantic Coast and Middle West, including dates with "Big Three" teams, it was learned today.

The first game is scheduled with the University of Utah on May 15. Other games follow: May 25, Michigan; May 28, Cornell; June 2, Harvard; June 6, Syracuse; June 10, Dartmouth; June 11, Princeton; June 12, Pennsylvania; June 19, Illinois.

TO HOLD TENNIS MEETING.

Metropolitan Association Will Foregather Next Thursday.

A meeting will be held next Thursday afternoon, Jan. 29, of delegates from all the tennis clubs comprising the Metropolitan Association, to decide upon the policy of the organization for the future. The meeting will be held at the office of Charles Chambers, 103 Park Avenue, room 1,013. Abraham Bassford, Jr., Chairman of the National Ranking Committee, and S. Wallis Merrihew, Chairman of the Rules Committee, will both be present to explain the suggested changes in the laws and customs of the game which are to be brought before the annual meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association in February.

It is probable that application will be made this year by the Metropolitan Association for admission to the National Association as a regularly organized body, with an independent vote, as such. This will be one of the chief subjects for discussion at next week's meeting. Mr. Chambers is President of the Metropolitan Association and the Secretary is Jones W. Merserseau.

During the last season eight clubs participated in the series of interclub team matches, which were played in the form of a knockout tournament on successive Sundays. The championship of the Metropolitan District was won by the New York Tennis Club, which defeated the University Heights Club in the final round, the latter having disposed of the West Side Club in the semi-finals. The winners later defeated Philadelphia in an intercity match.

HUGGINS RETURNS WITH GOOD TIDINGS

Babe Ruth Agrees to Yankees' Terms and Will Play in the Right Garden.

"Babe Ruth told me he was delighted to get the chance to play with the Yankees and has agreed to everything we asked him to do."

These words were part of the good tidings which Manager Miller Huggins of the Yanks brought back with him from the Pacific Coast. Huggins got in yesterday, seven hours late, and was full of enthusiasm about the club's prospects for this season. He admitted that he had several trades on the fire, one for another outfielder and another for a catcher. He refused to mention the names of the clubs with whom he is negotiating.

Ruth told Huggins that he expected to make a new home-run record on the Polo Grounds. The Yankee manager also said that all the talk about Ruth going to change his batting style by choking his hold on the bat to enable him to make more hits was all bosh.

"I will play Ruth in right or left field," said Huggins; "probably in right." As left field at the Polo Grounds is the sun field, Huggins does not want to risk injury to Ruth's batting eye by playing him in the blinding sun.

"There will be no trouble about Ruth. He has agreed to all our terms and is perfectly satisfied," continued Huggins. It is understood that the manager brought back with him a written agreement with the home-run slugger covering the new contractual conditions under which he is to play here.

Ruth's prowess on the golf links in Los Angeles has evidently been somewhat exaggerated. When Huggins was asked if Babe was cracking the golf ball 240 yards, as reported, the Yank's manager said he didn't know much about golf. He did admit, however, that the professional at the golf club him that Ruth was a great swinger, but he "couldn't hit 'em."

Ruth Not in Movies.

The new Yankee player will probably come East within three weeks. He has not yet gone into the movies, as reported, and probably will not decide to become an actor this Winter.

Huggins displayed more enthusiasm about the youngster, Bob Meusel, than he did about Ruth. "Meusel is the talk of the coast," said Huggins. "I have not seen him play but I talked with him and he has the right spirit. All the ball players I talked with on the coast cannot praise him too highly. They predict that he is another Bill Lang. He is tall and has a long stride which makes it appear that he is not moving fast. But, nevertheless, he can cover a lot of ground in quick time. At Los Angeles he hit the ball into the bleachers, in the same place that Ruth hit a homer. He played with Vernon last season and was a sensation. I don't like to praise youngsters too much before they have shown what they can do, but good judges of players were so enthusiastic about Meusel that I cannot help but be enthusiastic myself. He is a right handed hitter and weighs 190 pounds. I may try him in the outfield but he showed that he was also a fine infielder on the coast last season.

"I also saw Bill Piercy, the pitcher, and he had a great season last year and may prove a success with us this season. I did not see Duffy Lewis while I was on the coast but I think he will be with us on the Spring training trip.

"There is a great scarcity of left handed pitchers this year," continued Huggins. "There are only two left handers in the whole country outside of the major leagues. One of these is Dick Neuhaus, who was with St. Paul last season and who has been signed by Cleveland. The other is Duster Mails who used to be with Brooklyn. He is with Seattle and is a great pitcher, but is as erratic as Rube Waddell used to be.

Clubs Not Anxious to Sell.

"It is very difficult to make a deal with any of the major league clubs because they all enjoyed good years last season and are not keen to lose any of their men. It would seem that every ball player in the country is calling for more money next season. There is one player on the championship Cincinnati Reds, I understand, who has made a demand for a salary of $14,000. Every player in the game, good and bad, wants a raise.

"One of our pitchers, O'Doul, played on the coast after the major league season, and his arm is in fine shape. When he faced Babe Ruth in an exhibition game he struck him out twice. The third time up Ruth pasted the ball over the fence."

Huggins does not believe that the rule ought to bar freak pitching. He thinks a good deal of it bunk, anyway, but those who have perfected a trick delivery ought to get credit for it. The only objection to trick deliveries, according to Huggins, is that they sometimes delay the game and start arguments with the umpires. As far as minimizing the batting is concerned, Huggins says that there is enough batting in the game now to satisfy the fans.

When asked if he was after Walter Johnson, Johnny Tobin, Bobby Roth, Wally Schang and other players who have been mentioned in the baseball rumors lately, Manager Huggins remarked, "We are going to get any players that are available and will get anyone we can who will strengthen the club."

Manager Huggins says that he thinks the Yanks will start for the training camp at Jacksonville on Saturday, Feb. 28. Secretary Harry Sparrow wired the office here yesterday that the greatest double header in the history of the game has been arranged for Jacksonville on March 29, Jubilee Day. On that day the Yanks will play Cincinnati in the first game and in the other game of the double header the Washington Club will play Brooklyn.

Manager Pat Moran of the Cincinnati Reds is paying a personal visit to his ball players. He has already signed Ray Fisher for next year and visited Brooklyn the other day and signed Jimmy Ring. Moran expects to have all the players in line before issuing the call for the Spring training trip to Miami, Fla.

TYLER REGAINS HEALTH.

Cubs' Southpaw Pitcher Has Teeth Pulled and Pains Disappear.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—The services of George Tyler, star left-handed pitcher of the Chicago Nationals, have been saved through extraction of nearly all his teeth, it became known today with the announcement from William Veeck, President of the Cubs, that Tyler would be one of the vanguard of four to go to Hot Springs, Ark., on Feb. 10 or 11.

Throughout last season Tyler was on the sick list, pains in his shoulder and back rendering his mound work ineffective. Shortly after the season closed Tyler went to two specialists for an examination. They found him almost a perfect physical specimen, but advised that he have nearly all his teenth extracted. Tyler returned to his home at Boston and soon had all his "sick teeth" pulled. Only three teeth were left.

A letter yesterday to President Veeck announced that the old pains had disappeared and that there seemed no reason why the pitcher should not be able to take his regular turn on the mound next season. Alexander, Vaughn, and Hendrix will accompany Tyler to Hot Springs to prepare for the regular training season.

FEATHERS AND FURS DRAW LARGE CROWD

Poultry Show Proves Increasingly Powerful Magnet—Judging in Many Classes.

The annual exhibition of the New York Poultry and Pigeon Association at Madison Square Garden has reached the stage where born and bred urbanites begin to sit up and take notice. Yesterday, the third day of the show, found the farmers and breeders almost outnumbered by the apartment house dwellers of Manhattan. The tiller of the soil rubbed shoulders with the banker and broker; the poultryman from Honokus hobnobbed with the merchant from the upper west side, and answered his questions about the difference between a Jacobin and a pigeon, or enlightened him concerning the dun-laced satinettes.

Many New Yorkers whose sole acquaintance with nature and the barnyard has been gleaned from strolls through the Bronx Park zoo discovered yesterday that peanuts cannot be fed as safely to geese, ganders and turkeys as they can to elephants and monkeys. There were several black and blue finger tips last night as a result of trying to be playful with a badly tempered Toulouse goose. These Gothamites learned, too, that a cavy is not a rabbit but a species of guinea pig, and that they are referred to as boars and sows, and not as bucks and does. It's a liberal education in some respects, this assembly of quacking ducks, haughty, crowing roosters, and the chirps and peeps of the other feathered and furred actors at the Garden.

There were thirty entries yesterday in the class for Buff Orpington hens, and the winning owner was Professor Henrietta Edgecomb Hooker of South Hadley, Mass. Her winner which has jumped to a value of approximately $1,000, is to be sold and the proceeds are to go toward the fund of $3,000 being raised for Holyoke College.

Dark Cornish were also included in the breeds judged and the largest winners were W. A. Fitzpatrick of Scranton, Pa., Frank H. Clement of South Bethlehem, Pa., and Ulmer L. Maloney of Matawan, N. J. The two Dark Cornish cockerels brought from Helena, Mont., by R. B. Thienhardt, noted winner in the Northwest, got only second and third places.

J. Robinson Beard of Lucknow Farm, South Norwalk, Conn., in addition to other winnings took first prize for the best old pen of Buff Orpingtons, a cock and four hens. This was his third victory in succession at Garden shows. The winning cock was the same bird that headed last year's prize pen. Another amateur poultryman, Andrew Albright, Jr., of Pastime Farm, Newark, won second in the class for old pens and first in the division for young pens, made up of cockerels and pullets. This is the first Garden show at which a difference has been made between old and young pens, the point having been raised by fanciers that it was unfair to have old and young birds in competition.

CAT SHOW AT THE GARDEN.

Royal Siamese Breed Represented Among Many Rare Exhibits.

Cats, pussy cats, tom cats and plain tabbies, cats with long tails, cats with short tails and cats without any tails, red-headed cats, cross-eyed cats and cats with pug noses, all held court yesterday at Madison Square Garden, while hundreds of grown-ups and kiddies paid homage. It was the occasion of the combined annual show of the Empire Cat Club and the Silver Cat Club of Brooklyn, which will continue through today and tonight.

It was no ordinary show yesterday which divided attention with the poultry show. Cats which are not seen in one out of ten exhibits found their way to the plush-lined, cretonne-covered wire cages. Perhaps the greatest feline curiosity was a late arrival last night, a royal Siamese, which purrs when called NeKong. This imported foreigner was bred and raised at the royal palace in Bangkok and is now the property of Mrs. I. J. Ketchan of New Rochelle, who is managing this year's show. (NeKong, in common with all others of this rare breed which are raised by Siamese royalty and presented as valuable gifts to intimates of the reigning house, was born pure white. At the age of three months its nose, tail, ears and muzzle turned a chocolate color, and when a Siamese is more than a year old it attains a dark, tawny color, has cross-eyes of a dark blue hue and when its muzzle begins to turn up it takes on the appearance of a pug dog.

Miss Florence Heran of 233 East Sixty-ninth Street exhibited yesterday one of the rarest of cats. Her Houri is a female, with a luxurious coat of white fur but which differs from other cats in the fact that it has one yellow eye and one blue optic.

GIANTS-RED SOX SCHEDULE.

Teams Will Play More Than Twenty Games in Spring Training Trip.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—A schedule of games to be played by the Boston American League Baseball Club and the New York Nationals on their Spring training trip was announced today by officials of the Boston team.

The dates are as follows:

March 20, Fort Worth; 21, Dallas; 22, Wichita Falls; 23, Red Sox versus Fort Worth at Fort Worth and Giants versus Dallas at Dallas; 24, San Antonio; 25, Austin; 26, Houston; 27 and 28, New Orleans; 29, Mobile; 30, Vicksburg; 31, Memphis; April 1, Memphis; 2, Nashville; 3, Atlanta; 4, Chattanooga; 5, Asheville; 6, Winston Salem; 7, Raleigh; 8, Norfolk; 9, Reading; 10 and 11, Polo Grounds, New York.

CADDOCK HERE FOR BOUT.

Wrestler Arrives to Complete Training for Stecher Match.

Earl Caddock, the heavyweight wrestler, who is matched to meet Joe Stecher for the world's championship at Madison Square Garden on Jan. 30, arrived in New York yesterday to complete his training for the mat bout. He appeared to be in fine condition and assured Jack Curley, promoter of the bout, that he would be in shape for the battle of his life.

Curley will give a luncheon at noon today at which Caddock will meet a number of local sporting men, after which the wrestler will go to Great Neck, L. I., and resume his training.

Hartford Purchases Outfielder.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 22.—Earl Potteiger, centrefielder for Worcester in the Eastern League last season, was bought by Dan Powley, Manager of the Hartford Club, yesterday. Al McClellan, pitcher, and cash were given in the trade. This was the only deal announced at the Eastern League meeting.

Monroe Clothes

How much further your dollar goes when you buy Monroe Clothes is easily explained—

Like every other Clothier we have certain expenses which must be considered in making prices—but unlike others such factors as "mark ups" for "Reduction Sale" purposes—Credit Account losses, which are absorbed by good pay and cash customers—excessive ground floor rents—extensive administration charges—and last, but not least, heavy middleman's and manufacturer's profits—form no part of your cost when you buy Monroe Clothes.

Other items, too, are borne in prices charged elsewhere—the style element if considered risky is proportionately taxed—and recent instances have been noted where advantage has been taken of the continuing high prices—and current stock instantly reflected it.

NEW ORLEANS FEATURE IS WON BY WAR GOD

WAR GOD RETURNS TO HIS BEST FORM

Captures Quickstep Handicap in Fast Time at New Orleans Fair Grounds.

WHITNEY COLORS IN FRONT

Sky Blue Carries Them to Victory in Sprint for Two-Year-Old Fillies—Shenandoah Wins Mile.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22.—The Ogden Stable's War God, a consistently good performer, which recently, however, has been unable to do better than finish second, finally found his racing legs at the Fair Grounds today and fairly ran off with the Quickstep Handicap, which was the feature on the card. This son of Uncle showed such improvement that the best Arnold by six lengths for the winner's share in the six-furlong dash, while Bullet Proof was third, three lengths back of the second horse.

The race was run in 1:12, which is the best time for the six furlongs that has been made in two weeks, and which gave proof that the track had finally become fast. Other races also indicated that the track was in good shape again, for the mile was run in a fraction over 1:39. The improved condition of the track, a bright sky and a good card made it one of the best days of the meeting.

The Quickstep Handicap attracted six starters and Arnold was made a 4 to 5 choice, with War God quoted at 5 to 1. Arnold raced to the front as the barrier went up and set a fast pace, with Courtship close at his heels. War God was trailing the field at this time, but, after going half the distance, Robinson moved up with him, and in a rush passed the others and set out for the finish with the best show of speed seen here in some time. War God drew away from Arnold with such ease that he was running all alone when he crossed the line. Courtship tired suddenly in the stretch and dropped out of the contest, enabling Bullet Proof to take third handily.

The colors of Harry Payne Whitney were again in front in the opening race of the day, when Sky Blue gained a close decision in the three-furlong dash for two-year-old fillies. She defeated Josie Gorman by a neck, just getting up in the last few strides to win, while Ruby Miekow was third.

It required some clever riding on the part of Jockey Ambrose to get Sky Blue home in front, as the filly broke slowly and had to move up on the field all the way. Miss Doro rushed away from the barrier in front, and led up to the last hundred yards, when she tired and quit. Meantime Ambrose had been gaining steadily with the Whitney filly, and, saving ground at the turn, came through on the rail and caught the front runners. Josie Gorman made a determined effort, but could not hold out against the rush of the winner.

F. Davitt's Shenandoah, which gave evidence last Fall of being a good distance performer, proved the best of the three-year-olds which went to the post in the mile test, third on the card. Shenandoah defeated Pirate McGee by only a head, but was moving away in the driving finish and was the strongest of all at the end. Heavy Weapon was third. Shenandoah did not get into the lead until he reached the stretch, when he caught Copyright, which had quit to a walk when challenged and finished far back. Pirate McGee, which had come from behind, raced with the winner through the last fifty yards, but could never get up.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For two-year-olds; maiden fillies; purse $700; three furlongs. Sky Blue, 114 pounds (Ambrose), even, 2 to 5 and out, first; Josie Gorman, 114 (Fitzgerald), 7 to 1, 8 to 5 and 3 to 5, second; Ruby Miekow, 104 (Troxler), 30 to 1, 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, third. Time—0:36. Miss Adrienne, Natalie, Marguerite Wood, Audrey A., Elizabeth May, Miss Dora and Chimnie Walsh also ran.

SECOND RACE—For four-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $700; six furlongs. RIDES THREE WINNERS, Carmody Again Stars at Havana—Alvord Takes Feature Race.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 22.—Jockey Carmody was again the riding star at the Oriental Park track today when, out of six mounts, he rode three winners and two thirds, his other mount finishing outside the money. His winning mounts were Bagdadine in the second, Blazesway in the third, and Regresso in the last race. Carmody began riding only last Fall and in the short time that he has been sporting silks has proved that, if he follows his present form, he will be the find of the season.

Alvord made it three in a row when he easily captured the fourth event, a five and one-half furlong dash for three-year-olds and upward, which was the feature event of the card. His victory was rather easy and he showed some sprinting qualities. He was outrun in the early part, but Tryon kept him at his task, and, closing with a rush, he took the lead in the last sixteenth and won by one and one-half lengths from Sirocco, which in turn was a length in front of Hamilton A. White Crown finally made good when he won the first race by two lengths. Hope, a real "hot" thing, was second, a length ahead of Pretty Baby.

Circulate, at 8 to 1 and the longest shot of the afternoon, was a surprise when he easily led home a big field in the fourth race.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse, $600; six furlongs. White Crown, 114 pounds (Crump), 5 to 2, even, and 1 to 2, first; Hope, 112 (Miller), 3 to 1, even, and 1 to 2, second; Pretty Baby, 107 (Carmody), 2 to 1, 4 to 5, and 2 to 5, third. Time—1:12 4-5. Rockaree, Steve, Lady Langden, Felicidad and Shiro also ran.

SECOND RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse, $600; six furlongs. Bagdadine, 104 pounds (Carmody), 8 to 5, 3 to 5, and 1 to 3, first; Beverly James, 114 (A. Collins), 3 to 1, 6 to 5, and 3 to 5, second; Zodiac, 109 (Brown), 12 to 1, 3 to 1, and 8 to 2, third. Time—1:13. Kerman also ran.

FOURTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse, $600; six furlongs. Clarendale, 106 pounds (Lux), 8 to 1, 3 to 1, and 8 to 5, first; Deckhand, 109 (E. Fator), 3 to 1, 8 to 5, and 1 to 5, second; Sister Susie, 107 (Carmody), even, 2 to 5, and 1 to 5, third. Time—1:12 2-5. Walter Mack, Cafeteria, Pierrot, Allah and Goldstone also ran.

FIFTH RACE—Paraguay Handicap; for three-year-olds and upward; purse, $800; five and one-half furlongs. Alvord, 107 pounds (Tryon), 5 to 2, even, and 1 to 2, first; Sirocco, 105 (Pickens), 8 to 5, 3 to 5, and 1 to 3, second; Hamilton A., 106 (Kederis), 3 to 1, 6 to 5, and 3 to 5, third. Time—1:05 3-5. The Blue Duke, Diversion and Hank O' Day also ran.

SIXTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse, $600; one mile and fifty yards. Regresso, 100 pounds (Carmody), 2 to 1, even, and 1 to 2, first; Fountain Fay, 114 (McCrann), 3 to 1, even, and 1 to 2, second; Exempted, 99 (Atkinson), 6 to 1, 5 to 2, and 6 to 5, third. Time—1::44. MAKE DERBY WORTH $50,000

Classic Kentucky Race Will Carry $30,000 in Added Money.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 22.—Following the policy of increasing the value of all important stake events, the Kentucky Jockey Club has made the Kentucky Derby the richest race run in America. General Manager Matt J. Winn announced today that the Kentucky Derby would this year carry $30,000 in added money, which will give it a value of more than $50,000, which is the value of the Latonia Championship Stakes established last year.

The derby last year had $20,000 in added money, while the Preakness, which is run at Pimlico, Md., had $25,000 added. The derby now displaces the Preakness as the richest guaranteed turf fixutre.

WRIGHT LEADS GUNNERS.

National Amateur Champion Breaks 337 Out of 350 at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 22.—With 350 targets already thrown in the 400 target race at Pinehurst, Frank Wright of Buffalo, the national amateur champion, leads the field by a margin of one bird, at 337. Wright and the four other guns comprising the Eastern team have broken 1,869 out of 1,750. The Western team, headed by Harvey Dixon of Missouri, which led the East by five targets last night, is now leading by a single target only, with a total of 1,870.

The Westerners' scores follow: Harvey Dixon, Missouri, 336; William Wettleaf, Iowa, 334; Frank Troeh, Washington, 334; P. H. O'Brien, Montana, 334; A. M. McCrae, Missouri, 332. Total—1,670.

The Eastern scores are: Frank Wright, New York, 337; C. B. Coburn, Ohio, 334; Dr. A. H. Aber, Pennsylvania, 334; Jay Clarke, Jr., Massachusetts, 332; Paul Earle, South Carolina, 332. Total—1,669.

POLY PREP HOCKEY VICTOR.

Defeats Commercial High on Ice by Decisive Score of 9 to 0.

Poly Prep's hockey team won its third straight game of the season on its own rink yesterday afternoon, defeating Commercial High School by a score of 9 to 0. During the first half the Commercial players pressed their opponents closely, holding Poly to a lone goal, scored by Woodbridge after seven minutes of play, but in the second period the Poly skaters tallied almost at will.

The teams used seven players each in the first half, but in the second, by mutual agreement, played with six-men teams. This was found advisable because of the smallness of the rink. With seven players team work was materially interfered with, the players getting in each other's way. This condition was greatly improved by cutting the size of the teams in the second half, which, incidentally, worked greatly to Poly's advantage. All of the winning team's scoring was done by Woodbridge, centre; Farah, rover, and Sadler, left wing.

Outdoor Skating Races Tomorrow.

The first outdoor ice races of the season to be held in Brooklyn under the auspices of the Eastern Skating Association are scheduled at the Utica Ice Rink, St. John's Place and Utica Avenue for tomorrow afternoon. One-mile races for Classes A and B in which liberal handicaps will be allowed are the features.

M'CABE TAKES LEAD BY DEFEATING WOOD

Youthful Pocket Billiardist Establishes New High Run of National Tournament.

NATIONAL POCKET BILLIARD CHAMPIONSHIP.

Player.	W.	L.	H.R.	P.C.
J. McCabe	2	0	28	1000
M. Hughes	1	0	14	1000
E. Kirby	1	0	17	1000
C. Wood	1	1	21	.500
F. Lawler	1	1	11	.500
W. Herbert	0	1	11	.000
C. Fulton	0	1	12	.000
A. Simei	0	2	15	.000

Thomas McCabe, the youthful player who has created such a sensation in the pocket billiard tournament for the national championship of the American Amateur Billiard Association, jumped into the lead in the race for the title at John Doyle's Academy yesterday afternoon by winning his second game in as many starts. He defeated Courtney Wood by a score of 100 to 88 and in so doing established the high run of the tourney, a cluster of 28. He might have made this considerably more but for carelessness. He had the balls well spread but, on his twenty-ninth try, he missed a simple cut shot.

Last night Edward Kirby, who won the championship last year, met and defeated Charles Fulton, the player who was runner up to him a year ago. The score was 100 to 60.

McCabe played a remarkably strong game against Wood. He is only a youngster, but plays with the steadiness and precision of a veteran. The fact that he is playing in his first championship tournament does not seem to have made any impression upon him. He plays as if he were engaged in nothing more important than a match against a friend, with the pleasure of winning the only thing at stake.

The young player jumped into a big lead soon after the start and at one time was nearly forty balls ahead of his opponent. Under the circumstances Wood played a remarkable game—remarkable in the fact that he was able to play so strongly during the closing frames as to place the issue in doubt and make the final score close.

Kirby had a comparatively easy time winning from Fulton. The latter has not been playing much pocket billiards recently and his game has suffered in consequence. His stroke is a bit rusty. He showed improvement as the game progressed, however, and it is reasonable to assume that he will regain much of the form that featured his play last year. Kirby was the same steady, strong position player and accurate shot maker that he has been for several years. In spite of the fact that he has been ill almost all Winter his stroke does not seem to have suffered in the least, nod has the keenness of his eye been dimmed. He did not make any particularly high runs last night, but he scored with an impressive consistency. Not once during the eleven frames the game consumed did he fail to count.

The scores by frames:

McCabe—10 4 13 14 12 5 1 11 2 13 0 5 7 3. Total, 100. High run, 28.

Wood—4 10 1 0 2 9 13 3 12 1 14 9 7 3. Total, 88. High run, 21.

Kirby—14 12 4 11 10 6 9 13 9 6 2. Total, 100. High run, 17.

Fulton—0 2 10 3 4 8 5 1 5 8 12. Total, 60. High run, 12.

CAHILL WINS CLOSE MATCH.

Defeats Pye in English Billiards by Score of 250 to 220.

ENGLISH BILLIARD STANDING. National Championship.

Player.	W.	L.	H.R.	H.A.
R. Morrison	3	1	55	.750
J. O'Nell	3	1	48	.750
J. Wood	3	1	41	.750
E. Cahill	2	2	35	.500
W. Waldron	1	3	38	.250
F. Pye	0	4	33	.000

The closest game that has yet been staged in the national championship English billiard tournament being held under the auspices of the American Amateur Billiard Association was played at John Doyle's Academy last night when Edward Cahill and Fred Pye met. Cahill eventually won by a score of 250 to 220, but the ultimate winner was not decided until the lead had alternated between the players several times.

It was nip and tuck throughout, with both players steadfastly refusing to take any unnecessary chances. The game was not featured by any high breaks, Cahill's best being 23, and Pye's 20, but strong safety play predominated. Both players preferred to make their points in clusters of seven and eight and then play safe. It was a test of defensive tactics, and in this respect Cahill excelled.

It took thirty innings to decide the match. It was not until the closing innings that Cahill took command of the situation. Then he jammed a break of 20 into the proceedings. It was this break that virtually gave him the victory.

HURD BEATS TILT IN POOL.

Advances in State Pocket Billiard Tourney by Victory at 100 to 82.

NEW YORK STATE POCKET BILLIARD STANDING.

Player.	W.	L.	P.C.
J. J. Maloney	1	0	1000
E. F. Reynolds	1	0	1000
J. J. Ahearn	2	1	.667
C. E. Hurd	1	1	.500
S. B. Burdett	1	1	.500
W. A. Tilt	1	1	.500
C. Shangood, Jr.	0	1	.000
H. Foss	0	2	.000

Two games were played yesterday afternoon and last night in the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players' Tournament for the pocket billiard championship of New York State at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. In the afternoon John J. Ahearn defeated Schuyler B. Burdett, 100 to 83, and in the evening Charles E. Hurd won from William A. Tilt, 100 to 82. Both games were closely contested and productive of some excellent playing.

The match between Hurd and Tilt served to attract a big gallery and the game developed into a nip-and-tuck affair, with the issue dangling in the balance until the last frame. Hurd took the lead at the start, pocketing twelve of the fourteen balls in the opening frame, and maintained it throughout, but at no time did he succeed in getting what could be called a safe or even a fair working margin over his opponent.

This match was replete with long shots and difficult cut shots. In this respect both players appeared to good advantage. As shot-makers they were very evenly matched. Hurd displayed greater ability in position play, and it was this that enabled him to win.

In the afternoon, Burdett, for some inexplicable reason, seemed nervous. He has had too much tournament experience this year to suffer from stage fright, but whatever the cause, it was apparent that he was off his game. On the other hand, Ahearn was steady throughout.

The scores by frames:

Ahearn—9 6 12 11 5 1 13 9 1 4 5 7 9 5. Total, 100. High run, 13, scratches, 4.

Burdett—8 2 2 0 10 1 5 12 10 4 5 7 5. Total, 83. High run, 12, scratches, 5.

Hurd—12 7 5 3 12 10 14 8 0 8 8 8 2 3. Total, 100. High run, 25; scratches, 2.

Tilt—2 1 8 11 2 5 3 0 5 14 5 5 6 12 3. Total, 82. High run, 19; scratches, 4.

BURKE IS VICTOR IN BOXING TOURNEY

Pittsburgher Leads Heavyweights in Crescent A. C. Tilts —Local Athletes Win.

Jack Burke of the Willow A. C. of Pittsburgh, who recently represented America in the international amateur bouts, easily fought his way to a victory in the final of the heavyweight class in the intercity bouts held at the Crescent A. C., Brooklyn, last night. Burke showed not only cleverness, but strong hitting powers.

Burke reached the final by defeating A. Tomeschek of the Paulist A. C. in the third round. Burke had had all the better of the bout up to that round, and after he had dropped his opponent in the third the bout was stopped by the referee. The Pittsburgh boxer then defeated Gordon Munce in the final in this class in three rounds, having the better of the contest throughout.

Some of the local boxers fared well in the bouts. Archie Walker of the Pastime A. C. gave some clever exhibitions, and was victorious in the final by defeating R. Pearsall. Sam Mosberg of the Pastime A. C. won the final bout in the 140-pound class by defeating T. Canavan of Boston, who drew a bye in the semi-finals.

The summaries:

Semi-finals, 130-pound Class—Archie Walker, Pastime A. C., defeated Benny Flynn, St. Mark's, three rounds, decision; R. Pearsall, National A. C., Brooklyn, defeated A. Angelo, Willow A. C., Pittsburgh, three rounds, decision.

Heavyweight—G. Munce, Bayonne, defeated W. Miller, National A. C., Brooklyn, two rounds; Jack Burke, Willow A. C., Pittsburgh, defeated J. Tomeschek, Paulist A. C., three rounds, stopped.

120-pound Class—J. Zelzio, Willow A. C., Pittsburgh, defeated Larry Goldberg, Pastime A. C., three rounds; W. Pomerantz, Pastime A. C., defeated Peter Nolan, St. Lawrence A. C., Boston, three rounds.

140-Pound Class—Sam Mosberg, Pastime A. C., defeated Talt. Willow A. C., Pittsburgh, 3 rounds.

Finals—127-Pound Class—M. Mariana, Greenwich Village, defeated S. Strauss, Pastime A. C., 3 rounds.

140-Pound Class—Sam Mosberg, Pastime A. C., defeated T. Canavan, Boston, 3 rounds.

130-Pound Class—A. Walker defeated Pearsall, 3 rounds.

Heavyweight—G. Munce, Bayonne, defeated rounds.

158-Pound Class—E. O'Hare, Union Settlement, defeated N. Florio, Paulist A. C., 3 rounds.

PENN LOSES TWO ATHLETES

Pittman and Cummings Barred from Track Team by Degree Rule.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—The University of Pennsylvania has lost two star athletes through the adoption of the degree rule. They are George Pittman, high jumper, with a record of 6 feet 1½ inches, and William Cummings, middle and long distance runner. The latter was counted upon as a point winner in the intercollegiates.

Pittman holds a degree of Bachelor of Arts from the University of Missouri, and is a student in the Medical School. Cummings has a similar degree from Pennsylvania, and is also in the Medical School. The degree rule bars a student from athletic participation who holds a degree from any college on the Carnegie list.

"I am sorry to lose these men," said Lawson Robertson, Pennsylvania track coach. "Pittman, with a little training, could make the Olympic team as a high jumper. I think he could do 6 feet 3 inches."

VICTORY UNDER PROTEST.

Titterton's Name Not On Program for Race He Won at Newark.

The Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union has inaugurated an investigation of the merits of the case of Frank Titterton, who won the five-mile senior metropolitan indoor championship at the Knights of Columbus A. A. meet in the First Regiment Armory of Newark on Wednesday night. It is stated that, because Titterton's name did not appear on the program, he started under protest in the race, and that, pending the outcome of the investigation, the prizes in this event were being held up. James O'Connor of the St. Anselms' finished second; James McGuinness, of the Mohawk A. C., third, and John Costello, of the Paulist A. C., fourth.

Under the rules of the A. A. U., an athlete whose name does not appear on the program is ineligible to compete unless the error of omission has been made through no fault of his own. In the present instance it is claimed that Titterton's entry was not received in time and that, therefore, he was ineligible to compete. It is said that his entry was returned to him. On the other hand, Titterton, who competed as an unattached athlete, declared that his entry was mailed in time. It is possible, of course, that Titterton put his entry in the mail in ample time but that it was delayed in reaching its destination.

PASADENA ENTERS CLAIM.

Asks Privilege of Holding Pacific Coast Olympic Tryouts.

The American Olympic Committee today received from Pasadena, Cal., a request that the Pacific Coast Olympic tryout games be held in that city next Spring. The question will be considered by the committee and a decision made later.

The petition is signed by Charles W. Paddock, holder of the interalliied 100 and 200 metre championships, and John T. Pearman, Secretary of the Pasadena Board of Trade.

The communication states that the city offers the best quarter-mile track in the Far West and will guarantee satisfactory accommodations for the competitors at reasonable rates. It is urged that the city be selected in view of its suitability in location, climate and all other respects, both from the athletes' and spectators' standpoints. Entries are assured from all of the colleges and athletic clubs of the section.

Secretary Frederick W. Rubien of the American Olympic Committee said today that three, if not four, preliminary meets would be held, one in the East, one in the Middle West near Chicago, and a third on the Pacific Coast, with the possibility of a fourth at some Southern point.

PRINCETON NOT INVITED.

Tigers Not Asked to Accompany Yale Track Team to England.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 22.—It was authoritatively stated here today by Dean Howard McClenahan, Chairman of the Board of Athletic Control, that Princeton has received no invitation, official or otherwise, to accompany the Yale track team and crew to England to compete against Oxford and Cambridge next Summer.

The only knowledge of the situation which anyone has here is based on a newspaper dispatch from New Haven which appeared last Sunday. Any impression of the attitude taken by Princeton men is founded on the above article and not on any official information.

De La Salle Wins Another.

The De La Salle midget basketball team won its eighth consecutive game yesterday afternoon when it defeated the Franklin School midgets by a score of 28 to 14. The game was played on bought by Dan Howley, Manager of the principal factor in the victory of his team. His floor work and his shooting feature the game.

Fire Department.

At fires of magnitude, necessitating long and continuous service, a meal-and-clothing service will be furnished to the members of the uniformed force by the Disaster Relief Committee of the American Red Cross Society. When such service is desired the commanding officer will transmit the preliminary signal 7-7-7-7, followed by the number of the box at which service is required. When this signal is received by the dispatcher in any borough of the City of New York he will notify the Disaster Relief Committee by telephone, calling Gramercy 5100, giving the representative of that committee the exact location where the service is required. Deputy Chief Robert H. Mainser is to take command of the relief work, and all relief given to the uniformed force will be afforded under his direction.

The following additions and correction to assignment books, Brooklyn and Queens, are to take effect at 8 A M., Jan. 23:

Additions: Station 3-153, fleet supply base, 3d Av. and 30th St. Assignments: Engines 279; H. & L. 109, 131; Deputy Chief 12; Chief of Batt. 40, 48. Will be responded to as high-pressure station. FOUND MRS. SPANG ABLE TO MAKE WILL Witnesses in Daughter's Contest Suit Say Mother's Mind Was Clear.

LAWYER DEFENDS TRUSTEES

Waiter Who Served Decedent Admits She Did Not Speak Kindly of Her Husband.

A jury in Surrogate Cohalan's court began hearing testimony yesterday in the suit by Mrs. Mabel Spang Crome of Copenhagen, Denmark, to break the will of her mother, Mrs. Rose E. Spang, who died last Summer in her apartments at the Waldorf-Astoria, on the ground that she was not of sound mind. Mrs. Spang inherited a fortune from her husband, Charles E. Spang, a Pittsburgh steel manufacturer, who left the contestant an annuity of $20,000 for life.

Mrs. Spang gave only $10,000 a year to her daughter and left the residue to Colonel Michael Friedsam, George W. Wickersham, and Dr. Henry Dwight Chapin as trustees for the "Rose E. Spang Foundation" for the relief of poverty and distress and particularly for the care of babies and young children who become objects of charity through abandonment or the poverty of their parents.

The three trustees were in court yesterday when Henry W. Taft, their counsel, opened the trial. Telling of the girlhood of the contestant, he stated that her parents found it difficult to control her, and her father appointed Mrs. Adele Van Lesser Kline as her guardian at $1,500 a year until Miss Spang married, and for this service he left $1,200 a year for life to Mrs. Kline. His will, which was read to the jury, gave the residue for life to his wife, after providing for the annuity to his daughter, and on her death the estate was to go eventually to such charities as the trustees might select.

Mr. Taft explained that Mrs. Spang elected to take the share of the estate allowed to her by the laws of Pennsylvania rather than under the terms of the will, and thus she got a half interest in the estate outright. Mr. Taft said that her purpose in giving her estate to the charity named was to carry out the original plan set forth in her husband's will. He contended that this point discredited the contestant's contention that Mrs. Spang's will was made as the result of undue influence. He asserted further that the public careers of the three trustees named by Mrs. Spang were sufficient argument against the allegation that they would use undue influence either individually or collectively against a sick woman 74 years of age. All, he said, had been close friends of Mrs. Spang for years. It was through Dr. Chapin, one of the best-known authorities on children's diseases, that she became interested in children's welfare work, although the doctor did nothing to influence her in the making of her will, Mr. Taft said.

William F. Barry, the first witness called to prove the execution of the will, is private secretary to Mr. Wickersham. He went to the Waldorf with Mr. Wickersham to witness the will shortly before Mrs. Spang's death, and said that although Mrs. Spang was ill in bed at the time her mind appeared to be clear and she signed of her own free will. Dr. Chapin, a nurse, and Leonard Ensinger, in charge of the waiters on the floor of the hotel on which Mrs. Spang had her apartments, were present, he said.

Ensinger, who also witnessed the will, testified that he believed she was of sound mind because he saw nothing during the twelve years he had known her to cause a contrary belief. She gave him $10 a week as a tip and $100 every Christmas. He admitted that she sometimes discussed her family affairs with him.

"Didn't she tell you she wished that her husband, who was paralyzed and blind, would die because she had no use for him?" asked Edgar T. Brackett, attorney for the contestant.

The witness denied that the language referred to had been used, but admitted that Mrs. Spang spoke of her husband in terms that were not complimentary. He denied that Mrs. Spang told him vulgar stories or read poems that were of that nature.

The trial will continue today.

Poughkeepsie Man Appointed Judge

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jaan. 22.—Announcement was made here today that Charles Morschauser, a local lawyer, has been appointed Judge of the State Court of Claims by Governor Smith, to succeed the late Charles R. Paris of Hudson Falls, who died several weeks ago and whose term would have expired Feb. 1, 1921.

What Saliva Means to Your Teeth

Its play between and about the teeth and gums is normally a means of protection, because it washes away food particles, helps to prevent protein plaques, tartar, and other harmful deposits. And it neutralizes unfavorable mouth acids because it is alkaline.

Pebeco counteracts "Acid-Mouth"—said to be the chief cause of tooth decay—because it stimulates the healthy flow of normal, alkaline saliva. Nothing better to whiten and brighten the teeth, and endow the gums and whole interior of the mouth with the exhilaration of KEEN health.

PARIS MYSTIFIED BY ALLIED POLICY

Russian Problem Obscured by Assertions and Denials as Premiers Return Home.

CAUCASUS PLANS IN DOUBT

No Decision Made in Regard to Sending Army to Bar Road to Far East.

BRITAIN IN ON PLEBISCITE

Will Send Some Troops After All to Help Police the German-Polish Areas.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—With no more Supreme Council and the next union of the Premiers scheduled for two weeks hence the Allies' Russian policy remains hidden behind a cloud of official and unofficial affirmations and denials which seem to remove any doubt that there is a great deal of uncertainty and not a little discord on the subject.

The Allies' Russian policy, so far as is known outside the inner circles, embraces two projects. There is the blockade-lifting project and the barbed wire fence project.

As for the blockade-lifting project, few details have been given in explanation of the resolution adopted a week ago by the Supreme Council announcing that trading would be permitted between the allied countries and the Russian cooperative societies. The French newspapers are insistent on further information, as are diplomats of other countries in Paris, and the news published in the English papers that trading has actually begun greatly disturbs the French and Italians, who are almost accusing the British of engineering a commercial coup. Having no information on which to base predictions of success for the project most French newspapers prophesy its failure.

As for the barbed wire fence project it appears that Lloyd George is trying out several schemes and having difficulty with the French. On Monday Lloyd George informed Marshal Foch that England "was not ready" to send her quota of eleven battalions into the plebiscite areas. Marshal Foch conveyed this information to the Supreme Council the same day with the statement that additional French troops would have to be placed at his disposal. The same afternoon a member of the British delegation stated that England was going to send troops to the Caucasus to bar the path of the Bolsheviki moving southward, and that the troops which would have been sent to the plebiscite areas would be among these forces.

On Tuesday the British partially reconsidered their inability to send plebiscite troops and notified Marshal Foch that they would furnish four instead of eleven battalions. This afternoon came from London a denial that Britain would not supply plebiscite troops. But the French officials say today that they are counting on only four British battalions.

Yesterday the British Foreign Office issued a denial that the "Allies" were going to send troops to the Caucasus. A report from London said that Britain had not sent any troops and might not. On the other hand, it is stated today that England will send instructors and officers and arms and ammunition to the armies of the Georgian and Azerbaijan republics, and the British Mediterranean fleet is in the Black Sea.

It seems to be pretty well established that Marshal Foch persuaded Marshal Wilson of England that England should send troops to the Caucasus. For the moment Marshal Wilson convinced Lloyd George, and, as I cabled Tuesday, during the afternoon the military leaders were in session considering what forces could perform the proposed task. It was considered that between 100,000 and 200,000 would be needed. This appears to have given Lloyd George pause, and no decision was taken, so far as can be found out, before the Premiers scattered.

With the Caucasus section of the barbed-wire fence thus in very poor condition, since Georgia and Azerbaijan, it is said, have not sufficient forces to hold a serious Soviet drive, Rumania and Poland are busy pressing the Allies to give them help in building their sections of the fence.

Rumania is getting uneasy about Bessarabia, which she annexed without consent of the Supreme Council and which she fears Lenin and Trotzky may try to get back some of these days. Rumania wants full title to Bessarabia, thereby arguing, through some brand of diplomatic logic, that she will be better able to hold off the Bolsheviki. Anyhow, she is quite certain she can do more against the Reds if she gets that territory.

Poland's diplomats say Lenin is going to send a million men against them in the Spring, and they must have help.

It appears that Petlura, of the Ukraine thinks that when the Reds start after the Poles it will offer him a good opportunity to even up old scores, and he plans to start something.

The barbed wire fence, in the opinion of some experts, seems strung on weak posts at this writing.

WASHINGTON ALSO PUZZLED.

Unable to Understand Allies' Shifting Russian Policy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The frequent apparent shifting in allied policy toward Russia has puzzled officials here and especially so because of the summary dismissal by the Allies of the original American project for opening trade relations with Bolshevist territories when it was submitted some months ago. At that time the Allies decided upon the blockade as the most effective means for defeating Bolshevism.

The American Government has not yet given its approval to the new plan. The State Department is awaiting official intelligence presenting details as to the manner in which practical application is to be given to the project, if such application is possible, before deciding what is to be the policy of the United States.

Officials here as well as Russian nationalists are interested to know the agencies through which the trade proposed to be permitted can be carried on without giving some form of recognition to the Bolsheviet authorities. It is not believed in Russian circles that the Bolsheviki will be willing to surrender the function of controlling commerce inside of Russia, and the expectation here is that the Moscow Government will refuse to recognize the representatives of the Russian co-operative societies now in England and France, and require that the Soviet's approval must be obtained for any other representatives who may be designated by the co-operatives for purposes of foreign trade.

Reds Now Seek to Resume Trade.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Mme. Andremva, Russian Soviet Minister of Commerce, is reported in diplomatic dispatches to be at Helsingfors trying to open negotiations with the allied powers for the resumption of trade relations.

Regarding the shipment of food to Russia by England for British subjects, she said that the Soviets had all necessary rolling stock and sledges at the frontier ready for transportation.

Many Trampled in Vienna Rush To Buy Scant Ration of Meat

VIENNA, Jan. 22.—Announcement recently that a limited supply of meat would be placed on sale at the central market, 3 ounces being allowed to each person, caused great crowds to assemble there.

Forty thousand persons gained entrance to the market at 6 o'clock in the morning and 20,000 more were trying to get in. Many fainted and were trampled by the crowd, while pickpockets added to the confusion.

Express train service between Switzerland and this city has been interrupted because of the coal shortage, and hundreds of persons visiting here have been inconvenienced.

ADVANCE OF REDS NOW SLOWING UP

British War Office Review of All Fronts Shows Denikin's Position Improved.

LETTS CONTINUE TO GAIN

Kolchak and Ministers Still at Nijni-Udensk—British Defeat Tribesmen in Mesopotamia.

LONDON, Jan. 22 (Associated Press).—The position of General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevist leader in Southern Russia, to all appearances is somewhat better, according to the War Office summary of the situation.

The inevitable pause has occurred which must follow any long and rapid offensive such as has been conducted by the Bolsheviki in Southern Russia. The further course of the operations will probably favor the side able to make the best use of the time at its disposal for reorganization.

This naturally will be easier for General Denikin, who is nearer his base and resources than the Bolsheviki, who have gone deep into enemy country and depend for supplies and equipment on partially destroyed railways.

Much depends upon the support afforded Denikin by the populace at his rear. Latest reports seem to indicate that he still commands their full confidence and loyalty. However, his losses of material in the recent retreat are bound to have a grave effect on future operations.

On the centre and left front of the Caucasus Army the Bolsheviki have been forced back from the line of the Sal River astride the Tsaritsn-Ekaterinodar Railroad. Further west they have made repeated attempts to cross the Don east of Rostov and have succeeded in establishing small bridgeheads on the left bank at two places. To the west of Rostov their attempts to cross have been repulsed with heavy losses. The Red cavalry here lost twelve guns, 100 machine guns, and many prisoners.

On the Crimea front the Bolsheviki are approaching Esthumsev, Chongar, and Perekop.

The Bolshevist advance in Siberia appears to have slowed down. The Allied High Commissioner has received a message from Admiral Kolchak in which the latter states that he is remaining there with the Ministers of his suite, whose fate he intends to share.

In West Russia the Letts, since the opening of their offensive on Jan. 4, have retaken a stretch of their own countryside, forced Lettish territory, and captured 13,000 prisoners and considerable material. Sixty miles of Lettish territory still remain in the Bolsheviki's hands.

A Bolshevist mission is reported to have arrived at Kabul, Afghanistan, and to have been received with great ceremony. Two emissaries from Constantinople are also said to be at Kabul.

Ramadan Shaiash, the Mesopotamian leader, has adopted an attitude of defiance toward both the British and Arab Governments. He is calling in loans advanced by the Mesopotamian administration to the people and sending agents far within the frontier to stir up trouble. A band of tribesmen attacked Abu-Kemel on Jan. 11, but was beaten off by the British. British airplanes caused heavy casualties. One plane picked up a wounded British officer and carried him 240 miles to a hospital.

It is reported officially that 20,000 persons have left Odessa within three weeks, due to activity of Bolshevist forces. Lack of transportation facilities make it impossible to evacuate the large numbers anxious to leave the city. At Novorossiysk, in Caucasia, arrangements are in progress for removing the wives and children of volunteer troops.

BOLSHEVIKI WANT ROLLING STOCK MOST

Delegates at Dorpat Say Chief Need Is to Restore Russian Transportation.

By ARTHUR E. COPPING.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DORPAT, Jan. 23.—Administrators from Moscow are emphasizing this paradox: Famished Russia is able and eager to supply food to well-fed Western Europe; Russia's half-starved millions are hungry for rolling stock. From locomotives and railway wagons the peasantry will be able to extract milk, butter, cheese and bread, especially bread. In the absence of transport Russia's vast stores of grain are as inaccessible for the greater part of Russia as during the war they were inaccessible for Britain.

After a liberal provision for national needs, those stores will leave a large margin available for export. Besides wheat, there is a goodly accumulation of flax ready also to be exchanged. Old indolent, luxury-loving Russia imported rolling stock to save the trouble of learning how to build rolling stock. Therefore there is no new construction now Russia has to meet the heavy strain resulting not only from the war but also from the protracted period of revolution. It is true the Soviet Government has established some locomotive shops, but their output has had an insignificant effect on the freight train famine.

While thus indicating their paramount need the Bolsheviki here gratefully appreciate medical supplies and invalid foods promised through co-operative channels. The truce with Esthonia is expected to mature into a peace next week, and one easy medium of communication exists in an unbroken railway between Reval and Petrograd. I am told that promised cargoes will be of incalculable humanitarian value in combating the widespread scourge of spotted fever, which is communicated by means of small vermin, and is playing havoc in the population weakened by malnutrition.

Already the conference here between Esthonia and the Soviet delegates is agreed in principle regarding concessions to the Esthonia, of which timber rights and the projected Reval-Moscow Railway. With regard to the latter I am informed the laws of Soviet Russia prescribe that foreign capitalists in the treatment of labor, local or imported, must conform to Government conditions of hours and wages.

Spotted Fever Sweeps East Galicia.

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 22.—Spotted fever is making increased ravages in Eastern Galicia, according to reports received here, of which decline there are more than 100,000 cases of the disease, and that 10,000 deaths have resulted.

DENIKIN'S REVERSES NOT ALL FOE'S DOING

Chief Causes of His Difficult Situation Less Military Than Political.

HAMPERED BY MINISTERS

Advisory Council Talked Too Much and Accomplished Too Little—New Government Formed.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NOVOROSSYSK, Jan. 9.—Owing to interruption of telegraphic communications from Rostov I have come to Novorossiysk to send this message.

Last week was one of rapid and startling changes in position of the armed forces in South Russia. The steady advance of the Bolsheviki in the Donets basin made it necessary to remove general headquarters and the Allied Missions from Taganrog on the Sea of Azov and the political centre from Rostov-on-Don.

When I left Rostov the Volunteer army had been pressed back into a corner of the Donets basin, north and northwest of Taganrog, while the Don army was holding out on a line running from about Likhaya eastward along the Don. On the Don General Mantoff dealt a severe blow to four Soviet regiments, capturing prisoners and many guns, while northeast of Tacanrog the Volunteer army had somewhat recovered its ground, strategically speaking.

The retreat of the White army is explained by the success of Budenni's Bolshevist cavalry in breaking through Denikin's lines at the point of junction between the Don and Volunteer armies. This once achieved, the strong cavalry force energetically developed its advance and forced the retirement of the opposing armies all along the front.

But the chief causes of the present difficult situation are not military; they are political. Last week Denikin suddenly abolished the special political Council and appointed in its place a government of ministers, with purely executive functions. This or some similar step should have been taken months ago. What was needed in order to facilitate the task of the army and enable it quickly to reach Moscow was a lightly moving campaign Government with power to improvise a temporary but effective form of administration.

Instead the effort of the army was weighted down by the existence of the cumbrous Advisory Council, with mixed legislative and executive functions, an organization that rendered practically impossible necessary rapidity of decision.

With the best intentions in the world the Ministers wasted valuable time in endless discussion of general political questions that might well have been postponed until after the reestablishment of a properly constituted central Government.

The result was that the elementary work of administration suffered and the simplest questions became involved with subsidiary irrelevant considerations.

It was not that the Government was reactionary; it was simply not strong, not firm, not definite. Proposed reorganization of the Government by means of an agreement between the Special Council and Cossack Government was frustrated by interminable negotiations during which both sides lost their way in a maze of pedantic details, as though they were framing a Constitution for all time. Reconstruction was impeded by the dislocation of transport and trade and by general disorganization and demoralization resulting from Bolshevism and civil war.

The Cossacks will now play a more important part than hitherto, and on the relations between them and Denikin the future course of events will largely depend.

Altogether, a revision of policy was inevitable, and it is fortunate that Sir H. MacKinder, M. P., arrived with the British High Commission just at this moment to afford British and French political representatives had been here a month ago Denikin's Government, so long isolated from the outside world, might have been able to steer a safer course. When the new Government is finally squeezed into this shockingly overcrowded town of Novorossysk it will be possible to pick up the broken threads and take stock of gains and losses and to frame a policy.

Up to now the retreat has gone further and faster than was expected. It need not have gone so far had there not been a serious error in retaining General Maimajevsky too long in command of the volunteer army's chief striking force on the way to Moscow. This General rendered good service, but Kharkov proved for him a Capua, and his example infected his subordinates and spoiled the discipline of a very fine army. His replacement by General Wrangel came too late to restore to the army its former tone.

A conference of all the Cossack territories is to meet at Ekaterinodar, seventy miles inland from here, to decide on a course of action.

DENIKIN MISSION COMING.

Will Seek to Establish Political and Commercial Relations.

NOVOROSSYSK, Jan. 10 (Russian Telegraph Agency).—A special mission from Southern Russia, headed by the Under Secretary of the Interior, P. P. Cronsky, will leave for America soon. The special task of the mission will be to establish political relations with the United States.

The mission will also take up the work of re-establishing economic relations between Southern Russia and America in respect to export and import. The members will be specialists thoroughly acquainted with economic, political, and military questions.

GERMANS FIGHT IN POLAND.

Several Killed and Wounded in Affray Near Guikervo.

WARSAW, Jan. 22.—Germans in Poland have exchanged shots near Guikervo, several being killed and wounded.

The Poles attacked and surrounded the Germans, according to information at hand, but later released them.

The Polish and German authorities consider the incident merely a local affair.

SOLD MELTED SOVEREIGNS.

Three, Crown Charges, Obtained $550,000 in Gold from Bank.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The taking of testimony was resumed today against the six persons, including Harry Lewis, a barrister, and Shure and Chamberlain, diamond merchants, who are charged with melting gold coin following their arrest, under a provision of the Defense of the Realm act.

Testimony today tended to show that no less than 110,000 sovereigns in gold were withdrawn from the Bank of England during the year by the accused men. The total weight of the metal was eighteen hundredweight. Lawyers for the Crown asserted the defendants had organized a remarkable system for obtaining coins which were melted down and the gold sold. During December alone, it was charged, they disposed of bar gold worth 9,000 pounds sterling, while during the month they succeeded in getting 26,000 sovereigns from the bank.

War Hero Is Nominated for Congress by Missourians on 302d Ballot

Special to The New York Times.

CAMERON, Mo., Jan. 22.—Captain J. L. Milligan of Richmond was nominated by the Third District Congress Convention early this morning on the 302d ballot after a continuous session since yesterday noon.

The nomination of Milligan marks the entrance of former service men into Missouri politics, many of his convention supporters being ex-soldiers, and petitions from ex-service men of both parties backing his candidacy. In the district are 6,000 voters who were soldiers.

If the vote, irrespective of party affiliation, goes solidly for Milligan on Feb. 14, the Democrats predict that their candidate will win by 4,00 majority. The League of Nations may be lost sight of in the campaign, as the Democrats are endeavoring to make the issue Americanism. "I hope to take up the issue of Americanism laid down by my Republican opponent and make the campaign on that question," was Milligan's commen on his nomination.

Milligan enlisted as a private in the 8th Missouri Infantry and was commissioned a Captain at Camp Doniphan. In the Meuse-Argonne offensive he was twice cited for bravery in action, once by General Pershing and once by Major Gen. Traub, his division commander. He was gassed at the capture of Evremont. Since his discharge he has been active in public affairs.

HARA SAYS JAPAN WILL KEEP HER WORD

RAILWAY JOINT ENTERPRISE

Right and Justice to Govern Dealings with China, Russia and All Nations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Declaring that the success or failure of the Peace Treaty depended "altogether on the spirit and manner of its operation," Premier Hara, in an address at the opening of the Japanese Diet yesterday at Tokio, said Japan would "be one of those States which will strictly carry out every term of the treaty."

The text of the Premier's speech was received at the Japanese Embassy and made public.

Mr. Hara reiterated Japan's determination to restore the leased territory of Kiao-Chau, in the Shantung Peninsula, to China, and said the Government was taking the "necessary steps to translate their often-declared determination into actual facts.

"It is a matter of regret," said the Premier, "that there are some foreign critics who remain under the erroneous impression that the whole Province of Shantung is involved in the so-called Shantung question. I am happy to be assured that the determination of the Japanese Government to abide by their plighted word to restore the leased territory to China and to work the railway as a joint enterprise of the two countries has never been shaken."

The Premier expressed the hope that the Japanese would put forth their best endeavor toward the advancement of the national resources with a view to making whatever contribution they could to the progress of the world.

"As regards the questions of the day," he continued, "those pertaining to China and Russia occupy the foremost place; they are the two great questions of the world and of vital interest to our own country. * * * The so-called Shantung question comprises, in the main, questions pertaining to the leased territory of Kiao-Chau and the Shantung Railway.

"The former is to be restored to China, while the other is to be worked under a joint enterprise of both countries, in accordance with the terms of the Chino-Japanese agreement of 1918. * * *

The Premier said that, in spite of the persecution to which Japanese were subjected in China and the boycotting of Japanese goods by the Chinese, the Japanese Government did not shut its eyes to China's financial difficulties.

"Russian affairs," he said, "are a matter of great moment to Japan. With the advance of the Bolshevist forces a very serious situation has developed in Russia.

"Of late the anti-Bolshevist forces of European Russia are on the wane, while both Great Britain and France appear to have come to a decision to render no further assistance to Russia. The Kolchak Government has to all appearances lost the power to control the situation.

"The Japanese Government have consistently striven for a policy of international concord in Siberia and particularly they have taken great pains to act in complete accord with America. Accordingly they approached the American Government of late with a view to carrying an understanding with them on the question of sending reinforcements to places where the forces of the railroad guards were more or less depleted.

"While their reply was being eagerly awaited, the commander in chief of the American army, Vladivostok sent a communication to General Ohi on the 8th inst. that, in accordance with instructions from the military authorities in Washington, the American forces would be withdrawn from Siberia.

"On the following day the American representative declared at the meeting of the special Interallied Commission that the American Government had come to the decision to cease their participation in the supervision of the operation of railways in Siberia and charged their representatives to withdraw from the Board of Committees.

"Subsequently, on the 12th instant, a formal reply to our overture was received, and it was explained that it was by mistake that the American commander's communication to his Japanese colleague at Vladivostok as above alluded to was made before the reply of the American Government was sent to the Japanese Government. For this the American authorities expressed their sincere regret."

Expressing an "extreme anxiety" to see a speedy establishment of a stable Government in Russia and achievement of the country's complete resuscitation, Mr. Hara affirmed it as the determination of the Japanese to make "right and justice their guiding principles in their dealings with other nations." Testimony of this purpose, he said, already had been given by Japan "in the line of conduct pursued by our country at the Paris Conference and by our policy in China and Russia."

Beyond his remark that the Japanese Government was extremely anxious to see a speedy re-establishment of a stable Government in Russia and an achievement of her compelte resuscitation, the Premier did not outline Japan's course toward that country and did not allude to the reported decision of the Advisory Diplomatic Council to withdraw Japanese troops from Siberia following the evacuation of the American expeditionary force.

SAYS LACK OF FUNDS CRIPPLES THE NAVY

Daniels Tells Congress Repair Yards Will Lose 14,000 Men Unless $10,000,000 Is Voted.

COONTZ SUPPORTS DEMAND

Ships That Are Capable of Operating Effectively in Emergency Dangerously Few, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—An appeal was made to Congress today by Secretary Daniels for a deficiency appropriation of $10,814,982.19 to keep the navy yards operating efficiently and retain nearly 14,000 skilled workmen, whose services in keeping the vessels of the navy in shape will be lost if the money is not granted. This is the second time since the middle of December that such an appeal has been made, and in submitting to Speaker Gillett a letter today recommending that prompt action be taken, the Secretary of the Navy also transmitted a letter from Admiral Robert E. Coontz, chief of naval operations, emphasizing the danger of the situation.

"The present unsettled conditions throughout the world demand that the ships of the navy be kept in efficient condition for action," Admiral Coontz declared in his letter. "The number of ships now capable of operating effectively in case of emergency is dangerously small. This condition is a direct result of a lack of funds with which to prosecute vigorously the required repair work on vessels whose material fitness has been lowered through the excessive and continuous demands of war service.

Maintenance charges have been reduced by disposing of the navy's auxiliary shipping as rapidly as possible, but unless money is appropriated by February a further reduction will be necessary to a point which will seriously compromise our national security, Admiral Coontz says.

Secretary Daniels also submitted to the Speaker letters from the chiefs of the Bureaus of Steam Engineering, Yards and Docks, and Construction and Repair, showing that unless an appropriation is made available something like 14,000 men will have to be discharged from the navy yards, and there will be a serious loss of efficiency in the navy. Mr. Daniels said that all the temporary employees have been discharged already, and that he was very anxious that none of the permanent force, which is needed in putting the fighting fleet in proper trim and repair, should be discharged.

Secretary Daniels's letter to Speaker Gillett read as follows:

"Jan. 21, 1920.

"My Dear Mr. Speaker: The serious situation with reference to the military efficiency of the navy impels me to write earnestly inviting the attention of Congress to the necessity of the deficiency appropriation of $10,814,982.19, requested of me in my letter to you of the 16th day of December, 1919, and which passed the House last Summer, but which failed of passage in the Senate. The conditions are much more serious now than they were when presented at that time, and are set forth in the accompanying letters from the chiefs of the Bureaus of Operations, Construction and Repair, Steam Engineering, and Yards and Docks. It will be seen from these letters that unless an appropriation is available there will be a serious loss of the military efficiency of the navy. These officers whose letters I am inclosing are charged with the responsibility of keeping the fleet in readiness for any emergency that may occur, and their letters show the necessity for this appropriation. I need not say to you that the necessity of discharging 13,000 skilled artisans, whose services to the navy in the war was one of the important factors of its efficiency, would be a matter of grave concern, and that without this appropriation it will be my painful duty to discharge these men, because there will be no funds to pay them. I am sure that the Congress, when they read these letters from the naval officers, who have given this matter great study, will agree with me that this is a matter of immediate importance, and prompt action will be taken.

"Sincerely yours,

"JOSEPHUS DANIELS."

ROOSEVELT DENIES RATHOM CHARGES

Assistant Secretary Calls the Story of Navy Immorality False and Malicious.

RATHOM RENEWS ATTACK

Providence Editor Gives Alleged Details, Saying He Stands by Evidence He Holds.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Chairman Page of the Senate Naval Committee today appointed Senators Ball, Delaware; Keyes, New Hampshire, and King, Utah, to determine whether an investigation should be made into charges by John R. Rathom of The Providence Journal that immoral conditions existed in the navy with the knowledge of Secretary Daniels.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, in a statement today, said Mr. Rathom's charges were, "in view of the circumstances, a deliberate and malicious attempt to create trouble, in addition to being false."

"Mr. Rathom sent a personal representative to the Navy Department about a month ago," said Mr. Roosevelt. "This representative was given the full facts in relation to the investigation of conditions in the City of Newport last Summer. It was explained that the matter of the trial of the Rev. Mr. Kent was not at that time in the hands of the Navy Department in view of the fact that the Department of Justice had recommended that they take over matters pertaining to his trial. It was further explained that the very moment the trial of the Rev. Mr. Kent was ended the Navy Department would investigate the allegations which had been made by a number of people that the methods used by an officer and several enlisted men of the navy had been highly improper.

"The trial of the Rev. Mr. Kent was concluded ten days ago. Following the closing of the case the department proceeded to carry out its intention of conducting an investigation of the charges which had been made against the officer and enlisted men, and on Jan. 17 a court of inquiry with full powers to go into this question was appointed by the Secretary of the Navy.

"In view of the fact that Mr. Rathom knew the above circumstances, and that the department was proceeding in this case in entire good faith, his statement can only be considered a maliciously vicious, dishonest and dishonorable attack on the United States Navy."

Rathom Repeats Charges.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 22.—John R. Rathom replied tonight to the statement of Franklin D. Roosevelt, in which the Assistant Secretary asserted that Mr. Rathom's charges of immoral conditions in the navy were malicious and false. Mr. Rathom said:

"We are about to present to the Senate committee a list of seven specific charges against officials of the Navy Department, backed up by hundreds of pages of official testimony and the names of thirty-five witnesses.

"The Providence Journal has no interest whatever in the men who have been accused by the Navy Department. It knows none of them and is not in any way concerned in their guilt or innocence. In presenting these charges we have only one aim in view—the maintenance of honest and decent conditions in the United States Navy and of its morale, the protection of tens of thousands of honorable officers and enlisted men in the navy, and the punishment of the brute beasts responsible for the present conditions and of those who have permitted such conditions to exist.

"Mr. Roosevelt's statement that our charges constitute a maliciously vicious, dishonest, and dishonorable attack is absolutely false in every respect, and we stand by the evidence and witnesses we are ready to produce to prove the truth of every charge we have made.

"When Mr. Roosevelt suggested in his statement that the Department of Justice was responsible for Mr. Kent's second trial he fails to state that the matter was put up to the Department of Justice by the Navy Department. He speaks of Mr. Kent's trial as being over only ten days ago, entirely ignoring the fact that the methods spoken of were known to him and Secretary Daniels long before Mr. Kent's trial began."

Mr. Rathom went on to give details supporting his charges, naming specifically certain naval officers as having exerted an unwholesome influence on both enlisted men and civilians, using their official authority for this purpose.

Mr. Rathom asserted that both Secretary Josephus Daniels and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt both knew of these methods several months, and have not only been deaf to the appeals for the breaking up of such practices, but have either directly ordered, or with full knowledge permitted, the commendation for citation of these men for "their interest and work in their work." The quotation, he says, is from the recommendations made at Newport by the Naval Court of Inquiry and signed by Lieut. Commander M. J. Foster and Judge Advocate Lieut. William H. Drury in April last.

He alleges that prominent citizens of Rhode Island made in person strong and continuous protests to the Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Navy against conditions known to exist without avail.

Among Mr. Rathom's specific charges were:

That the testimony revealed the existence in the Naval Intelligence of a secret organization authorized by the Navy Department, and known as Section A-O-A-S-M, to prescribe certain third degree methods to use against prisoners in order to compel confession of nameless crimes, and that the Naval Intelligence representative who testified to the existence of this secret body declined to enter into any details with regard to its powers or its methods.

That boys arrested on these charges in April, 1919, were kept in confinement for many months without trial, in spite of the continued pleadings of relatives and friends and in spite of the demands made for speedy action by Captain Edward R. Campbell, in command of the training station, who declared that he was finally compelled to make official requests to Washington regularly at intervals of every ten days for some action on these cases, and that all of these requests were ignored.

"That the only two cases forced to a trial and conclusion so far as civilian courts are concerned, those of the Rev. Samuel Neal Kent, an Episcopal clergyman, who was the assistant chaplain at Newport specially designated by the Episcopal Church for war work, and one Brown, a Newport civilian. Brown was honorably discharged. Dr. Kent, honorably acquitted on all counts in the District Court in Newport, was, for the specific purpose of saving the face of the navy officials, again brought to trial, this time in the Federal Court at Providence, on the same nameless charges.

"That on this trial the same spotter witnesses appeared and again the defendant was declared innocent on all counts. The presiding judge, Judge Arthur L. Brown, in his charge to the jury with regard to the testimony of these witnesses as to their ordered vile conduct said, 'I will say, gentlemen, that there is no provision of law in the United States which compels any man to receive orders from any Government official throughout the whole length of executive, judicial, military, or naval authorities, which compels him to subject to indignity. If an act of that kind is assumed it must be taken to have been assumed either voluntarily or under unlawful compulsion.'"

Naval Board Starts Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 22.—The sessions of the Naval Board of Inquiry that is to look into the charges of immorality at the naval training station are to be held in secret. The Board, which is headed by Rear Admiral Herbert O. Dunn, Commandant of the First Naval District, convened at the naval station this noon.

"Porkless" Bill Is Passed by a Big Vote in the House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—All attacks on the "porkless" Rivers and Harbors Appropriation bill failed today in the House, and after numerous amendments had been rejected the measure was passed with its appropriation of $12,400,000 for the maintenance and continuance of work on projects under way.

The vote on the passage of the bill, which carried the smallest appropriation of any measure of its kind in years, was 167 to 25.

Previous to the final vote an effort was made to recommit the bill with instructions to specify numerous river and harbor improvements, scattered throughout the country, but this move was defeated by 207 to 116. The House refused to appropriate $11,000,000 for work on the Mississippi, Ohio, and Missouri Rivers, as well as for numerous smaller projects.

TAKE PASSENGERS OFF THE POWHATAN

All Transferred During Last Evening to the Northern Pacific.

SEARCHLIGHTS AID SHIFT

Suffering from Cold Causes Captain to Undertake Risk—Passengers Coming Here.

The 271 passengers of the disabled army transport Powhatan, who had been in peril since their vessel sprung a leak on her way to this port, were transferred late last night to the transport Northern Pacific, according to wireless advices received here. The transfer, accomplished without accident, was made after the weather had moderated to allow the launching of small boats.

Most of the day the vessels convoying the Powhatan spent trying to begin the transfer of passengers. Rough seas foiled them, and in the attempt two boats from the Northern Pacific were lost. One is said to have capsized and the other was smashed against the side of the liner. Both crews were rescued by the destroyer Leary.

When nightfall came the Powhatan had succeeded in passing lines to the Canadian Government steamer Lady Laurier and to the Leary, and was then in tow of the former, proceeding at a slow pace toward Halifax. The Leary was trailing behind, acting as a rudder in keeping the disabled vessel on her course.

The weather was then too bad to allow for the transfer being made, and it was not until later that the vessels hove to and the officers decided to begin the work of getting passengers off. It was not until 9 o'clock last night that the last one was safely on the Northern Pacific and the work of towing had been resumed.

The Northern Pacific is expected to arrive here Saturday morning.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 22.—The transfer of the passengers from the disabled transport Powhatan to the steamship Northern Pacific was made tonight without any serious mishap under the blaze of powerful searchlights from United States destroyers and other ships that were standing by, according to a wireless message received here tonight. The task, however, was difficult, although the weather was milder and the sea calmer than it had been for many days.

With the arrival of more favorable weather conditions, Captain Randall of the Powhatan signified to the steamship agents that he thought it advisable to attempt again the transfer of the passengers to the Northern Pacific. The tow was halted and preparations were made for the task, although it was almost dark. The Powhatan's boats were swung out and the destroyers were signaled to come in closer to the disabled ship and put their searchlights on the gangways and ship's coats.

It was after 7 o'clock before the first boatload of passengers left the side of the Powhatan for the Northern Pacific which was standing off some distance from the distressed transport.

The fact that his passengers were suffering from cold and exposure and the improvement in weathers conditions prompted Captain Randall to undertake the risk of effecting the transfer by night. The ship had been without heat or light for more than five days, and as it neared the coast the cold was more intense.

ITALY ARRESTS SCORES OF RAILROAD STRIKERS

Communications Are Crippled and Government Commandeers Ships to Relieve Traffic.

MILAN, Jan. 21.—More than 100 strikers have been arrested for sabotage and attempting to prevent other railway men from working. One freight train was abandoned in the open country by the crew.

FLORENCE, Jan. 21.—The police today arrested the entire committee of strikers and occupied the streets surrounding the Chamber of Labor. Troops with armored cars were distributed at strategic points throughout the city.

BOLOGNA, Jan. 21.—The city has remained twenty-four hours entirely isolated from the world. All postal, telegraph, telephone and railway communication ceased during that time. Reduced services have been resumed.

ROME, Jan. 22.—The Government has requisitioned twelve large steamers, which will be placed under the control of the naval authorities. This action has been taken in order to insure the continuation of the coastal shipping service in view of the railway strike.

Energetic steps by the Italian Government and the adverse attitude of the public seem to have brought about a failure of the railway strike. The national congress of employes in the postal, telephone, and telegraph services is reported to have voted to resume work.

PISA, Jan. 21.—The anarchist elements today proclaimed a general strike, which, however, was a failure. The street cars continued operations. An engine driver who resisted an attempt by strikers to force him to stop work was presented with $100 collected by passengers on the train.

VICTIMS SEE PILE OF LOOT.

Many Inspect Gems and Furs Found in Prisoner's Room.

A varied assortment of gems, jewelry and furs, worth many thousand dollars, was spread upon tables in the East Sixty-seventh Street Station yesterday for inspection by the victims of thefts, many of whom sought to identify therein their lost property. Detective Skelly, who had arrested Charles Forst on Monday on a charge of burglary, found this loot in a furnished room Forst had occupied at 871 Kelly Street, Bronx.

Mrs. Robert J. Collier, widow of the publisher whose home, at 927 Park Avenue, was robbed recently, looked over the pile of goods and found her stolen fur coat and muff, valued at $2,000. Mrs. Catherine H. Nealy, who lost furs and jewelry a month ago when burglars invaded her home, at 103 East Seventy-sixth Street, recovered some of her property.

FEAR NEW WAR IN THE ADRIATIC

Paris Newspapers Do Not Look with Favor on Ultimatum to the Jugoslavs.

CRITICISE THE PREMIERS

The Temps Intimates That the Note Was Sent Upon the Initiative of Lloyd George.

CRISIS VERY COMPLICATED

Doubt That America Will Recognize London Treaty If Jugoslavs Refuse to Yield.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—The ultimatum of the allied Premiers to the Jugoslavs calling on them to accept the Adriatic compromise by Saturday night or France, Britain, and Italy will proceed with the enforcement of the compact of London, receives practically no support from the Paris press, which almost unanimously expresses the opinion that the diplomats have made a very sorry job of handling this problem.

The Temps, ultra conservative, on the one hand, and the Humanité, ultra radical on the other hand, both see danger of a new war in the Adriatic tangle.

The Temps says that France reserves entire liberty of action as regards the ultimatum because it was sent upon the initiative of another Government, meaning Britain, during the interregnum in French governmental affairs, and says that if the ultimatum precipitates a crisis the world should not blame France.

Furthermore the Temps expresses disapproval of either of the pending alternatives.

"Take the first alternative," it says. "What if the Jugoslav Government accepts Lloyd George's project? What kind of aspect will Fiume present, Fiume being the centre of all difficulties? The Commune of Fiume will form an independent state, but it may give to Italy the duty of representing it in foreign relations. The port of Fiume as well as the railroad will belong to the League of Nations. To the south, the suburb of Sussak will be in Jugoslav territory. On the west of the city the situation will be still more complicated. Leaving the city the road along the sea will be Italian territory, but the railroad running along this road will be Jugoslav.

"We do not deceive ourselves by supposing that the promoters of this combination regard it as realizable. They must intend it as a temporary expedient to give passions time to cool off. But the question is—will passions cool off?

Flowers Are Favorites.

According to dealers in millinery supplies who handle both flower and feather lines, the former are decided favorites. The difficulties in the path of large importations have swung a large share of the present business to domestic goods than is usually the case. Fruits and glazed effects are selling equally well with flowers. There appears to be no special type of flower popular over others, although the demand is chiefly on the smaller designs.

Silks Still Show Slackening.

Silk manufacturers, when they talk frankly of the present situation in the trade, state that conditions could be better for the industry. In addition to the labor troubles, the demand is not considered up to the mark. There are houses, of course, that have sold up for months ahead, but these constitute the most representative group of the trade. Otherwise there are concerns that would welcome a little less of the "shopping around" now indulged in by buyers. The latter are not disposed to put down orders as quickly as they were, and the retailers are especially cautious. Some of the cutting-up trades are not as brisk as they were, notably in the case of the underwear manufacturers.

Second Hands in Gray Goods.

Second hands dominated trading in the local market for gray goods yesterday, the mills being unwilling to sell for the nearby deliveries at the prices which buyers were willing to pay. Forty-nine cents was paid for January 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens. Among the sheetings sales were 56-60 four-yards at 26 cents, net, for delivery in February and March. Leading printcloth sales for the day, all from second hands, included 39-inch 80 squares at 33 cents for January-February shipment, 38½-inch 64-60s at 23½ cents for the same delivery, and spot 39-inch 72-76s at 28 cents.

Abraham & Straus Incorporate.

The business of Abraham & Straus, Fulton Street department store, Brooklyn, will, after Feb. 1, be conducted as Abraham & Straus, Incorporated. The corporation will be conducted under the management of the former partners, and the Directors are Nathan Straus, Simon F. Rothschild, Edward C. Blum, Lawrence Abraham, Lee Kohns, H. Grant Straus, and Walter N. Rothschild. The real estate occupied by Abraham & Straus was separately incorporated in 1911 as the Abrast Realty Company. The two incorporations will represent a paid-in capital of more than $10,000,000. The house will have completed its fifty-fifth year of commercial activity in Brooklyn on Feb. 1.

Colors for Underwear.

The development of colors, in place of the plain white and flesh shades which were formerly common to women's underwear, has reached a point now where much novelty as to the line will be exploited. The tendency seems to be, according to a manufacturer, to carry out in pastel colors the shades that prove popular in outer apparel. For this reason rose, green, and blue tints are now finding favor. The development of colors in underwear, he pointed out, will probably be greater now that silk merchandise is somewhat slack, because the manufacturers will depend on novelty shades to make their appeal for business.

Fur Sale to Reach Big Total.

The largest auction sale of raw furs ever held will begin on Feb. 2 at St. Louis, according to a statement issued yesterday by Funsten Brothers & Co. of that city. The estimated value of the offerings, which total over 12,000,000 pelts, is placed at $25,000,000. This is said to be $11,000,000 worth more furs than will be offered at the coming London sales. The latter, which will begin on Monday, represent the combined offerings of ten or twelve brokerage houses, including the Hudson's Bay Company. One of the features of the St. Louis sale will be the number of foreign buyers who will attend. Ten will arrive today on the Noordam from Holland and Germany, in addition to a party of twenty-two who reached this country recently. Buyers from Great Britain, France, Japan, China, Australia, and New Zealand also will attend the sale.

More Raw Silk Records Made.

The greatest increase in raw silk prices ever seen in a similar period has been scored by the last week or so at Yokohama, where the market advanced over 600 yen per picul, or about $2 a pound. Stocks are reduced there to 8,500 bales, according to cables received by H. L. Gwalter & Co. of this city, and sellers are in a very strong position. High-grade silks are very scarce, and some of the finest are altogether unobtainable. At Canton prices are also higher and 3,000 bales of the new crop silk have been sold so far for delivery in May, June and July. French buyers have been especially active there of late and American buyers continue to take the new realings freely. Higher prices for steam filatures and tussahs have recorded at Shanghai, the rise in the former being due more to sympathy with the advancing Japanese market than to the demand for them. The Milan market is reported quiet but firm. Local prices have moved up with the advances of the primary markets, but business is limited. Neither buyers nor sellers seem anxious to trade while things are in their present uncertain state.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Frederick L. Heyser and Harold W. Stern have become interested in Wood's Dry Goods Commercial Agency, 239 Broadway, according to an announcement made by Henry Stern and James Wylie.

C. H. D. Robbins, Second Vice President of the Associated Dress Industries of America, has been advanced to First Vice President, to succeed C. E. Lefcourt, who resigned, because of pressure of business. Maurice Goodman has been elected to succeed Mr. Robbins.

WALSH COATS

AS TO LININGS!

A "FILLEY LEE BIRD" has sea green wings and a scarlet breast, thereby resembling a lot of navy coats I have seen with funny looking linings.

If the lining in a Walsh Coat doesn't match,—it harmonizes.

That means that everything is right—style, fit, workmanship.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Move Within Narrow Range on Light Trading—Exchange Rates Rally.

Judged by the gauge which measures conditions by the volume of trade, yesterday's stock market reflected no improvement, for while the share turnover was somewhat greater than that of either of the two preceding days it was not measurably greater and was, in point of fact, still exceedingly small, being less than a half-million. However, there was improvement of a kind in that yesterday's market developed less short selling and other forms of professional pressure, and disclosed an undertone which was distinctly less susceptible to the many rumors of dire happenings about to be realized that were kept in circulation.

Even the report of the late afternoon, which turned out to be a very accurate forecast of events, of a substantial advance in Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rates failed to upset quoted values. This rumor, which was universally believed and should have had a positive influence if anything could, not only did not disturb the marke but, on the contrary, appeared to lull the market to sleep, for in the last half hour of business there was absolutely no feature, and the trading fraternity devoted itself to evening-up commitments, a process which resulted in more than a few shares ending the day without net change.

A further break in the foreign exchange market early in the day, which took sterling fractionally below $3.60 to the pound and other allied rates to new low records, furnished some bearish inspiration in the forenoon, and by midday a number of the industrial issues showed losses ranging down to a point or two. The railroads, as on other recent days, did nothing. Then, after the traders had given up hope of forcing out stocks, the market came back and, as stated, even the report of alteration in official rediscounts failed to change its complexion.

The rally in exchanges which occurred after the early break probably had no significance. The sharp decline since the middle of last week undoubtedly resulted in the building up of a considerable short interest, and the extremely low prices of yesterday's opening probably induced a good deal of profit-taking covering. Nothing has happened to make exchange more valuable than it was on Wednesday, and doubtless it will continue to fall as soon as the short interest is readjusted. For the time being there seems to be little hope of any material improvement in this market.

Action by the Reserve Bank Directors, officially reported after the close of stock market business yesterday, came as no great surprise to Wall Street, and for this reason its effect is not likely to prove very great, so far as the price movement is concerned. For more than a week everybody in Wall Street has believed that advances were imminent, the only real question being as to just how far the Directors would raise the figure, and, by the same token, the only surprise yesterday was that the announcement had been given out so soon. In many places it was expected the formal announcement would be withheld until after today's conference at Chicago. However, the announcement, after all, is more or less of a detail, for it has been certain that advances would be made ever since Governor Harding made his remarks more than two weeks ago.

What the immediate effect of the action will be is anybody's guess, and one is about as good as another. The stock market, many think, has discounted the change, but the change is so drastic—the ninety-day commercial paper rate goes up to the legal limit for this State—that stocks may suffer some set-back today. In the long run the change should be beneficial, even for the stock market, and certainly for general conditions, for it is high time that the Reserve system began to function as central banking systems are supposed to.

The charge that the action is too drastic, that it makes for contraction at a time when expansion should be fostered, or at least, that it contracts when conditions should be allowed "to take care of themselves," is a matter open to debate. But there are evidences that contraction is taking place anyway. The bank clearances, to mention only one of the many indices, indicate this, and if there really is slowing down in business a contraction in the credit fabric is highly desirable if ever commodity prices are to be curbed in their wild flight.

$232,000,000 FOR NEW SHIPS

Bethlehem Company's Orders Include 31 Vessels for Private Owners.

The Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation has orders on its books amounting to $232,000,000. Private American owners have ordered thirty-one vessels of 382,000 dead-weight tonnage, which will cost about $80,000,000. The balance of the orders are for naval and emergency fleet vessels. The contracts for these ships were all taken during the latter part of 1919 and delivery is to be made this year.

During last year the Bethlehem Company built twenty-two oil tankers, costing approximately $2,500,000 each, twelve cargo vessels and twenty tugs for the emergency fleet, in addition to sixty-five destroyers and thirteen submarines for the navy. In all 146 vessels were launched and 132 delivered. The total engine power represented in this construction was 1,850,000, a figure which it is said exceeds any previous shipbuilding production record.

Port of Tacoma to Issue Bonds.

R. M. Grant & Co. have purchased $1,500,000 Port of Tacoma, Washington, 5 per cent. bonds, due 1931-1955 inclusive. These bonds were issued for the purpose of increasing the port facilities of the City of Tacoma. It is understood that the bonds will soon be offered at 100 and accrued interest.

REDISCOUNT RATES ORDERED ADVANCED

Federal Reserve Bank Increases Figures on Commercial Paper from 4¾ to 6 Per Cent.

OTHER INCREASES MADE

New Rates on Liberty Bonds, 5½; Bankers' Acceptances, 5; Treasury Certificates Remain at 4¾.

The announcement which Wall Street had been expecting for more than a week was made yesterday when it was formally stated at the Federal Reserve Bank that substantial increases had been made in rediscount rates. The only surprise contained in the statement, and this was not entirely unexpected, was the placing of the commercial paper or discount rate at 6 per cent. Rediscounts o fthis class of paper, which had been unified at 4¾ per cent. with the rest of the list at the time of the last previous alteration in the Reserve Bank's schedule, had been expected by some to be moved up to not more than 5½ per cent., but there were many who had been predicting the 6 per cent. basis, and for the last two or three days the number of such predictions had been increasing.

New Schedule of Rates.

The new schedule, which goes into effect with the beginning of business today, compared with the rates which have been displaced, is as follows:

Commercial Paper—For advances secured by all classes of eligible commercial paper, excepting bankers acceptances, not exceeding 15 days and for rediscounts of such paper the present rate is 6 per cent. as against 4¾, the old rate.

Liberty Loan Bonds and Victory Notes—For advances not exceeding 15 days on Liberty Loan bonds, Victory notes and customers notes secured by either of the foregoing, or for the rediscount of customers notes so secured for periods not exceeding 90 days, the present rate is 5½ per cent. as against 4¾, the old rate.

Bankers Acceptances—For advances not exceeding 15 days secured by bankers' acceptances and for rediscounts of same not exceeding 90 days the present rate is 5 per cent. as against 4¾, the old rate.

U. S. Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness—For advances not exceeding 15 days secured by U. S. Treasury certificates of indebtedness and for rediscounts of customers' notes so secured not exceeding 90 days the present rate is 4¾ per cent. as against 4¾, the old rate.

The most interesting feature of these changes is the fact that commercial paper discounts are moved up to the legal maximum allowable in this and many other States. By this action the Reserve Banks bring to an end the practice of allowing member banks to rediscount commercial paper with the central institution at a profit, for member banks cannot discount at more than 6 per cent. for customers, and to rediscount such bills with the Reserve Bank now will mean no profit for the members of the reserve system. This change in official rates, it is expected, will result in considerable further liquidation of commercial accounts.

Treasury Certificates Unchanged.

Another feature of the new schedule is that it puts back the differential in favor of Treasury certificates of indebtedness. Fifteen-day advances to member banks and rediscounts of customers' notes secured by these certificates are allowed to stand at 4¾ per cent. This, however, is not so great an advantage as appears, for it is estimated that of the approximately $3,000,000,000 of certificates outstanding not quite half are in the hands of banks, with the remainder distributed among individual and corporate investors.

The advance in the fifteen-day rate on Liberty bond and Victory note paper from 4¾ to 5½ per cent. was regarded as more or less drastic last night by bankers, many of whom feared the increase might result in heavy and precipitous liquidation of the war bonds. Here, too, however, it is believed by many that the distribution of the war bonds into the hands of investors has progressed more rapidly than generally is believed, and there were some last night who contended that "forced liquidation" would not be on so vast a scale as would have occurred had the present rates been instituted three months ago.

There was some surprise that the new schedule should be put into effect before the results of today's banking conference at Chicago became known. After the failure of the Reserve Bank to make any change in rates last week, it was thought that the new rates would be withheld until the conference had had time to deliberate on the situation and to make recommendations. Now, with the new schedule in operation, it is felt that the conference today has been shorn of much of its importance.

The New York Federal Reserve District representatives to today's Chicago meeting of bankers are James S. Alexander, President of the National Bank of Commerce; J. A. Kloepfer, President of the Buffalo Clearing House Association, and J. H. Herzog of Albany.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Advances in discount rates on commercial paper, Liberty bonds and Victory notes and bank acceptances, announced today by the New York Federal Reserve Bank, are applicable also to the Boston and Philadelphia banks, the Federal Reserve Board having approved the proposals for an increase in rates proposed by those branches.

HIGH INTEREST ATTACKED.

Senator Owen Introduces Bil to Limit Call Rate to 6 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Declaring that high interest rates on call money instead of tending to check speculation, depress market conditions, Senator Owen, Democrat, Oklahoma, today introduced a bill to prohibit Federal Reserve Banks from charging more than six per cent. interest on collateral call or thirty-day loans.

In a statement accompanying his bill, Mr. Owen, who is former Chairman of the Senate Bnaking Committee, to which the bill was referred, said the measure was designed to stabilize commercial interest rates.

"The purpose is to stop violent and arbitrary fluctuations of interest rates by banks in leading cities on call loans," the Senator added. "There is no sound reason in these excessive call loan rates, which are alleged to be justified by the desire to check speculation. The high rates do not stop speculation but promote a bear market and create a situation that permits the 'insiders' to sell short at a profit.

"Banks ought to be content with a fair rate and avoid usury. They should respect the spirit of the statutes, which put a limit of six per cent. as a fair basis.

"The national banks earned at fair rates a billion dollars last year, and the public is entitled to fair rate of interest. It would be better for the country to lower the rate of interest for productive and distributive purposes, and thus lower the high cost of living."

COMMITTEE TO AID SABIN.

Vice Presidents Will Direct Guaranty Trust Administration.

The administrative work of the Guaranty Trust Company hereafter is to be under the supervision of a Managing Committee, according to an announcement made yesterday by Charles H. Sabin, President of the company. The Managing Committee was appointed by Mr. Sabin yesterday and was approved at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors. It will begin its new duties at once.

The new committee is composed of five Vice Presidents. Albert Breton has been selected as its first chairman and will serve in that capacity for one year. The other members are W. P. Conway, E. W. Stetson, Harold Stanley and F. H. Sisson. The members are of equal rank and authority. Under the plan of administration adopted, the committee will select its own chairman from among its members and, it was said yesterday, the office will rotate.

This is a plan similar to that adopted by the National City Bank several years ago, when a board of executive managers was created to handle the administrative affairs of the institution. It was said yesterday at the Guaranty Trust Company that its adoption of the plan had become necessary because of the great recent growth of the company, which has placed a tremendous burden upon Mr. Sabin, its chief executive officer.

$218,000 MONTHLY ON OIL.

Middle States Corporation's Head Reports on Earnings.

The earnings of the Middle States Oil Corporation for the four months ended Dec. 31 were about $872,000, or at the average rate of $218,000 a month, and average monthly earnings for the first six months of last year were $59,000, according to C. N. Haskell, President of the company. The company and its subsidiaries have 176 producing wells. Twenty-eight new wells are being drilled.

Earnings for January are said to be running far ahead of December, which was the banner month in the company's history. The Dominion Oil Company, a subsidiary, has a royalty option on 2,240 acres in the Homer Field of Louisiana, which does not expire until Feb. 12.

Bank and Trust Company Merge.

The Boards of Directors of the First National Bank of White Plains and the County Trust Company of the same place voted yesterday to unite the two institutions by selling the assets of the national bank to the trust company. If the proposed merger is consummated the trust company will have total resources in excess of $5,000,000. The Directors, officers, and employes of both institutions, it is said, will be retained by the consolidated company.

Foreign Exchanges.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Bar silver, 79¾d per ounce; bar gold, 115s 6d; money, 3¼ per cent.. Discount rates: Short bills, 5 per cent.; three-month bills, 5⅝ per cent. Gold premium at Lisbon, 140.00.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Prices were steady on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 58 francs 90 centimes; exchange on London, 43 francs 48 centimes; 5 per cent. loan, 89 francs 60 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 12 francs 4½ centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Market Irregular.

There was little animation to yesterday's stock market, dullness being the outstanding feature of the entire day. Apparently the bears saw no opportunity to reap profits in another drive against prices, and those who were in a position to purchase for the long account were a bit cautious about taking on new commitments. It was purely a professional affair and traders were disinclined to look for any immediate renewal of activity. Certain of the commission houses in their market letters held that the price range would be decidedly narrow for some days.

Brokers' Loans Decrease.

All reports go to indicate that the liquidation which has been in progress in the stock market ever since the crash of last November has proceeded to such a point that brokers' loans are probably lower now than in nearly a year. On this basis it would be natural to assume that stocks for the most part have passed from the weak to the strong hands. This, however, is probably not as true with relation to some of the more recent flotations as to the old-line issues. There is still probably some frozen credit in the case of those who were able to hold through the market breaks in the hope that a rally of sufficient proportions would ensue to allow them to let go their commitments. Undoubtedly some of this is in bank loans for there was a disposition to transfer brokerage accounts to banks in an endeavor to escape the high money rates which ruled during the latter part of last year. Liquidation of such holdings is probably finding its way into the market now.

Discount Rates Advance.

The advance in rediscount rates by the Federal Reserve Bank was perhaps rather more drastic than had been anticipated, and yet rumors that 6 per cent. would prevail have been in circulation during the last several days. As a matter of fact the advance in discount rates on commercial paper to 6 per cent. was known in Wall Street nearly half an hour before the market closed yesterday. Word of it came from a number of commission houses, not in the nature of rumor, but as a statement of fact. Still there was little reflection of the news marketwise. For at least twenty minutes there was the opportunity for a bear drive against stocks on the reports, but prices ruled at about the same level that had prevailed throughout the earlier part of the day. It is understood that the first word on the advance in rates came from Boston, but whether it was a leak or a definite announcement from Federal Reserve sources at the Hub could not be learned.

The Curtailment of Exports.

The probable falling off in exports which is predicted in many quarters will afford the opportunity for demonstrating whether domestic prices will decline under such conditions. There is no doubt but that the cutting down of shipments abroad would tend to make for a surfeit of commodities here, and then with the law of supply and demand having full sway, price reductions would be a natural sequence. There is some question, however, as to whether the elimination, or partial elimination of export business will be in sufficient volume to make up for the shortage in domestic markets. Several factors conspire not only to reduce production, but also to prevent distribution, the car shortage bearing definite relation to the latter. At any rate it will be interesting to see whether the forecasts have in them a basis of fact.

Goodrich Increases Dividend.

The B. F. Goodrich Company yesterday announced an increase in the annual dividend rate from 4 to 6 per cent. This might have been expected to reflect a better tone to the Goodrich shares on the Big Board. For a moment this was true, but the stock sold off and closed the day with a loss of a point. The effect of the good news, it appeared, was discounted by rumors that the company contemplated another issue of preferred stock.

Speculative Issues Quiet.

Several of the heretofore pyrotechnic performers in the stock market were quite docile yesterday. Crucible Steel, for instance, after moving over a narrow price range closed the day unchanged, and Marine preferred, while a little more removed from the spotlight, did likewise. The inactivity of such issues was taken as proof positive of the lack of speculative enthusiasm.

A Narrow Market.

The tone of yesterday's market is best told by the averages. In a case of fifty stocks, twenty-five rails and twenty-five industrials, the range was only three-quarters of a point. This is quite remarkable when it is remembered that in the fifty are included such stocks as General Motors, Mexican Petroleum, and Crucible. At the end of the day the rails showed a decline of .16 and the industrials .14.

The Bond Market.

There was a better demand for corporation bonds throughout most of yesterday's trading, many of the issues showing moderate gains. On the other hand there was some syndicate selling this occurring apparently in the case of the Central of Georgia 6s, which declined from 92⅛ to 91⅛ thereby following the trend on Wednesday of the Baltimore & Ohio 6s. Both of these issues were put out last year.

Extra Dividends.

Extra dividends and dividend increases stood out prominently yesterday. Apparently, many companies are still making disbursements on the record of the past without fear of any untoward circumstances developing in the near future. There can be no doubt that most of the industrial companies, due to the large earnings they have enjoyed, are in position to make such distributions. Some of them, however, are taking the view that cash should be conserved against the uncertainties which may develop.

Steel Commons.

There was only a very small turnover in the common shares of the United States Steel Corporation yesterday. While even under the best of conditions the price range is seldom wide, it would hardly be expected to be so little as the five-eighths of a point in yesterday's dull market. The high for the day was 105⅛, and the low 104½, with a close of 104⅝.

Copper Soft.

The prices of copper stocks eased off a bit yesterday apparently in sympathy with the slackening in demand for the red metal. Sales are not so large as prevailed in the opening days of this month and the price per pound has gone down slightly. Copper can be had for immediate delivery at about 19¼ cents, with a possibility that this would be shaded by some smaller producers.

Mexican Petroleum Advances.

There was a forward movement in the shares of the Mexican Petroleum Company based primarily on the news that the drilling of wells would be resumed immediately. The stock was up some 4 points at the high for the day, and closed with a gain of 2¾ points. All of the American companies operating in Mexico, it is understood, have sent word to their representatives to begin drilling immediate. Many of the wells there are cemented in and require only the additional drilling of 100 feet to tap the oil.

Situation Confronting American Investors

COTTON PRICES RISE AS MARKET RALLIES

Trading Responds to Easing of Selling Pressure of Last Two or Three Days.

LIVERPOOL TONE BETTER

Recovery in Foreign Exchange After Initial Low Records Is Steadying Factor.

The selling pressure which had been depressing cotton future values for two or three days eased up yesterday and the market promptly responded by turning from its downward course and moving forward with some showing of spirit. The rally extended to as much as 75 points in March, with the others up nearly as much, and at the close of the day there were net gains in all options from March on of 50 points or more. January showed a net gain at closing time of 35 points. This option expires at noon today.

The recovery in the foreign exchange market, after the initial low records, helped somewhat in steadying cotton. Also, the better tone at Liverpool helped, and there was considerably less selling by Southern interests than there had been on other days of the week. Wall Street houses and those which handle the Western wire business were not so aggressive on the selling side either, while the ring traders seemed inclined to take their short profits and play the long side for a turn.

Some selling was encountered at the start, when prices were off 8 to 15 points for the active months, but this soon gave way to buying, which lifted the price level easily. Contracts were not supplied on the early bulge, and apparently the market took heart from this and the subsequent advance was made easier.

No change of consequence occurred in trade conditions, and advices from out of town were more or less negative. The Southern spot markets remained firm, as they have been for some time, and the local spot market improved a little quotably, although there were no sales reported. In Liverpool spots lost 15 points and reports from yarn and cloth markets at Manchester showed no improvement. The futures market at Liverpool was dull and prices moved within a narrow range, with a slightly improved tone.

GERMAN DYES FOR BRITISH.

Yorkshire Committee Go to Purchase £2,000,000 Worth.

HUDDERSFIELD, Yorkshire, Jan. 22.—A committee of dye users has gone to Germany to select and purchase £2,000,000 worth of dyestuffs, owing to the shortage of suitable dyes for trade use here. It is reported that the Government is financing the scheme.

Recently, The Board of Trade Journal announced the formation of an expert committee in connection with the distribution of dye stuffs supplies from Germany under the reparations clause of the Peace Treaty. The visit to Germany, however, is for the purchase of dye additional to the amount British users are entitled under the treaty provisions.

GOODRICH DIVIDEND RAISED.

Directors Place Common Stock on 6 Per Cent. Basis.

The Directors of the B. F. Goodrich Company have voted to place the common stock on a 6 per cent. annual basis. During the last four years the common stockholders have been receiving $4 annually. The dividend of 1½ per cent. is payable Feb. 16 to stockholders of record on Feb. 5. A dividend of 3½ per cent. was declared on preferred stock, the first installment of 1¾ per cent. being payable April 1 and the second July 1.

The net sales for the year ended Dec. 31 were $141,800,000, and the net profits before provision for Federal taxes were $17,500,000.

Philadelphia Discount Rates Higher.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—The Federal Reserve Board approved an increase today in discount rates of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, effective at once. The rate on loans secured by commercial paper will be 6 per cent., and on those secured by Liberty bonds or Victory notes 5½ per cent. The rate on both hertofore was 4¾ per cent. The bank has also established a minimum rate of 5¼ per cent. for bankers' acceptances and 6 per cent. for trade acceptances.

Municipal Bonds

When reviewing the yield from funds invested, it is well to take into consideration their net return after income taxes have been paid.

From this point of view, municipal bonds, combining exemptions from federal and normal taxes and surtaxes as well as yields of 4% to 5%, are attracting January funds.

We have prepared a list of municipal bonds including their net yield which we will be glad to mail to inquirers.

PROPOSES GROUP OF 14 RAIL SYSTEMS

John E. Oldham Presents Plan to Congress Railroad Conference Committee.

THINKS IT SOLVES PROBLEM

Lines Included in Systems Represent 90 Per Cent. of Total Railroad Mileage.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Consolidation of the Pennsylvania and New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads into a single system, New York Central, Boston & Maine, Maine Central and smaller lines into another; Erie, Lehigh Valley, Wabash, Pere Marquette, and smaller roads into another; Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Philadelphia & Reading, Norfolk & Western and other lines into another, and 146 other Class 1 railroads into ten new competitive systems is proposed by John E. Oldham of Boston, Vice President of the Investment Bankers' Association, in a statement submitted to the conference committee which is endeavoring to harmonize the difference between the Senate and House Railroad bills. The grouping of the fourteen systems suggested, with mileage and gross earnings per mile, is as follows:

Southern Pacific System—Southern Pacific, with Arizona Eastern; Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio; Houston & Texas Central, Texas & New Orleans; Houston, East & West Texas; Louisiana Western, Northern Louisiana & Texas; these independent lines: Missouri, Kansas & Texas; Chicago & Alton; Kansas City Southern, Mexico & Orient; Kansas City Southern, San Antonio & Aransas Pass; Missouri, Oklahoma & Gulf; Missouri & North Arkansas, Louisiana & Arkansas, Wichita Valley, Trinity & Brazos valley; total mileage, 19,692; earnings per mile, $11,680.

Great Northwestern System—Chicago & Northwestern, with Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha and Great Northern; total mileage, 17,066; earnings per mile, $10,380.

Milwaukee-Soo System—Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, with Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, and mineral range; Duluth Messaba & Northern, and Duluth & Iron Range; total mileage, 15,747; earnings per mile, $10,364.

Southern System—Southern, including Mobile & Ohio, Alabama & Great Southern, Southern of Mississippi, Cincinnati & New Orleans; Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, and New Orleans & Northwestern, and these independent lines: Alabama & Vicksburg; Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific; Florida East Coast, New Orleans & Great Northern, and Gulf & Ship Island; total mileage, 11,685; earnings per mile, $10,979.

New York Central System—New York Central and lines it controls, including Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis; Michigan Central, Toledo & Ohio Central, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie; Kanawha & Michigan, Rutland; Cincinnati Northern, and these independent lines: Boston & Maine, Maine Central, Western Maryland, Bangor & Aroostook, Ulster & Delaware, and Monongahela; total mileage, 16,915; average gross earnings per mile, $23,924.

Buffalo System—Erie, with subsidiaries, Chicago & Eastern, and New York, Susquehanna & Western; Wabash, Pere Marquette, Lehigh Valley; Delaware, Lackawanna & Western; Lake Erie & Western, Elgin Junction & Eastern; New York, Chicago & St. Louis; New York, Ontario & Western; Bessemer & Lake Erie, Lehigh & Northern; Pittsburgh, Shawmut & Northern; Detroit & Mackinac, Lehigh Valley & Northeastern; total mileage, 14,485; earnings per mile, $21,368.

Pennsylvania System—Pennsylvania, with subsidiaries, including Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis; Grand Rapids & Indiana; Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington; Long Island, West Jersey & Sea Shore; New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk; Cumberland Valley; Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic, and Toledo, Peoria & Western, and New York, New Haven & Hartford, with Central of New England; total mileage, 13,685; earnings per mile, $35,341.

Baltimore, Reading System—Baltimore & Ohio, including Staten Island Rapid Transit, Chesapeake & Ohio, with Hocking Valley, Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, and Norfolk & Western; Philadelphia & Western, including Port Reading, Atlantic City, and Central of New Jersey; Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio; Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western; Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh; Buffalo & Susquehanna; Detroit, Toledo & Ironton; Wheeling & Lake Erie, Washington Southern, and Ann Arbor; total mileage, 14,886; earnings per mile, $23,924.

Coast Line, Louisville & Nashville System—Atlantic Coast Line, including Louisville & Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, Charleston & West Carolina; Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis, and Georgia, and independent roads, Norfolk & Southern; Chicago, Terre Haute & Southwestern, and Tennessee Central; total mileage, 13,447; earnings per mile, $9,248.

Santa Fe, Frisco System—Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, including Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe; Panhandle & Santa Fe, and Northwestern Pacific, St. Louis & San Francisco, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, International & Great Northern, St. Louis & Southwestern, and Midland Valley; total mileage, 21,216; earnings per mile, $10,622.

Union Pacific System—Union Pacific, with lines under its control, including Oregon, Washington & Navigation; Los Angeles & Salt Lake, Central Pacific, and St. Joseph & Grand Island, and Chicago Great Western; total mileage, 13,044; earnings per mile, $13,152.

Rock Island, Missouri Pacific System—Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, with Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf; Missouri Pacific, with St. Louis & Iron Mountain; Denver & Rio Grande, with Western Pacific; El Paso & Southern, Texas Pacific, and Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis; total mileage, 22,393; earnings per mile, $9,324.

It is asserted by the author of the plan that the business men of the country gave the economic principle involved an overwhelming majority vote when the Chamber of Commerce of the United States last Summer called for their views in Referendum No. 28; that the United States Senate recognized both the economic principle and the business necessity when, on Dec. 20, it passed the Cummins bill, containing a clause providing for the consolidation of all railroad properties, in accordance with a plan to be adopted by the proposed Federal Transportation Board, and approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, into twenty to thirty-five separate competing systems, consolidation to be voluntary if accomplished within seven years; thereafter to be compulsory, and that the House of Representatives recognized both the principle and the necessity when on Nov. 17 it passed the Esch bill, containing a clause providing for consolidation to the extent that the Interstate Commerce Commission indicates will be in the public interest.

The lines in the proposed grouping into fourteen systems include 90 per cent. of the country's total railroad mileage and handle 95 per cent. of the total traffic.

Business men in forty-eight States having voted through their local commercial organizations for railroad consolidation, the Oldham plan has been sent out as information to the membership of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in a statement by Mr. Oldham in the Nation's Business, the National Chamber's official publication, illustrated by system maps in colors. He maintains that such a system, once established, would simplify the problem of rate making and overcome many other difficulties incident to regulation; that greater efficiency of operation would result and the public would be better served; that unnecessary duplication of facilities and much waste of capital would be avoided, and that the benefits of unified management which developed under Federal control would be more easily preserved.

MEXICAN OIL CORPORATION

Is taking the lead in the inevitable second stage of petroleum development in Mexico, with no deterioration of diminished older production to carry as a debit.

Oil fields history in Texas, Oklahoma and elsewhere shows big investment exhausting early gusher pools, then moving into adjacent territory and maintaining pipeline capacity production for years.

Mexico Oil Corporation has a large acreage of selected oil reserve territory adjacent to the old pools of the Mexico coast petroleum region.

Export and Import Financing through Acceptance Credits
By means of Acceptance Credits domiciled in New York or in foreign banking centers—EXPORTERS, while extending credit to foreign buyers, may receive cash payment here against surrender of shipping documents; and IMPORTERS may settle on a credit basis, and still effect cash payment to foreign buyers upon surrender of shipping documents.
The procedure is simple, and the cost of this financing is moderate.

AS SO MUCH INSURANCE
Seventh of a series of Messages on the preparedness of Albert Frank & Co. to meet the new advertising demands of Finance and Business.

GOOD Will is a measurable asset. And many progressive concerns now regard their advertising appropriation as so much insurance in safeguarding their Good Will. In instances innumerable, judicious advertising is invariably making for the retention and increase of Good Will and Credit Rating; making for the solution of labor difficulties, increase in buying power, and the protection of the business investment. Factors so vital are too often lost sight of by many who regard advertising as merely a means to increased sales and market insurance.
The best surety that an advertising campaign will make for the protection and development of these essentials is to enlist in that campaign's planning the co-operation of experienced advertising counsel.
A conference in your office or ours involves no obligation.

BOSTON WOOL MEN PAY $1,600,000 OF TAX FINE

English and O'Brien, Sentenced for Income Fraud Conspiracy, Settle Claim.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—William A. English and John H. O'Brien, who as members of the wool firm of English & O'Brien of this city were sentenced on July 31, 1919, to eighteen months in the Greenfield jail for conspiracy to defraud the Government in connection with the payment of income taxes, have paid the Government $1,600,000 in settlement of the claims of the Internal Revenue Department against them, it was announced tonight by United States District Attorney Thomas J. Boynton.

Mr. Boynton added that a civil suit which was brought against the two men for $3,000,000 in connection with their delinquency soon after they were sent to Greenfield was to be withdrawn. Both have made application for parole, to which they will be eligible in another week, when they will have served one-third of their sentences.

The taxes due amounted to $1,379,000, according to Government figures, and to this was added a fine of 100 per cent.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

BUTTER—Receipts yesterday were 7,559 packages. The market was steady for the fine and fancy grades of fresh creamery, quiet and rather easy for other qualities. Ladles were firm but packing stock dragged. Creamery, higher than extras, pound, 65½@66c; extras (92 score), 64½@65c; firsts (88 to 89 score), 59½@61½c; seconds (83 to 87 score), 56@59c; lower grades, 53@55c; held, higher than extras, 64½@65c; extras, 63@64c; firsts, 59@62c; seconds, 55@58½c; unsalted, higher than extras, 68½@69c; extras, 67@68c; firsts, 62@66c; seconds, 57@60c; State dairy tubs, finest, 63@64c; good to prime, 59@62c; common to fair, 55@58c; renovated, extras, 57@57½c; firsts, 55½@56½c; imitation creamery, firsts, 60@61c; ladles, current make, firsts, 48@49c; seconds, 45@46c; lower grades, 43@44c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 44c; No. 2, 43c; lower grades, 39@42c.

EGGS—Receipts yesterday were 9,908 cases. A very cold wave in the Northwest spreading down over the producing sections, together with advices of lighter fresh egg supplies in transit, gave the market a stronger tone, and under some speculative support prices showed an advance of 2c on the leading grades. The close was somewhat unsettled. Under grades were quiet and irregular; storage eggs in fair demand, and desirable qualities ruled firm; medium and lower grades were freely offered at a very wide range in prices as to quality and condition. Offerings of white eggs, including several cars of California stock, seemed to be sufficient to supply demands at the advance last quoted, the market closing steady. Fresh gathered extras, dozen, 73@74c; extra firsts, 71@72c; firsts, 69@70c; seconds and poorer, 64@68c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 56c; firsts, 54@55c; seconds, 48@53½c; under grades, 30@47c; storage packed, 54@60c; dirties, 32@42c; checks, 35@38c; whites, 60@58c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, Western, hennery white, extras, 84@85c; firsts to extra firsts, 78@83c; gathered whites, firsts to extra firsts, 78@83c; under grades, 75@77c; pullets, 69@70c; Pacific Coast, whites, express, extra firsts to extras, 83@85c; firsts, 78@80c; pullets, Petaluma, 70c; other sections, 69@68c; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 72@82c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, hennery browns, extras, 75@77c; gathered brown, mixed colors, extras, 73@74c; firsts to extra firsts, 69@72c.

BRITAIN WON'T SEEK FUNDS HERE TO LEND

Chamberlain Rejects Policy of Borrowing Vast Sums for Benefit of Other Nations.

DEBT NOW AT MAXIMUM

Nation Will "Turn the Corner" During the Coming Financial Year, He Believes.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Jan. 22.—It is not Great Britain's policy to borrow vast sums in America for the purpose of lending to other nations of Europe, Austen Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared in a speech on the lessons of the war here today.

"So long as I am responsible," he said, "that will not be a policy which the Government will think of adopting."

Mr. Chamberlain expressed the belief that Great Britain had reached the maximum of the national debt and said he believed the nation would "turn the corner" during the coming financial year. Then it would be the Government's business to consider funding the large existing floating debt, thus removing from commercial and financial centres the cloud of anxiety hanging over them.

The Chancellor declared that no expedient, however ingenious, could relieve the nation of the necessity for many years of practical economy in national and personal expenditure or from continued effort to create wealth.

ASKS FOOD SALE INQUIRY.

LaGuardia Seeks Light on New Plan for Army Surplus.

An investigation into the order from Washington to discontinue the sale of army surplus foodstuffs to dealers and providing that they be sold only to municipalities and through army retail stores, was requested yesterday by F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen, in a telegram to William Graham, Chairman of the House Special Committee of Investigation. The message read:

"I am reliably informed that the Director of Sales Surplus Supplies has stopped the sale of surplus army food to municipalities and other agencies for direct sale to consumers and intends selling in lots on bids, thus giving opportunity to speculators and jobbers to make enormous profits. This is in direct violation of your resolution passed by the House last session. Kindly investigate and inform me."

Commenting upon the report of the Department of Agriculture, in which it was said that the wholesale prices of foodstuffs in this city had risen from ten per cent. to 100 per cent. in the last six months, Arthur Williams, Federal Food Administrator, said that the prices given were apparently confined to garden products. Nevertheless, he said, the January figures would show an increase over those of August.

"The Fair Price List contains twenty-five items of groceries and nineteen items of meats," he said. "The average of the groceries to Dec. 1, 1919, was 22.2c.; at the corresponding time last year the average was 23.6c, showing a difference in favor of this year of 1.4c. The average of the meat list was 34.2c, compared with 39.6c a year ago, a saving in favor of this year of 5.4c. He added that a test showed that food dealers were observing the Food Administration margins.

Mr. Williams said he was trying to discover why the price of wheat should be so high, as he would need the facts at the bread conference this afternoon. He has received a communication from one of the large chain stores stating that the price of bread in all its stores will not be raised.

A committee of bankers will go to Washington soon in behalf of legislation to limit the power of the Federal Reserve Bank in lending money on food in storage, said Edwin J. O'Malley, Commissioner of Public Markets. This, he said, would force the food on the market and aid in reducing prices.

Dr. Day announced that a navy food station would open tomorrow in the former saloon at 165 Fulton Avenue, Astoria, under the auspices of the Astoria Community Council. Flour will be sold at 6c a pound, lima beans at 12c, and rice at 10c.

SKYSCRAPER FOR NEW RETAIL ZONE

Syndicate of Investors Buys Big Plot on Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth Streets.

DEAL INVOLVES $3,000,000

Investors and Operators Buy Lofts in Fifth Avenue Zone—Private Dwellings in Demand.

To meet the constantly growing demand for office and showroom space in the new retail section of Fifth Avenue, a syndicate of New York investors has purchased a plot containing 22,500 square feet, running through the block from Thirty-eighth to Thirty-ninth Street, as a site for a twenty-four-story structure of the most modern type.

It is estimated that the operation, including the cost of the land, will involve about $3,000,000.

The plot, which has a frontage of 108 feet on Thirty-eighth Street and 113 feet on Thirty-ninth Street, is made up of the following properties: 48 West Thirty-ninth Street, held at $75,000, a four-story dwelling, which was sold for Mrs. Henry W. Everitt; 50 West Thirty-ninth Street, a four-story dwelling, the home of the artist, De Witt Lockman, held at $100,000; 52 West Thirty-ninth Street, sold for Edward W. Gascoe and Mrs. W. C. Herbert of Katonah, N. Y. This house has been under lease for a number of years to the Home Bureau, and was held at $100,000; 54 West Thirty-ninth Street and the abutting property 55 West Thirty-eighth Street, sold for Jackson & Stern. These two houses were remodeled for business some time ago and were purchased through Pease & Elliman about fifteen years ago by the present sellers; 53 West Thirty-eighth Street, sold for Dr. Corning, a four-story and basement dwelling; 49 and 51 West Thirty-eighth Street, two four-story and basement dwellings, for A. A. Hageman, who recently purchased them from George Peabody and Dr. J. W. McLean, which were held at $160,000, and 45 and 47 West Thirty-eighth Street, sold for Dr. W. E. Lambert, held at $200,000.

As a site for an office building the plot is unique in that it is equally distant from the Pennsylvania and Grand Central terminals and is in the immediate vicinity of most of the large hotels and retail stores, and has unusually favorable transportation facilities with an elevated railroad station on Sixth Avenue, and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Interborough subways within easy reach.

This particular section of the city has been unusually active from a real estate standpoint during the last few months, the Fifth Avenue end of the block in which the purchase was made being improved with the building erected by F. V. and H. E. Burton, which was leased to Lord & Taylor.

Plans for the new structure are being prepared by Clinton & Russell, and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy in the early part of 1921. When completed it will have the largest floor area of any building in the central mercantile zone available for tenants. The ten properties sold have been held by the various owners for a number of years.

$1,500,000 Broadway Deal.

The Hotel Bonta-Narragansett, a seven and twelve story structure, on a plot 143 by 146 feet, was sold yesterday to Frederick Brown by the Selma Realty Company. The property was held at $1,100,000 and immediate possession is assured the purchaser. William Sinclair negotiated the transaction.

No Setback for Broadway Building.

Permission has been granted by the Board of Appraisals to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company to carry the improvement planned for the northerly half of the Broadway block front, between Dey and Fulton Streets, to the height of the company's existing structure at the Dey Street corner, which is twenty-eight stories.

Under the provisions of the height zoning resolution, the company would have been compelled to observe the setback arrangement in building its proposed addition had the Board of Appeals denied its application.

LOFT BUYING CONTINUES.

Investor Takes $350,000 Structure in Fifth Avenue Zone.

Max N. Natanson has sold 5 and 7 East Sixteenth Street, a twelve-story store and loft building on a plot 50 by 92. The property is fully rented at an annual rent of $35,000, and was held at $350,000, and was sold for all cash to an investing client of J. F. Gordon.

Charles Wynne and Louis H. Low purchased from the Hirschhorn estate the ten-story loft building at 138 and 140 West Seventeenth Street, on plot 42 by 100. It returns a rental of $26,000, and was held at $215,000. Byrne & Bowman were the brokers in the transaction.

Charles F. Noyes Company sold for Julius and Bernard Lichtenstein to William B. and Edward D. Self, the three five-story loft buildings at 244 to 248 Water Street, each covering a lot about 25 by 100. Negotiations are pending through the same brokers for the resale of two of the buildings. The property is valued at $90,000.

Syrkin & Back, Inc., paper and cardboard dealers, purchased the six-story loft building, 25 by 114.8, at 9 Bond Street.

Duross Company sold for the H. W. G. Corporation, H. W. Gennerich, President, to Joseph Personeni, for investment, 576 West Broadway, a ten-story loft building, 96.1 by 50; 566 West Broadway, a three-story and basement loft, 25 by 54; 67 West Third Street, a three-story and basement loft 25 by 54; 64 Washington Square, south corner of West Broadway, a four-story and basement loft, 25 by 56.8.

Berlowitz & Caine sold for Samuel Greenstein the five-story building 221 West Twenty-ninth Street, to a client who will alter same into stores and lofts.

Frederick Brown bought from the Lichtenstein Realty Company the five-story building at 153 Chambers Street, 25 by 75, held at $75,000. The leases expire next May. George M. Read & Co. were the brokers in the deal.

The seven-story loft, on a lot 25 by 65 feet, at 60 Varick Street, the northeast corner of Lake Street, was sold to Max Marx by the Raygold Realty Company. George R. Read & Co. were the brokers in the deal.

Max Marx bought from the Bankers Trust Company 79 Cortland Street, a six-story store and loft building, on a plot 32.4 by 59. It was held at $75,000.

Home Fire Insurance Co. Buys.

The Home Fire Insurance Company now on Cedar Street, is the buyer of the North River Insurance Company building, at 35 William Street, a fourteen-story structure, reported sold Monday. It is said the Home Insurance Company plans to purchase several other properties to the south. Several months ago it acquired 57 Maiden Lane, and is reported to be negotiating a merger which will take over the business of the City Fire Insurance Company and its property at the northwest corner of Maiden Lane and William Street.

West Twenty-second Street Project.

Thomas J. McLaughlin and the Joseph Gordon Realty Corporation purchased 158 and 160 West Twenty-second Street and plan the erection of a twelve-story loft building.

Apartment House Trading.

Nehring Brothers resold for Evelyn Realty Corporation to Joseph G. Abramson the Claymont and Sherwood apartments, 544 and 558 West 164th Street, between Broadway and St. Nicholas Avenue, two six-story apartments, housing 108 families on a plot 265 by 100, renting for $80,000 and held at $620,000.

Samuel Kaplan sold for Monmouth Holding Company, Inc., to Blanche M. Amos and Mary K. Amos, clients of Edward S. Corey, 403 Audubon Avenue, a five-story apartment on a plot 53 by 93 held at $85,000.

The Lebertan Corporation sold to Simon Teischer the six-story apartment house at 250 Manhattan Avenue, 40 by 97 by 100, renting for over $22,000, or all cash over a mortgage of $57,000. The broker for the purchaser was N. Bender.

The Neman, a six-story apartment covering a plot 90 by 126.8 feet at the southeast corner of Fort Washington Avenue, held at $300,000, was sold yesterday to J. C. and M. G. Mayer and Millard Shroder, who recently acquired the thirteen-story apartment at 640 Park Avenue. The seller was the Bancroft Realty Company and Walter C. Wyckoff negotiated the deal.

Henry Friedman, President of the Hudson View Construction Company, bought from the Hammerslough estate the Wallace, a six-story apartment on a plot 75 by 100 feet at the southeast corner of Broadway and 140th Street. Mr. Friedman has been active for years on the Heights as a builder, having erected more than eighteen apartments on the Loyal L. Smith estate, obtaining the parcels through Mandelbaum & Levine. The purchase of the Wallace marks his entrance in the field as an operator. The property was valued at $250,000 and rents for $30,000. L. J. Phillips & Co. were the brokers.

DEMAND FOR DWELLINGS.

Homeseekers Keep Brokers in All Five Boroughs Busy.

John J. and Theodore A. Kavanagh sold for Elizabeth Ward to a client for occupancy 52 East Ninety-second Street, a three-story dwelling on lot 20 by 100.8 feet.

Edward Franklin sold the private dwelling at 328 East Fiftieth Street for the estate of M. Blum, which has held this property for thirty years.

Joseph L. Buttenwieser sold 272 West Twenty-fifth Street, a four-story private house on a lot 16 by 98.9, to V. Giannini, who, after alterations, will occupy it for his own business.

SALESMEN,

AN OPEN LETTER

TO THE SALESMEN

OF GREATER NEW YORK.

Are you entirely satisfied with your present business connection?

Is it yielding you the income, your effort and ability entitle you to?

And how about the future? Is there the opportunity for you to develop into a $10,000 or $20,000 a year man?

If you cannot answer YES to these three questions, then this advertisement carries a message for you.

We are a MANUFACTURING CORPORATION with a nationally known product, protected by a patented process which is considered as important to the AUTO-MOTIVE industry from an economic standpoint as the Bessemer process is to the steel industry.

We have room in our organization for a number of live-wire salesmen, accustomed to interviewing men of affairs, who can prove from past performance that they are capable of earning from $7,500 to $12,500 a year.

If you are such a man we will give you the opportunity of making more money during the next six months than you ever made before, and after that, if your work has been satisfactory, you may step into a permanent position in our merchandising department as a district sales manager on a basis of remuneration which will insure your financial independence during the remainder of your active business life.

We are increasing our manufacturing facilities, and want men who possess tact and initiative to call on motorists in New York and vicinity (with cards of introduction), and take subscriptions to our offering of 8 per cent. preferred stock, with a common stock bonus; stock selling experience helpful but not necessary; we instruct you in our school of salesmanship; commission basis.

If you think you can qualify write us for an interview. Address Post Office Box 411, Madison Square Station, New York.

SECURITY SALESMEN who have made good on telephone; Wall St. offers splendid opportunity to clever and intelligent men who are sincere and have good record; advancement, with good salary and commission. Phone Mr. Ravey, Rector 6166.

LA SALLE PROBLEM METHOD

TRAINS YOU

FOR

JUNIOR ACCOUNTING IN 5 MONTHS,

SENIOR ACCOUNTING IN 12 MONTHS

If you are making less than $50 a week and would like to earn this amount or more in a high grade accounting position, real opportunity is open if you are willing to undergo at least several months of intensive training. The use of spare time a few evenings a week for 5 to 8 months has been sufficient to qualify for the $50 positions—12 to 18 months for positions paying $60 to $100 a week.

The rate of advancement depends upon your general qualifications, determination and ambition. You will be under the direction of William B. Castenholz, the best known accountancy teacher in America, and a large staff of expert accountants, including several members of the American Institute of Accountants.

A knowledge of bookkeeping is not necessary as La Salle trains from the ground up, but an aptitude for accounting work will be an advantage in shortening the term of preparation for the bigger positions.

The records of thousands of ambitious men and women on file at our office show what has been accomplished by them and can be done by you.

FROST, SUING WIFE, NAMES MAN IN CASE

George Hassan Is Revealed as Co-respondent in Corporation Lawyer's Divorce Action.

HOTEL MEETING CHARGED

Young Defendant Is Second Wife of Former Head of Holland Launch Company.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 22.—Announcement yesterday that Elihu B. Frost, corporation lawyer of New York, and long active in submarine building companies, had posted notice that he would not be responsible for his wife's debts and would bring a divorce action against her, was followed today by new thrills in the fashionable Chelsea cottage colony where Mrs. Frost has been the subject of lively gossip before this.

Today's news is that the middle-aged Manhattan club member—he belongs to the University and Manhattan Clubs and maintains a town home at 270 Park Avenue—has named George Hassan as co-respondent. The divorce action says Mrs. Frost, who was Miss Rosalind Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew Charles Harrington, and Hassan met in the Harris Hotel here, Dec. 4, 1919. The proprietor of the hotel said today that on that date he employed in the hotel a bartender named George Hassan. He would not tell whether Mrs. Frost was a patron of his hostelry.

Mrs. Frost, who is only 27 years old, was married to the New York lawyer in 1915, after his first wife had divorced him at Reno. Subsequently the first Mrs. Frost became Mrs. Hamilton W. Carey. Not only has the second Mrs. Frost been socially active here, but her habit of driving her car twice has got her into serious difficulties. On one occasion when she faced a police magistrate on that charge her husband had great difficulty in saving her from a jail sentence. Mrs. Frost once ran down an elderly Philadelphia man who, after spending several months in a hospital, sued her for $25,000. The case was settled out of court.

Frost formerly was head of the Holland Electric Launch Company and has figured in a number of submarine concerns. In December, 1918, as trustee under a voting trust agreement between Henry R. Carse, President of the Electric Boat Corporation, and four other stockholders, Frost brought suit asking for the removal of Carse from the control of the company. The complaint alleged that Malcolm Ross McAdoo, brother of William G. McAdoo, who recently had resigned as Secretary of the Treasury, had received $40,000 of the company's money. Carse denied the charges and McAdoo said payments to him were for professional services as a consulting engineer, not for any "influence" he could exert in getting Government contracts.

CREDIT UNION PROSPEROUS.

Loan Society for City Employes Reports Large Increases.

The annual report of the Directors of the Municipal Credit Union was made yesterday at the annual meeting at the Municipal Building. In the year 1919 the membership increased from 1,053 to 2,332. Payments on shares increased from $82,636 to $141,492. New loans made increased from $97,283 to $274,639. A cash dividend of 7.2 per cent., amounting to $6,323, will be paid on all fully paid shares. This leaves $2,647 to go to the guarantee fund as required by the State law. The amount in the guarantee fund is now $4,663 and in the undivided surplus fund $2,061. In the last three years loans to members have amounted to $412,173, without a loss.

The purposes of the Credit Union are to promote thrift among members and to make loans to members for productive purposes or meet urgent needs at low interest. Membership is limited to employes of the city.

The union is under the supervision of the State Banking Department.

Tariff League Opposes League and Asks Repeal of Underwood Act.

At the annual meeting yesterday of the American Protective Tariff League at its national headquarters, 339 Broadway, resolutions were unanimously adopted urging "the immediate declaration of peace with Germany" and that the league was "unalterably opposed to the covenant of the League of Nations as presented and opposed to any league of nations which endangers the sovereignty, entity and independence of the United States of America."

Another resolution was adopted demanding the repeal of the Underwood Tariff act of 1913 and recommending that an "adequate protective tariff law be enacted that shall apply to all competing imports from all countries alike, with no reciprocity treaties, no favored nation clauses, nor other forms of favoritism or discrimination."

VALUABLE REALTY AS GIFT.

Mrs. J. L. Laidlaw Gets Three Office Buildings from Husband.

Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Chairman of the New York State League of Women Voters, became the owner this week, through a gift from her husband, of a five-story building at 70 Wall Street and two six-story structures at 161 and 163 Pearl Street, the three parcels surrounding the northwest corner of those two thoroughfares. The corner is occupied by the Seamen's Bank for Savings.

Mr. Laidlaw acquired the property last September from the Index Realty Company, subject to a mortgage of $125,000, which remains. The Wall Street plot has a frontage of 26 feet and is slightly more than 100 feet deep. The two Pearl Street lots have a combined frontage of 44 feet, with depth varying from 73 to 90 feet. They adjoin the Wall Street Post Office branch on the Pine and Pearl Street corner. The gift has an assessed valuation of $178,000, with a land valuation of $159,000. The Wall Street plot has an assessed land value of $100,000 and the building $5,000.
